AMERICAN INFANTRY SHELLED; CHINESE CLING TO KIANGWAN

Today

A Very Fine Baby.
Why Meddle With Asia?
The Shanghai Settlement.
Plenty to Do at Home.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NEWTON, Kan., Feb. 22.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS ago, this Monday, Mrs. Washington sat up in bed, holding in her arms a very fine heavy baby, to be named George.

She undoubtedly sat up as soon as the baby was handed to her and nursed George as soon as he was ready for his first breakfast, such was the custom in those days.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS later, probably, Mrs. Washington was up, attending to her household. But modern mothers should imitate only the nursing part.

Mothers would live longer, be healthier, more useful to their children, and happier if they would rest two full weeks lying in bed after the birth of a child, sit up the third week, walk around the room after four weeks.

Many are too poor to take that advice, unfortunately.

GEORGE WAS born a British subject and but for him, we might all be British subjects now.

Our Canadian friends will say:

"It would be much better for you if you were."

That's another story. We think not.

YOU WILL READ so much about George Washington today that it would be cruelty to add to the outpouring. Enough to say that he established this nation, gave it sound advice, to mind its own business and let other nations mind their business. If we fail to take that advice and become a mere political annex of Europe, it will serve us right.

ASIA'S WAR NEWS becomes each day more horrifying.

It is horrible to see an actual photograph of a kneeling Chinese, accused of "sniping," which means shooting from windows and other hiding places when not in uniform, kneeling before a Japanese soldier, with bayonet raised above the sniper's breast.

"A few seconds after this photograph was snapped, the Chinese sniper was dead."

DREADFUL IS THIS war, although less horrible thus far than the big one just finished, with its Liberty Bond speeches, patriotic bands playing and its effort to kill more and more of the enemy and scare their women and children.

It is not our business to regulate ASIA and its wars. If George Washington told us to keep out of the quarrels of Europe, three thousand miles away, what would he have said about the quarrels of Asia, seven thousand miles away?

THERE IS A SETTLEMENT of Europeans and Americans in Shanghai, a "European quarter" and because of that we claim the right to tell Chinese and Japanese what they shall do about fighting each other.

There are settlements of Chinese and Japanese in San Francisco. Suppose they had tried to tell us what we must do in our big war? Suppose they had suggested that San Francisco might be bombarded, from sea or air, with Chinese or Japanese hurt and therefore the war must be stopped?

IT WILL BE said:

"Yes, but we are white and very rich, and therefore have the right to tell those of a different color, not so rich, what they shall do."

That is nonsense. Canada, Mexico and this country will not permit Asiatics to colonize on our side of the Pacific. The British Empire forbids Asiatic colonization of South Africa, or Australia and New Zealand that lie within the shadow of Japanese guns.

Since we tell Japan she must not expand on our continent, what right have we to forbid Japanese expansion in Asia?

JAPAN HER sixty millions crowded on a few islands scattered along the edge of Asia, needs more space on the mainland.

We were once small colonies scattered along the eastern shore of North America, required room to expand, and took it, Texas, California, New Mexico, etc. There is a difference in taking lands from the red Indians who did not use it, and taking land from highly industrious Chinese.

But as prosperity has increased in our lands that were formerly Mexican, so undoubtedly will Manchurian lands taken by the Japanese increase in prosperity under Japanese organization and management.

SOME SAY:

"Japan got her arts, culture, civilization, from China. It is bare ingratitude to turn on China now."

True, and the Japanese admit all that except the ingratitude. But they say:

"You Americans got your civilization, largely, from the English, but nevertheless George Washington kicked them out of a land that belonged to them."

THIS CONTINENT, or a large part of it, is ours. We should concentrate on what we own. Accidentally, we hold the Philippines and Guam. These we should fortify, thoroughly, forgetting the foolish Washington conference, fortifying, not for aggression, but for protection, in case of need.

Japan may overrun and con-

WIND HURLS AKRON TO GROUND

Giant Airship Badly Damaged Preparing to Fly Probers On Trip to Prove Worth

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Feb. 22.—The airship Akron, pride of the Navy air service, today was badly damaged when a gust of wind smashed its stern fin to the ground as the airship was being maneuvered into position for a holiday flight with five Congressmen, members of the House Naval Affairs Sub-committee.

The airship had been taken out of the hangar and was being turned about, preparatory to being "snubbed" onto the mooring mast. The congressmen had not yet boarded the dirigible.

FLIGHT BALKED

Commander Charles E. Rosendahl declared that the damage to the super-structure of the airship would necessitate calling off the projected flight.

The proposed flight next month of the airship to the Pacific Coast to participate in naval maneuvers also may have to be postponed.

Two enlisted men who were among the ground crew on the ropes when the airship was blown to the ground were painfully injured.

They were taken to the Airport Naval Hospital.

A low ceiling and a strong wind had delayed the planned Washington birthday flight of the airship. The congressional guests had waited impatiently for the weather to improve.

Finally, Commander Rosendahl, skipper of the Akron, ordered the

GADSKI INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Mme. Johanna Gadski, noted opera singer and once one of the foremost Wagnerian sopranos of her time, was injured seriously today when her automobile crashed into a street car.

With her and also injured seriously were her husband, Capt. Hans Tauscher; Mrs. F. Bang, of New York, and Mrs. C. Busch, Mme. Gadski's daughter. Mrs. Bang was driving. She was Geraldine Hall, of New York, before her marriage last fall, and was active in German-American musical circles.

Mme. Gadski was to have headed a German opera tour in United States this fall.

Girl Ends Life With Shotgun

Her mother an invalid and her father out of work, a Miss Woolslayer, 30, today killed herself with a shotgun in the attic of her home, Lagons Ferry road, Plum Township, the Coroner reported.

The mother had been helping her daughter do a washing in the basement. The daughter took a basket of clothes to the attic and a moment later the mother heard a shot. Dr. R. M. Johnston, of New Kensington, informed the Coroner. The woman was found dead, the gun by her side.

Man Found Dead By Gas in Shop

Charles Thomas, 43, a widower, was found dead, a gas tube in his mouth, today in his tire repair shop, 55 South Tenth street, by two passersby who broke in the door. He apparently had ended his life yesterday, police said. He left four children in the Protestant Home, North Side.

KIDNAP PLOT HOAX, SAYS BLADGEN

Worry Over Future Blamed By Sportsman Admitting Ransom Story Was False

International News Service.

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Harry Blagden, wealthy Saranac Lake sportsman, who appeared in Cleveland last week after having been reported kidnaped and held prisoner for ransom, with a story of having been spirited away from the Lake Placid Club at a time when 1,000 guests were dancing within earshot of the room which he occupied, confessed today that the kidnaping story was a hoax.

State troopers who investigated the case were skeptical from the start for his story of a hand to hand conflict with the kidnapers and his escape from a van in which he was being transported seemed incredible to them.

STORY SUSPECTED

However, the social and financial standing of the Saranac man who had been a guest of the E. Roland Harrimans at the Lake Placid Club was so secure that troopers hid their disbelief and tried to check up on his story and apprehend the kidnapers.

They found they couldn't verify a single point in his story and when all of their efforts led into a cul de sac of lost clues and bewilderment they were at the end of their trail.

This morning just as troopers had about decided to voice their suspicions that Blagden's story was a fabrication, Capt. Charles J. Broadfield in command of Troop B, of the New York State Police, received a letter from Glagden from Arden, N. Y., saying that the kidnaping story was all untrue.

WRITES OF HOAX

The letter follows:

"Dear Captain—

"I was never kidnaped. For a long time I have been worrying about the depression and the future. The load seemed too heavy for me to carry. I could not bear it. There seemed to be no way out.

"While I was alone in the cottage at Lake Placid, the kidnaping scheme came to me. I acted on it and the further I got into it the more difficult it became. It was too late to turn back. I was horrified by the publicity and the effect of it on my friends. I used the story of my escape as the best way out.

"I should have written you this from Cleveland, I know, but didn't have the courage. I am sorry."

Hoover Playing Politics With Relief, Says Garner

Speaker Warns of Partisan Warfare to Promote G. O. P.

JOHN N. GARNER'S LIFE STORY

The second installment of the rise to fame of this noted Texan who may be our next President appears on page 13 today.

By FRASER EDWARDS
General Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Speaker Garner took a two-fisted fling at President Hoover for attempting to make political capital out of emergency relief measures enacted by the Democartic House and with the co-operation of Democrats in the Senate.

In blunt, vigorous fashion, the Texan served notice on the President that he cannot expect to carry on partisan warfare to promote his prospects of re-election while the Democrats in Congress maintain a practical truce in an effort to restore prosperity.

DEMANDS FAIR PLAY

If there is to be any partnership between the Republican administration and Democrats in Congress, to promote the national interest, the Speaker declared:

"We must be full partners, taking full share in the responsibilities and participating in whatever benefits accrue—political or otherwise."

The Democrats in Congress, the Speaker asserted, will not submit to the President's assured dictatorship and "sign on the dotted line" any measure submitted to them by the administration. On the contrary, Garner said the Democrats reserve the right to accept what is "worth while and to reject or tinker into shape what seems to us futile or worse." He added:

"We have a right to expect that the administration will take our judgment as impartially as we take theirs."

Pointing to errors of hundreds of millions of dollars in budget es-

Garner in Formal Attire for Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—For the first time in many years Speaker Garner today wore formal morning wear in honor of the bicentennial birthday anniversary of George Washington.

Explosion Razes Sharpsville Store

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 22.—The home of Victor Palazzo, local grocer, was deertoyed by an explosion, believed to have been caused by gasoline, today. No person was injured.

ZIEGFELD HERE FOR 'HOT-CHA'

Blondes to the left of him, brunettes to the right of him, redheads—well, anyway, there were lots of redheads—represented the ocular treats of "Hot-Cha," the latest Ziegfeld show which pauses at the Nixon Theater this week before its New York premiere.

And "Ziggy," as the cast and chorus affectionately and unanimously call him, said:

FIERCE BATTLE SWEEPS ON INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENT

Associated Press.

China's defending army took all the punishment the Japanese could hand out today and held its own against the powerful force trying to capture the town of Kiangwan.

Dismayed by the unexpected resistance, the Japanese command withdrew a part of its forces at Hongkew and sent the men in against Kiangwan. Immediately Chinese artillery behind the Chapei front bombarded Hongkew.

Far into the night the guns were still blazing and neither side had gained any material advance.

A few shells fell among American infantry on patrol along the Soochow creek in the International Settlement, but there were no casualties.

Word from Loyang, temporary seat of the Chinese government, said the authorities were preparing for a fight with Japan which would last a year.

In Tokio, where the present government was retained in office by an unexpectedly large majority in Saturday's general election, the war office said there was no present intention of sending another expeditionary force to Shanghai.

BOMBARD CONSULATE

Chinese Fire Over Heads Of American Marines; Ships Imperiled.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—(Tuesday, 12:32 a. m.)—Chinese heavy guns, mounted on an armored train in the Markham road yards, early today launched a bombardment of the Japanese consulate in the heart of the International Settlement, firing over the heads of American Marines stationed at the Settlement boundary.

Six-inch shells dropped into the International Settlement, sending passersby scurrying to cover.

Two Chinese shells fell into the Whangpoo River near the Japanese flagship Idzuma, while others splashed in the water near the dock where the British cruiser suffolk was moored.

Japanese artillery in Honkkew Park returned the Chinese fire, seeking to locate and silence the Chinese guns.

Twelve hours ago Japanese shells whined over my head. Now, a few minutes after midnight, I have just walked along Peking road, two blocks from the Cathay Hotel on the Bund, hugging the walls of modern new buildings as shells whirred across and splashed into the river only a few yards from Admiral Nomura's flagship, the Idzuma.

KIANGWAN HOLDS

A hair's breadth alteration of the range of the Chinese guns might easily mean the wiping out of the Cathay Hotel and other modern buildings.

Meanwhile, Japanese troops penetrated the village of Kiang-

Chinese Artillery Blasts Japanese Base; Many Civilians Killed.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Men of the 31st United States Infantry on patrol along Soochow Creek were fired on today as they strengthened their barbed wire defenses, but there were no casualties.

Chinese headquarters, after a complaint had been filed, explained that the Americans were wearing blue uniforms and the Chinese soldiers mistook them for Japanese bluejackets.

The infantrymen previously had been ordered to retire from their posts Wednesday, to be relieved by British troops.

A stray shell also struck the American Seventh Day Adventists' mission hospital on the Chapei border. The building was unoccupied, for the mission authorities had left with 160 patients a few days ago.

Chinese artillery trained on Hongkew, the Japanese base, cut loose tonight with the heaviest bombardment in several days, blasting the North Szechuen road.

Some of the shells fell in the Chinese residential areas where many householders had refused to evacuate. It was feared many Chinese civilians had been killed. The shelling was so heavy ambulances could not get to the wounded.

A dozen fires broke out in the neighborhood of the Japanese barracks, and the flames spread while firemen stood helpless.

The fire headquarters itself was struck by a shell and several firemen were wounded. Another shell landed at the isolation hospital, but the casualties there were not learned.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22.—Seven tons of air bombs per hour is the terrific dose being regularly received this morning by Chinese defenders under burning ruins in the vicinity of Kiangwan village, according to a special prescription ordered by Japanese Commander Uyeda.

Three squadrons, each composed of nine heavy bombing planes, were taking off from the Japanese airfield at regular 20-minute intervals—three departures per hour.

Each plane carries two bombs, weighing 250 pounds each, or 500 pounds to each plane, meaning 4,500 pounds for each squadron and making 13,500 pounds, or approximately seven tons of explosives being dropped hourly at this single point of stubborn Chinese resistence.

Chinese headquarters report that even though the Japanese have completely surrounded Kiangwan, cutting off all lines of retreat, the defenders will continue to resist and refuse to surrender, because all are convinced the Japanese are giving no quarter and taking no prisoners alive.

wan, focal point of the 16-mile Chapei-Woosung battle line, but have not yet captured the town.

Chinese troops here still cling to positions in shell-battered buildings early today.

With their offensive movement held up by the unexpected Chinese resistance at Kiangwan, the Japanese began squeezing out their forces in flanking movements on both sides of the village and last night neutral observers reported they had captured the village of Mahang, two miles due north by west of Kiangwan.

But with part of Kiangwan still in Chinese hands and the center of the village aflame, the Japanese lines rested with their right and left wings out of contact.

Headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Uyeda nevertheless professed to be entirely satisfied with the result of the fighting, though admitting the Japanese attack was many hours behind schedule.

ARTILLERY DUEL

As hostilities in the Kiangwan area came to an end at dusk, a fierce artillery duel suddenly broke out in Chapei at the southern end of the battle front.

When this dispatch was filed the Japanese were laying down the heaviest bombardment of the Shanghai war. Guns of all caliber were pouring shells into the area around the North station, center of Chinese resistance, and the Chinese were replying with trench mortars.

Japanese warships were reported to be shelling Paoshan, at the extreme north of the fighting line. Smoke appeared to be rising along the entire line from Kiangwan north to Paoshan.

The Chinese Press, semi-official Chinese organ, stated that 15,000 Japanese soldiers were to pass the Woosung forts today to reinforce Gen. Uyeda's forces in their offensive against the Chinese. There was no Japanese confirmation of the report.

Japanese airplanes yesterday dropped hundreds of leaflets inside the Chinese lines at Kiangwan, informing the Chinese troops that their defense of Shanghai was being made without sanction of the Chinese government. The leaflets said:

"The Nineteenth Route Army has not received orders from the central government to fight against the Japanese and the present hostilities serve only to make the people miserable—nothing else.

"Therefore, we are absolutely determined to drive out the rebel Nineteenth Army."

20,000 Starving Refugees Swamp Relief Camp

NANKING, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Twenty thousand homeless, penniless, half-starved Chinese, innocent victims of the "war" at Shanghai, presented a picture of mass misery at the Sanpailou war refugee camp near here today which was without parallel in the present Sino-Japanese conflict.

The problem of keeping the miserable refugees alive was already serious and becoming increasingly so day by day as their number increased. The brunt of the huge task of feeding and sheltering the destitute thousands fell upon the National Food Relief Commission and various missionary groups.

The city government was providing one meal of porridge a day. American wheat was being used in large quantities to help stave off starvation and small amounts of rice and vegetables also were being donated.

CHINA GIRDING FOR LONG WAR

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—China's national government is preparing for a war against Japan which will last a year, it was said today in an authoritative quarter.

The government is buying large quantities of ammunition and airplanes and importing trench-digging machinery from Germany. The authorities are convinced that the future of the Chinese nation depends on the outcome of this struggle and are confident of the support of all the people.

China Plans Arrest Of 'Boy Emperor'

PEIPING, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—The Chinese central government has issued a warrant for the arrest of Henry Pu Yi, former "boy-emperor" of China, now scheduled to become head of the newly created independent Manchurian state, it was reported here today.

MISSIONARIES FLEE FIGHTING

William Lyon and Mrs. A. O. Houghland, of Washington, Pa., received word today that their sister, Miss Emma Lyon, head of the girls' school of the Christian Church in Nanking, China, had been evacuated by the U. S. Marines to Shanghai.

She was forced, apparently, to leave with other Americans to a less dangerous district. She wrote to her relatives recently:

"I have not deserted my post in 40 years, and I do not intend to run away now."

Miss Loretta Crawford, of Pittsburgh, has received consular instruction to leave the Presbyterian Mission station at Soochow for safer quarters at Hangchow, Chekiang, according to an announcement made yesterday. All Presbyterian missionaries in China are safe, according to the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions' report.

The ship sailed from here yesterday.

U. S. Envoy Stays In Shanghai Sector

JAPAN BACKS 'WAR PARTY'

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—The people of Japan today had indirectly given staunch support of the Seiyukai government's policy against China by returning it to power with unprecedented gusto. Often termed of late as the "War Party," the Seiyukai party was voted 270 seats in the Diet to 130 for the Minseito party, chief opposition, in the first 400 places filled.

There were but 60 constituencies remaining to be heard from. Final returns will be known tomorrow.

The Minseito party had a majority in the last Diet, but the government was thrown out and the Diet dissolved because of its weak policy toward China.

New Manchurian Revolt Reported

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Dispatches from Mukden, Manchuria, to the war office, said today revolt against the new Manchurian state had again broken out in Kirin province where 2,000 Chinese troops, former followers of Gen. Ting Chao, were marching on Imienpo and threatening the rule of Hsi Hsia, Kirin governor.

The dispatches said the rebels already had seized Wukimiho, 20 kilometers northwest of Imienpo, and that the troops of the governor were retreating to the south.

CRITICS OF HOAX GIRL SCORED

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Relatives of Elizabeth Barrett Cook, who died at sea near Gibraltar February 7 on the steamship Chinese Prince, were resentful today at what they termed "attempts to blacken the character of a dead girl."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carroll, of Brookline, aunt and uncle of the dead girl, said they had started an inquiry at telegraph offices in Italy to prove the girl did not send herself the hoax message she received shortly before her death. The message falsely announced the death of her fiance, St. George Arnold, and requested her not to return. It was signed "Helen James," Carroll said.

"The fact that she bought a wedding ring and veil for her marriage ceremony certainly belies the theory that she planned to end her own life."

Yesterday, George B. Beak, British Consul General in Boston, expressed the belief that the girl had sent the hoax message to herself. The Consul General said the messages received by the girl were telegrams and not cablegrams. He said that he believed the girl's death was due to pneumonia.

Bombing Attempt Imperils 40 Persons

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—The lives of 40 persons, including a score of children, were imperilled today in an attempt to dynamite a large wooden block. Mrs. Samuel Mundrell found a loosely wrapped bundle of dynamite and a lighted fuse in the doorway of the soft drink establishment on Middle street operated by her husband.

TOKIO WORRIED OVER CHINA'S RESISTANCE

War Office Calm, Insists Advance Must Be Slow Owing to Topography

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Considerable anxiety was expressed in authoritative civilian circles in Tokio tonight over press dispatches from Shanghai indicating that Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda's offensive was being resisted stubbornly by the Chinese and that the Japanese were meeting some reverses.

The war office remained outwardly calm, however. It insisted confirmation of the reported reverses was lacking, and that besides, the Japanese advance must be expected to be slow because the grounds over which it was being fought is cut with many canals, making progress difficult.

It also quoted a report from the Japanese Minister to China, Mamoru Shigemitsu, saying that the conquest of the 19th Army would probably require a week or 10 days from the beginning of the drive on February 20. Officials said, however, that there was no present intention of sending reinforcements to Shanghai.

After the Chinese are driven out, they said, the Japanese army would occupy the zone line defensively until the situation warranted their withdrawal or a temporary neutral zone was agreed upon.

They interpreted news from Shanghai as indicating that Gen. Uyeda's offensive was proceeding "according to schedule."

CHINESE SPLIT RUMORED

At the war office it was said Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's army was not assisting the 19th route army in the defense of Shanghai and that the 19th, a Cantonese force, was practically isolated. The war office also said in effect that it heard of a new breach between the Central Chinese headquarters at Nanking and the Southern government's center at Canton.

This breach, which the war office indicated was imminent, would come about, it said, as a result of Nanking's alleged failure to support Gen. Isai Ting-Kai's 19th army.

DENIES WITHDRAWAL

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Foreign Minister, issued a statement for the Associated Press declaring that the suggestion that Japan might withdraw from the League of Nations was "a silly idea." He said:

"The generous enthusiasm of western observers might, in Japan's absence from the league, have carried them into premature action based on natural but mistaken assumptions. It would be the height of folly to abandon so favorable a position. Much less is it possible that this country should repudiate the Briand-Kellogg treaty for the outlawry of war. Had this treaty been duly observed, there would have been no attack on the South Manchurian railway or at Japanese patrols at Shanghai.

"It would be equally impossible and undesirable to repudiate the Washington nine-power treaty, which is a great beacon standing alone in the midst of Chinese international relations."

Not only sentiment, he said, but necessity would lead Japan to maintain the friendliest relations and co-operation with United States and Great Britain.

Russians Lay Mines In Black Sea Ports

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—The newspaper Reggeli Ujsag, today printed a dispatch from Constanza saying a Rumanian warship, returning from the north, reported the Russians were laying mines near Rumania's Black Sea border.

Officers of the ship were quoted as saying they met four Russian torpedo boats and a mine sweeper which also were blocking the entrances to Russian ports with mines.

GLASS BANK BILL A GOOD MEASURE

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE GLASS-STEAGALL emergency banking bill is designed to offset the harmful effect of hoarding at home and abroad.

By a stroke of the pen, it is intended to mobilize the vast pile of sterile American gold to achieve desirable credit expansion.

It would leap over existing technicalities, and give American business sufficient credit in spite of the contraction of banking funds which has taken place as a result of the collapse of confidence.

It is intended to break the vicious cycle of depression. For months, people have become pessimistic because the decline of bank credit was forcing RUINOUS DEFLATION and the volume of BANK CREDIT LIKEWISE WAS SHRINKING because people were fearful.

UNDER THE old law, Federal Reserve notes, the principal circulating medium, could be secured by 40 per cent gold, and the remaining 60 per cent of collateral could consist of eligible commercial paper. However, with less than $400,000,000 of eligible paper in the hands of the Federal Reserve System, the system found it necessary to offset the scarcity of commercial paper through the use of as much as 80 per cent gold, instead of the minimum of 40 per cent required by law.

The new bill permits the SUBSTITUTION OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT BONDS FOR COMMERCIAL PAPER for one year as collateral for Federal Reserve notes, and would thus tend to FREE A VAST AMOUNT OF EXCESS GOLD FOR ADDITIONAL CREDIT WORK.

The emergency bill also gives member banks of $500,000 capital or less the right to borrow from the Federal Reserve on assets which are now ineligible.

In an emergency it is proposed to shift the rules of banking, and thus to stop a spectacular and ruinous decline of the credit supply.

SCIENTIFIC economists have long insisted on the need of a controlled credit expansion to arrest the decline in security and commodity prices.

The recent display of cheerfulness is based on belief that AT LENGTH THE LAWMAKERS ARE READY TO DEAL WITH THE CAUSES, RATHER THAN THE MERE SYMPTOMS, OF THE DEPRESSION.

The new machinery for opening the floodgates of credit expansions allows for the abnormal behavior of customers of banks.

It would tend to offset the effect of hoarding of currency and gold at home and abroad.

As Senator Glass said, it would give American bankers a weapon for nullifying the economic effect of another raid on our banking system by the French.

Incidentally, as a protective device, it is important for America to retain the war debt claims against France, which offset French short term claims on American gold.

IF THE NEW banking measure generates a partial return of confidence, leaders should follow through with other sound counter-deflationary measures.

It is vitally important to inject new PURCHASING POWER into the economic system.

The Hearst newspapers believe that the best technique for accomplishing this is through the sale of a prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000 for public works, which would entail the re-employment of the idle. Such a popular financing campaign would bring hoarded dollars out of hiding, and would restore normal economic processes. The new banking measure HEIGHTENS THE SALABILITY OF GOVERNMENT BONDS and would help to assure the easy success of a vast prosperity loan for social reconstruction and for the effective relief of the evil of unemployment.

IF, HOWEVER, reconstruction is limited to measures for FINANCING THE FINANCIER, expanded credit MIGHT WELL BE MISDIRECTED.

Under the public works plan, it would be concentrated into JOB CREATING ACTIVITIES, the consummation of which would tone up all industries and trades which are DEPENDENT ON THE VAST CONSUMING POPULATION.

Unless a program of production accompanies the plan for enlarging the circulating medium, increased credit might conceivably be used only to [illegible] securities—and such a use of credit would be unhealthy and would fail to achieve the desired economic balance.

DRY, TAX, JOB ISSUES FACE CONGRESS

Heavy Calendar Waits as Houses Recess to Pay Tribute to Washington

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Prohibition, taxation, unemployment relief, government economy, banking relief and an anti-injunction bill furnished Congress with an ambitious legislative program this week, although it began today by recessing to pay tribute to the memory of George Washington.

The prohibition, taxation and unemployment relief issues agitated the House. The enonomy issue was raised at both ends of the Capitol, while the banking relief measure was in conference, where House and Senate leaders sought to iron out their differences. In the Senate, the Norris anti-injunction bill was ready for debate, with its passage virtually assured before the end of the week.

AID TO BUSINESS SEEN

The Glass-Steagall banking relief bill will become a law within a few days, since the issues in controversy are minor in character. They relate chiefly to the Senate's authorization of banking relief for a two-year period, after the House limited it to one year and a Senate limitation on the capital of banks eligible for individual loans.

The general belief prevails this bill will do more toward restoring prosperity, by releasing credit to business and by bulwarking the banks against defaulting, than all other bills passed this session.

In the House, the battle over a new tax bill will get going in earnest tomorrow when Secretary of the Treasury Mills appears before the Ways and Means Committee with the administration's tax program. It will be featured by a demand for adoption of a sales tax. With the Democrats proposing their own tax plan, a stiff battle may develop.

JOB AID UP IN HOUSE

The unemployment relief issue, beaten in the Senate last week, was shifted to the House, where Representative Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, demanded a rule to permit a vote on his $700,000,000 relief bill. Democratic leaders viewed the bill with alarm, since their Democratic colleagues in the Senate generally aided administration senators in beating the famous La Follette-Costigan bill. Connery hoped to force a vote on it.

The economy issue hit both House and Senate. In the House, the Democrats were ready to create a "reorganization economy commission" to propose slashes in government bureaus and personnel.

The prohibition issue, always a subject of agitation, will move into the spotlight when House anti-drys circulate a petition asking for a direct vote on repeal. They were sure of getting the 145 required names, which will insure a vote under the revised House rules. The Senate, too, may debate this issue.

trol all China as easily as has been done in the past by Genghis Khan and others. In that case North America might face, on the other side of the Pacific, an empire of five hundred million people. Directed by ingenious, warlike and courageous Japan, they probably would never be unkind, or foolish enough to attack us, but it might happen. Small sparks start big conflagrations.

ONE THOUSAND fighting airplanes, always ready at Manila, another thousand at Guam, with pilots, explosives, poison gas and fire bombs in abundance, with a well-armed half-way station at the Hawaiian Islands, would make Asiatic interference improbable, while we work out our own problems at home.

MANY WILL SAY, perhaps truly:

"Chinese civilization is higher than that of the Japanese. The character and integrity of the Chinese as a whole are higher than among the Japanese. The Japanese are a predatory nation, only recently emerged from absolute barbarism, whereas China has thousands of years of civilization in her past history."

Whatever the facts, it is not our business to say who shall rule in Asia. That is the business of the Asiatics. It IS our business to say who shall rule here. To attend our country and let other nations attend their business, as George Washington said a long time ago, is the duty and the ONLY duty of the United States.

Convict Faces Trial In Girl's Murder

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Fred Collins, 37, Negro, prisoner at Rockview Penitentiary, will go on trial this week for the murder of Betty Hickok, 22, daughter of Dr. Asa L. Hickok, resident psychiatrist, according to the trial list here today.

Collins, a patient of Dr. Hickok, attacked the girl and slashed her throat with a butcher knife. He and two other Negroes were sentenced from Beaver County for the slaying of a storekeeper during a holdup attempt.

Mother, Daughter Die in Suicide Pact

Mrs. Anna M. Hibbs, 45, and her daughter, Elizabeth, were found dead in each other's arms by Mrs. Hibbs' sister, Mrs. Hester C. Laufer. One of two notes they left said they preferred their course of action rather than "impose on the generosity" of the only member of the household now working.

HOOVER BEFORE CONGRESS LEADS WASHINGTON TRIBUTE

GARNER GREETS PRESIDENT AMID WILD CHEERS

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The glories and the genius of George Washington were etched today in resonant rhetoric by President Hoover as he led a grateful nation in celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the founding father's birth.

It was from the Speaker's rostrum in the House that the chief executive delivered his eulogy. Before him were assembled a joint session of the Congress, the highest officials of this government and the envoys of all the nations of the world.

GARNER GREETS HOOVER

Before the ceremonies began, the President went to the office of Speaker John N. Garner, where he left his hat and coat draped unceremoniously across the Speaker's desk.

Mr. Garner, who a short time before had issued a statement scoring the President for "playing politics" in the unemployment relief controversy, greeted Mr. Hoover warmly.

Speaker Garner, pounding his gavel, opened the joint session a short time later and when Mr. Hoover entered the chamber he shook hands with his political foe to the accompaniment of a round of applause.

RECALLS WEBSTER

In his address, President Hoover avoided all present-day problems to trace the course of the nation's growth during the last two centuries. He called for a renewal of the inspiration of Washington.

Mr. Hoover recalled the prophetic words of the great Daniel Webster, uttered on February 22, 1832, in commemoration of the first century's passage after Washington was born. On that occasion, Webster predicted that "a hundred years hence, other disciples of Washington will celebrate his birth."

To this, President Hoover replied before today's distinguished gathering:

"The time that Webster looked forward to is here. Proudly we report to our forefathers that the republic is more secure, more constant, more powerful, more truly great than at any time in its history."

FETES LAUNCHED

The assemblage of the nation's leaders under the capitol's dome to pay homage to Washington was merely the first of a series of daily meetings and celebrations that will continue from now until Thanksgiving Day in every city, town and hamlet of the country.

A further tribute was scheduled this afternoon on the part of President Hoover and other officials at Mount Vernon, where the immortal First President lived and died, and at Alexandria, Va., where he voted and attended church back in the dubious days of the republic's beginnings.

Tonight, here in Washington, the Bicentennial Commission has arranged a mammoth anniversary ball. About 2,000 of the capital's elite will be present in colonial costume.

WASHINGTON
"together—and alone."
by George E. Phair
FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY
They honor him with pious words today,
Extol the virtues of his heart and mind
And scorn the wisdom that he left behind.
"The Father of his Country," they will say
And brush his warning prophecies away.
To waste his children's wealth in distant lands,
To weave a tangled web with clumsy hands,
To rear an alien god with feet of clay.
Mankind he loved, but more he loved his own.
And when at last he felt the hand of age
He gave them counsel for a heritage
And bade them stand together.....and alone.
Men call him Father now, with bended head,

WASHINGTON'S VIEWS VISIONED

What would George Washington have done in the present state of national and world affairs?

This question, asked many times in the bicentennial observance of his birthday was answered in varied ways today by speakers here to deliver addresses in connection with the celebration:

HAMILTON FISH, JR., Congressman, of New York.—Washington would not tolerate the alien Communist with whom we contend. He would deport them. Many Tories were forced to England and Canada after the Revolutionary War and their properties confiscated. He believed in law and order.

EDMUND F. ERK, Pittsburgh Congressman—The government's duty is as the duty of a father to a son. It is the federal duty to give immediate aid to those in distress. Adequate defense, as Washington said, is our best guarantee of permanent peace.

COL. U. S. GRANT III, grandson of Gen. Grant.—Whatever Washington would have done in the present Chinese-Japanese crisis, his course would have been deliberate, well chosen and right.

Hatfield Cautions Against Debt Pleas

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—West Virginians were urged by Senator Henry D. Hatfield in a Washington Day address here today to shun what he termed "insidious propaganda" aimed at cancelation of international debts and participation by the United States in the League of Nations.

Hatfield lauded the memory of George Washington and called for a rededication of the principles enunciated by the first president in his Farewell Address.

Heiress to Marry Inventor's Mechanic

MILFORD, Conn., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Miriam Lake, 20-year-old heiress, granddaughter of Simon Lake, noted submarine inventor, will soon wed Bernard Charter, of Boston, 30, a mechanic and engineer employed by her grandfather at his experimental shop here, it was revealed by her mother, Mrs. Gladys E. Lake.

Charter is the son of Perlin Charter, a chemist employed with the Massachusetts State Department of Public Safety at the State House in Boston.

Berlins Now 4

MRS. BERLIN AND HER FIRST

DAUGHTER BORN TO ELLIN BERLIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Irving Berlin, the tunemaker, has two "wows" now.

One is his "Face the Music," which opened in a Broadway theater last week. The other is a 7¾-pound daughter born to Mrs. Berlin, the former Ellin Mackay, early today. This is the third child born to the Berlins. A daughter was born November 25, 1926; a son was born December 1, 1928, and died of a heart attack 24 days later.

Ohio's 'Daughter' Guest of Governor

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Mrs. Maria Storts Allen, 89, daughter of one of George Washington's soldiers at Valley Forge, has accepted an invitation from Gov. George White to be his guest tonight at a re-enactment of the inaugural ball of 1789, she said today.

The ball will be held at Columbus and Mrs. Storts, called "the only daughter of the American Revolution in Ohio," will begin her trip after laying a wreath on the grave of her father, John Jacob Storts, who joined Washington's army at the age of 11.

'FATHER' LAUDED AT BIRTHPLACE

WAKEFIELD, Va., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Speaking at Wakefield where George Washington, 200 years ago was born the son of Augustine and Mary Ball Washington, J. Sinclair Brown, speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates today lauded the memory of the first President.

A century of family tradition was behind the great Virginian when he joined the colonist's fight for independence, he said. John Washington, his great grandfather, had cast his lot with Nathaniel Bacon in the rebellion against the Royal Gov. Kirkeley, thus identifying the family "with the forces arrayed against the misrule of English kings."

COMTESSE, MAN SHE SHOT WED

NEUILLY-SUR-SEINE, France, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Alice Silverthorne, niece of Mrs. Ogden Armour and formerly the Comtesse Frederick de Janze, was married at the Town Hall here this morning to Raymond de Trafford, for whose shooting she was tried in 1927.

Miss Silverthorne, then the Comteses de Janze, tried to end her own life as well as that of Mr. de Trafford in 1927 on the London boat train at Paris. Both were wounded seriously. At the close of the trial afterward she was given a suspended sentence of six months and was fined $4 for carrying a revolver. She was pardoned in 1929 by President Doumergue.

Franklin Man Dies Of Auto Injuries

FRANKLIN, Pa., Feb. 22.—E. B. Hunter, 80, died today in Franklin Hospital from a fractured hip, suffered in an automobile accident December 12, last. He had a suit pending for $25,000 against the West Ridge Transportation Company for the death of his daughter, Katherine, in an auto accident August 25, 1930.

DISTRICT JOINS IN WASHINGTON TRIBUTE

Religious, Patriotic Rallies Mark Sunday Observance; Numerous Events Today

Patriotic societies, churches and schools vied today in commemorating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, continuing the observance of yesterday and leading up to the city's first official tribute tonight at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel.

Banks and the stock exchange were closed, while flags fluttered from tops of buildings, in yards of homes and along sidewalks in honor of the father of his country.

ARTILLERY SALUTE

A salute of 21 guns fired by the 176th Field Artillery opened Crafton's celebration this morning. The American Legion presented the borough with an American flag while 500 looked on at the new traffic circle. A community celebration is scheduled for tonight in the Crafton High School, with Congressman Guy E. Campbell and Assistant City Solicitor H. M. Irons as the speakers. State Senator Frank J. Harris will preside.

Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, addressed a luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, in the Schenley Hotel. Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, regent, presided.

BISHOP MANN SPEAKS

Bishop Alexander Mann spoke at a special Washington birthday service today in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue.

Congressman Edmund F. Erk arrived from Washington to attend the city's official observance tonight in the William Penn Hotel. Speakers will include Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior; former Gov. John S. Fisher, and Congressman Fish. Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute will be toastmaster.

The uniformed ranks of the 176th Field Artillery last night massed at the Courthouse and marched to Trinity Cathedral, where Dean N. R. H. Moor gave a Washington sermon. The sounding of "taps" and the massing of regimental colors featured the service.

MEETING AT OLD CHURCH

Outdoor services were held at old St. Luke's-Chartiers Episcopal Church, Woodville, in the district Washington visited before the Revolution. Senator Frank J. Harris and Judge W. Heber Dithrich, of Common Pleas Court, were speakers.

Knights Templar of seven Allegheny County commanderies will observe the bicentennial at a meeting tonight in Syria Mosque. Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, III, of Washington, will be the principal speaker.

The planting of American elms was to feature the celebrations today in West View and Overbrook, with school children taking part in the ceremonies.

City Fireman Faces Charge in Beating

Alleged to have attacked Elmer C. Ringer, secretary of the Fifteenth Ward Independent Association, Frank Delaney, 4904 Gertrude street, a city fireman, was to be arraigned today before Alderman Jacob Yeager.

Ringer, in an information, charged that Delaney beat him Friday after accusing him of holding an independent meeting when Delaney had called a regular organization meeting.

4 Flee New Jail, 30 Scorn Chance

READING, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Four men were at large today after sawing their way through a barred window of the new Berks County Jail, crawling into the exercise field, and scaling a 15-foot wall.

Thirty other prisoners in the same cell block who had a chance to escape by the same route preferred to remain in jail.

craft to be taken out of its hangar.

The delicate procedure got under way and the Akron was successfully "walked" out of her gigantic steel berth.

The dirigible was cleared of the hangar and being gently turned around to be attached to the mooring mast preparatory to taking off for her "party ride."

Suddenly, a gust of wind bore down on her stern and despite the gallant efforts of the ground crew her stern smashed violently to the earth.

The sound of crunching steel and ripping fabric followed.

An SOS call was answered by all available sailors and mechanics on duty at the hangar.

RETURNED TO HANGAR

They swarmed to the ropes and held the mighty airship to the ground. Further damage was prevented and the dirigible was eased back toward the hangar.

It had been planned to take the Akron with its distinguished guests on a cruise over New York and Washington during the day.

Recently before a Washington committee, witnesses had testified that the airship was faultily constructed. The Navy Department denied these allegations and hoped that today's flight would demonstrate the worth of the Akron to its congressional guests.

Ambassador Sackett Honored in Germany

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Frederic M. Sackett, American ambassador to Germany, today was awarded an honorary doctor's decree by Tuebingen University, Washington in his home, when he came to this section in 1784 to inspect land he had obtained by grants from the Earl of Dunmore, last of the colonial governors of Virginia.

David Reed, who entertained Washington, was a brother of the grandfather of former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and of the great-grandfather of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania.

YOUTH FLEEING OFFICER SHOT

William Hough, 21, lay in Sewickley Valley Hospital today, recalling vividly how, running from a reputedly "haunted" house in Glen Osborne last night, a bullet from a constable's revolver had sent him sprawling.

Hough was one of five men and three women who had explored the house in Osborne lane. Leaving after the others, Hough was running down a hillside when it was reported, Constable E. R. Gardner, also a Hayesville policeman, fired the bullet which wounded Hough in the thigh.

Gardner explained he had fired several shots into the air and finally fire one into "a disorderly crowd" after they had ignored his order to halt.

One of the party, Samuel Douglas, of Sewickley, said none of them had heard but one shot.

Charges of disorderly conduct were brought against the party, and they were released on their own recognizance by Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan.

Besides Hough, who lives at 309 Elizabeth street, Sewickley, and Douglas, they are Mrs. Douglas, Vera Clay, 20, of Nicholas place, Edgeworth; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lucas and Arthur Soprando, of Leetsdale, and Bert Lindbergh, of Sewickley.

COSGRAVE AID PROMISED TO DE VALERA

Defeated President Offers Support for 'Honorable' Policies to Help Ireland

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—President William T. Cosgrave today promised conditional support of his apparently defeated government party to Eamon De Valera if the latter forms a new Irish government.

President Cosgrave, whose party ran second to De Valera's Fianna Fail in the general election held last Tuesday, said that although his government had "hysterical opposition" during the years it was in power in Ireland, the new government would have from him an opposition which would support it as long as its policies were beneficial to Ireland. He said:

"I am quite unperturbed over the situation. I couldn't compete with the promises of Mr. De Valera and the Fianna Fail. I hope the new government will be an honorable one and that if the oath of allegiance to King George is done away with it will be by negotiations."

De Valera's aim to lead Ireland farther away from Great Britain apparently had hit a stumbling block, however, in his Labor allies.

With 14 districts still unheard from, the standing of the parties in the election of members to the new Dail Eirann was:

Fianna Fail, 65.
Labor, 7.
Government, 49.
Independents, 17.

De Valera thus far has been reticent regarding his plans on the Anglo-Irish treaty, the oath of allegiance to the king, and the imperial conference to be held in Ottawa, Canada, this summer.

DONOHOE DEATH CASE PUSHED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—While intimations came from Greensburg that Tony Bell, confessed killer of Constable Jack Donohoe had told state police of alleged racketeering conditions in Fayette County, District Attorney Newell moved today to bring to trial two men named by Bell as aiding him in the killing.

Robert C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stangoni are accused by Bell with assisting him to shoot Donohoe, near Masontown two years ago. Both men are under arrest, but where they are incarcerated is unknown.

Newell will seek indictments of the men in order to place them on trial in June. Bell was tried on a murder indictment shortly after the killing, but was acquitted. Glenn Allum was also indicted, but never tried. Bell did not implicate him in his confession.

Bell, it is reliably reported, yesterday talked with state police about conditions in Fayette County.

Troopers and Bell have gone over the route traveled by Donohoe the night he was slain while Bell has also confronted Bledsoe. The latter emphatically denied any part in the slaying of which Bell accuses him.

Policeman Hero Killed in Chase

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Motorcycle Sergt. Walter Steinbaker, 34, who won the Bok award for bravery in 1930, died in a hospital yesterday of a fractured skull received when he was thrown from his machine chasing a suspicious motorist.

He was cited for bravery for battling three bandits. In the course of the fight he was shot in the abdomen.

Jailed for Threats In Demanding Food

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Charged with threatening to kill H. E. Wagner, Erie County Poor Director, Tony Bertola, 49, a transient, is in jail awaiting a further hearing. Wagner says Bertola, who was intoxicated, entered his office and demanded food. Bertola was unarmed.

GARNER HAILED BY TEXANS AS PARTY HOPE

By NANN M. KENNEDY
International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 22.—With high hopes of placing a native son in the White House, thousands of Texans here today heard unstinted praise of John N. Garner, of Uvalde, son of the Southwest and Speaker of the House of Representatives. He was described as the choice of the Democratic party, the man best qualified to lead the United States to defeat the Democracy.

It was a state-wide rally in every sense. State's highest state officials mingled with the rank-and-file Democrats united in a common cause to project a movement that shall have spent its force only when "Chapparal Jack" has been elevated to the Presidency.

Scores of Democratic leaders and state officeholders were here anxious to be among original passengers on the Garner bandwagon.

LAUDED BY MAYOR

Gov. Ross Sterling and Mayor C. M. Chambers of San Antonio headed the speakers. In his address, Mayor Chambers said in part:

"San Antonio the heart of Texas, felt that while on this day we were paying a tribute to the father of our country, it would also be appropriate to look to the future of our country.

"So we have called a meeting of all Texas Democrats. We beg them to forget all past differences, and to make a united effort to secure the nomination of a man for President of the United States who belongs, not to one section of the nation, but to all America. The strength of the Democrats is in union, and our danger is in discord.

"Let us not attempt to make a platform, but leave that to the National Convention at Chicago. Rather, let us thoroughly organize the state of Texas for the Hon. John Nance Garner, and then let us pitch a national campaign for his nomination as President of the United States.

"For eight years our taxes have been increased, while we were chasing the Republican rainbow of hope—and as long as Mr. Hoover is our shepherd, we shall be in want. He has fired more blank cartridges, appointed more committees, and has done less for the people than any President the nation has ever had, and the only reason he hasn't appointed a receiver for the nation is, that Republican extravagance has left nothing to receive.

WOLF G. O. P. EMBLEM

"America's car of progress has been wrecked, and the Republican full dinner pail has vanished from the earth. I am informed that the Republican party has changed its party emblem from the elephant to the wolf, because there is a wolf at every citizen's door.

"The Republican party has slain prosperity, and has substituted famine. What this country needs is a leader who knows the road to prosperity, a leader who can start the wheels of industry, fill the pockets of labor and place the farmer where he can find a fair market for his produce. We need a leader who will eliminate extravagance and who will reduce taxes, a leader with courage enough to make foreign nations take their hands out of the United States Treasury, and with courage enough to collect from these foreign debtors what they owe us.

LEADER NEEDED

"We need a leader who knows the difference between prosperity and depression, and who knows the difference between America and Europe—one who stands four-square for America first, a leader who is a rough and ready fighter, a leader of action and of balanced judgment, a leader who can restore confidence in our government, and find employment for millions of our unemployed, and at a living wage—a leader who thinks like the people, who acts like the people, who lives like the people—a leader who will remain on a common level with the great masses of our nation and who will turn gloom into brightness and make the life of the average citizen a joy instead of a curse.

"A leader such as I have described is the Hon. John Nance Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives. On national and international issues he is the best informed man in all of the United States.

"We should support him, not because he is a Texan, but because we know that in all this nation he is the man best qualified to hold the office of President of the United States. He is the hope of the Democratic party."

GARNER SCORES HOOVER RELIEF MOTIVES

timates sent to Congress by the President, the Speaker said.

"It would be absurd, regardless of politics, for us to accept as financial gospel the output of the source of such miscalculation."

CO-OPERATION DENIED

The Speaker declared that thus far the administration has given the Democrats in Congress no co-operation "in the true sense of the word." He cited speeches of cabinet officers lauding the President in an effort to plant the idea that he singlehanded has accomplished everything that is done by Congress.

The President was criticised sharply by the Speaker for his failure to make specific recommendations for the reorganization of the government. Instead, he said, Hoover has asked Congress to "abdicate its prerogatives and give him blanket power to appoint a lot of new officers, and make the government anything he pleases." He added:

"Well, we are not going to grant any such unlimited charter. We, too, have our ideas . . . as to how to effect improvements and economies in the national administration.

"If the President is sincerely desirous of such improvement there is no reason why we should not get together. If he did that he would co-operate. What he seeks instead is to dictate, and nobody can dictate to the Democratic group in Congress."

GARNER'S STATEMENT

Speaker Garner's statement follows in full:

"Co-operation between the two great parties in effecting emergency legislation is a fine thing. When such issues as now confront the country are apt, it is no time for partisan politics. But co-operation does not mean that one party to it shall claim the right to have everything it asks enacted into law, to the exclusion of what the other party deems necessary for the public welfare. The Democrats of the Senate and House of Representatives have sought in every way to clear the track for measures calculated to relieve the public distress and particularly to effect such savings in the cost of government as may make it possible to balance the budget, with the minimum of hardship involved in increased taxes, etc.

"Our course has met with approbation all over the country—in fact, nobody has ventured to criticise us with the exception of the administration, which appears to regard it as requisite not only that the Democrats shall sign on the dotted line, but insists that the administration should have all the credit for whatever is accomplished. Obviously, the Democratic majority of the House subscribes to no such interpretation of its duty.

FULL PARTNERSHIP

"If we are going to be partners in the enterprise of redeeming prosperity, in reducing the distress of the depression, in effecting economies in government, in formulating measures adequate to produce the revenue the government requires—we must be full partners; taking our full share in the responsibilities, and participating in whatever benefits accrue—political or otherwise.

"One of our important tasks—perhaps the most important—is to straighten out the deficiency in the Treasury, that has come after a dozen years of uninterrupted and unhampered Republican control of our finances. Our task has not been made easier by the errors of hundreds of millions of dollars in the budget estimates the President has sent us. It would be absurd, regardless of politics, for us to accept as financial gospel the output of the source of such miscalculation—the administration that permitted the Treasury to get into such a fix.

PREJUDICE ABSENT

"What we are doing is to carefully consider every recommendation that comes from the White House, without prejudice, to accept what in our judgment appears to be worth while and reject or tinker into shape what seems to us futile or worse. We have a right to expect that the administration will take our judgment as impartially as we take theirs. In other words, we regard it as part of the undeclared compact of concert for the public good, that when we have altered an administration measure, the administration co-operate with us in getting it passed instead of jockeying to have its own way exclusively, and without an effort to make the country believe that whenever we do not follow the letter of the President's proposals we are playing politics.

HOOVER LACKS POWER

"It ought to be obvious that the executive has neither sufficient influence with the whole of his party delegation in Congress nor the power to do things by himself and therefore must have participation by the Democrats if we are to reach the national objective. It is well enough to talk of a political truce, but let me tell you that the kind of truce we intend is not that the administration shall continue hostilities while we abstain from them.

"So far we have had no co-operation in the true sense of the word. Such measures as the Glass-Steagall amendment, which has its foundation in legislation frequently sought by Democratic legislators, and as frequently vetoed by the then Republican majorities, are claimed as triumphs for the administration. There is an instance of this in every speech made by one of Mr. Hoover's cabinet, or other administration spokesmen. The purpose is plainly to improve the President's prospects of re-election by planting the idea that he singlehanded has accomplished everything that is done by Congress.

DEMANDS PROGRAM

"Now he has sent us a recommendation for the reorganization of the government. Briefly it consists in a suggestion that Congress abdicate its prerogatives and give him blanket power to appoint a lot of new officers, and make the government anything he pleases. Why did he not send us his actual program? We know that he has been playing with the thought for a dozen years; that he had his charts of bureau consolidations, department mergers, and redistribution of government functions ready a decade ago—even though he has never, until this time, sought to have Congress effect the changes.

"Why has he not told us what he purposes doing and how he means to do it, so that we could accurately judge of the value of his suggestions, instead of adopting his familiar process of asking that we leave it to him?

"Well, we are not going to grant any such unlimited charter. We, too, have our ideas as to how to effect improvements and economies in the national administration. If the President is sincerely desirous of such improvement there is no reason why we should not get together. If he did that, he would co-operate; what he seeks instead is to dictate, and nobody can dictate to the Democratic group in Congress."

Gov. White Scorns Knee Pants and Powdered Wig

UNITED GARNER DRIVE ASSURED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Friends of Speaker John N. Garner were assured today by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, that a spontaneous drive is being made throughout the country to draft the speaker as the Democratic nominee for President, despite his refusal to discuss it.

In the telegram to Jesse M. Brown, of Fort Worth, replying to an inquiry as to Garner's attitude towards friends urging his nomination, Connally said:

"While John N. Garner is not a candidate in the common acceptance of that term, but is busy with his duties as speaker, no American citizen is insensible to the efforts of his friends in advancing his cause toward the presidency of the United States.

"On my own responsibility I feel warranted in assuring you that the spontaneous efforts of his friends will not be unwelcome to those of us who are advancing his cause."

HOLIDAY BRINGS SPEED-UP BY CANDIDATES

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The 1932 race for the presidency picked up considerable momentum today as the nation paused in its ordinary affairs to observe the two hundredth anniversary of the first President.

Down in Texas, enthusiastic friends of Speaker John N. Garner formally launched his candidacy at a mass meeting of state-wide proportions. The Garner-for-President movement is officially under way from this historic date onward.

MURRAY 'LONE WOLF'

In the adjoining state of Oklahoma, Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray tossed his hat into the ring with a characteristically blunt and vigorous statement that he would "make no trades." Murray made it clear that he is a lone wolf in quest of the Democratic nomination. He leaves Oklahoma today for a campaign tour of Indiana, during which he will outline his policies.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Maryland's four-time Governor, in Michigan made his bid for that state's delegates to the Democratic convention. For the first time since his campaign was formally launched six weeks ago, Gov. Ritchie predicted in Detroit that he would win the nomination.

The managers of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, are not idle, either. James A. Farley, chief lieutenant of the Roosevelt forces, has just concluded a series of conferences in Chicago with Democratic leaders from Mid-Western and Western states. He returned to New York optimistically claiming that the Roosevelt candidacy was "sweeping the country" west of the Mississippi.

AWAIT SMITH MOVE

Later this week, ex-Gov. Smith is expected to give his consent to the filing of his name in the Massachusetts primary against Gov. Roosevelt. Then the party fight will be on in earnest.

All of this activity concerns the Democrats. Persistent beating of the highways and byways has failed to produce a really serious contender against President Hoover for the Republican nomination. Ex-Senator Joseph Irwin France, of Maryland, has filed in several primaries, but his quest of the nomination is regarded as a forlorn one at best.

Bandits Ask Safe Be Left Unlocked

Civilization Topic Of B'Nai Lecturer

"Man's Evolving Consciousness" was discussed last night by Mrs. Willard McKay, B'Nai lecturer, in Utility Hall. Like nature, she said, man has progressed out of chaos into the larger groupings of family, tribe, city, state and nation.

ZIEGFELD HERE WITH 'GLORIES' FOR 'HOT-CHA'

and Henderson labored over the script, changing it a bit here, cutting it there and now and then adding a new gag to be tried out on a Pittsburgh audience.

Bert Lahr, the featured comedian, reposed in an easy chair and "kibitzed" advice as the others worked.

A few stories above, in the hotel ballroom, the chorus and some of the principals were running through a rehearsal, smoothing out the few rough spots on a routine that Bobby Connolly, famous dance director, already pronounced as "almost perfect." From Connolly, that's a lot.

Marjorie White, half pint as to size and corn colored as to hair, is there, so are Lahr, June McCloy, whose hair rivals Jean Harlow's, and who holds a contract with Paramount pictures; Buddy Rogers, late of the movies, but now one of the featured players of "Hot-Cha," June Knight, the slim and lithsome ingenue; Tito Coral, the Mexican tenor, and the girls.

And when you say girls in connection with a Ziegfeld show, you say something.

"Ziggy" may have glorified more beautiful girls than these—but it will be hard to remember when.

It might be worth while to mention that one of the current Glorifieds is Mina Ruskin, who until a year ago, lived at 5334 Forbes street, after which she moved to Franklin, Pa., and then to New York where she was "found" by Ziegfeld. Before coming to Pittsburgh, Miss Ruskin lived for several years in Indiana, Pa.—just a local girl who made good in the city. She's a brunette and plenty worth the glorifying.

REHEARSE MELODIES

The rehearsal moves through the routines for "You Can Make My Life a Bed of Roses," "Say What I Want to Hear You Say," and "There I Go Dreaming Again."

They're typical Brown and Henderson tunes—but you ask the composers which is the hit of the show and they'll tell you in chorus:

"You know as much as we do. Wait until the show has been in New York a couple of weeks. The one the audience hums as it leaves the theater is your answer."

"Hot-Cha" came to Pittsburgh from Washington, where it played to packed houses in the National Theater for its first week. From here it goes direct to the Ziegfeld Theater, New York.

PIRATE TROVE HUNT RENEWED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—The aventurous call of "buried treasure" was once more answered here when the small motor vessel Silver Wave put out of Vancouver carrying 24 men who held the hope of uncovering the fabulous pirate wealth reported to lie buried on faraway Cocos Island.

The small craft was headed first for San Pedro, Cal., from where it will proceed 2,200 miles to where Cocos Island rises out of the Pacific, about 400 miles southwest of Costa Rica.

Commanded by Col. J. E. Leckie, the party will try until next October to discover the secrets of the little island, and then decide whether they wish to renew their concession with the Coasta Rican government.

Three times before, expeditions have left Vancouver for Cocos, and returned fruitless, but the present party carries an instrument said to possess treasure detecting powers, and with it they hope to succeed where others have failed.

Fight in Jail Brings Extra Term

It cost Nick Clinckner an extra five-days' jail sentence for disturbing the slumber of Edward Manning in Central Police Station. A fight started and Clinckner was sent to Allegheny General Hospital to have a cut over his eye dressed. At the hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, Manning was fined $5 or five days and Clinckner $5 or 10 days.

Policeman Loses Gun in Holdup

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—A policeman's gun was taken away from him by four robbers in a $4,000 holdup of the R K O Palace Theater here last night.

Appearing suddenly from hiding after the theater closed, the robbers held up Patrolman Howard Hinton, Miss Cecil Neal, cashier, and Edward Stevens, assistant manager. After taking Hinton's revolver, they forced Steven... open a safe.

2 FRENCH FLIERS SAVED AT SEA

PARIS, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Two daring French fliers today were safe aboard the French steamship Timgrad after a narrow escape from death when they were forced down at sea.

The fliers, Pilot Jean Mermoz and his radio operator, Regnier, were adrift six hours in their seaplane, battling heavy seas of the Mediterrean, before they were rescued. They were saved by their radio, which sent out an SOS giving their position.

Mermoz, who holds the world's distance record for hydro-airplanes, left Marseilles yesterday morning for Algiers over the same route on which two French fliers lost their lives in December. They were forced down shortly afterward.

Police Seek Blonde As Bandit Decoy

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—A pretty blonde, garbed in an expensive fur coat, was sought by police today as the decoy for a pair of bandits who held up and robbed two taxicab drivers within a few blocks of each other here during the night. The trio obtained $11.40 from the taxi drivers and both their cabs.

REED OPPOSES BEAM PLANNED CONGRESS CUT TO REACH MOON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—The fight against any reduction in federal salaries was strengthened today when Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, announced his opposition to the salary-slashing campaign of Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho.

Reed wrote C. A. McDowell, of Pulcairn, Pa., a constituent, that if Senators and Representatives failed to earn their present salaries, "the fault rests with the voters." He said the people could retire any legislator who failed to furnish $10,000 a year in service. He added:

"If Congressmen and Senators do not earn their salaries or if it is true they are paid more than they earn in private life, the fault rests with the voters and not with those whom the voters elect."

Reed pointed out that the average Senator and Congressman must save enough out of his $10,000 a year salary to pay the heavy costs of his election campaigns. He added that members of Congress must maintain two homes, one in Washington and one in the state or district they represent. In addition to this expense, he added, many members must maintain an office force out of their own pockets because of the heavy demands of constituents.

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Realization of the age-old dream of astronomers to communicate with a heavenly body is now within the range of possibility, scientists admitted here today.

Very soon, the 100-inch telescope of the Mount Wilson, Cal., Observatory of the Carnegie Institution, will be connected with a photo-electric cell for the experiment.

The experiment will be to hurl a beam of intense light from the earth to the moon and record the light as it rebounds to the earth by means of the photo-electric cell.

Auto Horn Halts Stampede of Steers

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—On occasion, the raucous automobile horn has, it seems, a certain ability to charm.

When other means failed yesterday, Patrolman Noga blew one and some two dozen steers stopped stampeding through city streets, paused to listen a moment and returned to wend their tranquil way from a nearby farm to the slaughter house.

Dames of Malta Dance To Be Given Wednesday

The annual Washington dance of the Dames of Malta Protective Association activity committee is to be given Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Bryn Mawr Auditorium, Larimer avenue and Auburn street, for the benefit of the Queen Esther Home for Children.

There will be old-time and modern dancing. Mrs. Myrtle Holler is general chairman. Mrs. Elizabeth Simmons is dance chairman, and other chairmen include Mrs. Lillian Forsythe, bridge; Mrs. Anna Saragrivs, "500"; Mrs. Anna Kline, euchre; Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson, Old Maid; Miss Hazel Schofield, luncheon; Mrs. Louise Conn, tickets, assisted by her daughter, Miss Dorothy Conn, and Mrs. Martha Haug, publicity.

301-Pound Boy Marks 14th Birthday

ALTON, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Robert Wadlow, who towers 7 feet 5 inches, weighs 301 pounds and wears No. 21 shoes was celebrating his fourteenth birthday here today.

Robert is a pupil in the ninth grade in the East Junior High School here. Despite his unusual height and weight the boy is well up in his studies and makes good grades.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wadlow. Robert's parents are both of normal height, the father being 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 140 pounds.

Congress of Women at Chicago Fair

World Delegates To Convene In 1933

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A "World Congress of Women" is to be the contribution of the women of the nation to the 1933 World's Fair in Chicago and Pennsylvania clubwomen are interested in it, not only because it is a woman's project, but because Mrs. John A. Frick, former president of the State Federation, and still a director in the General Federation, represents this state on the committee.

You may remember that at the 1893 Fair, woman's place in civic life was recognized and the women had a building of their own on the Fair Grounds. The coming exposition is to be known as "A Century of Progress" and the progress will be shown by women exhibiting side by side with men in the Social Science Building, thus recognizing that men and women have become equals in civic life.

21 Groups To Assist

The 21 co-ordinating groups of the National Council of Women, which of course includes the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is the agency through which the women's groups will conduct their congress, bringing to Chicago women from all the great nations of the world for one week.

In looking about for a way to finance the tremendous project, the women received from the Postal Telegraph Company an offer of $100,000 as a gift, the only requirement being 1,000,000 signatures, to prove to the company the sincerity of the women. All component organizations of the National Council have agreed to the arrangement and books will be supplied by the telegraph company and be at their offices for the signatures, which, of course, entail no obligations upon the signers. So, you see, it can in nowise be considered a commercial proposition, although the National Council has offered one-half cent per name to the organization which the signer represents.

Chalfant, president of the southwestern district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women; Mrs. H. J. Fox, of the County Federation; Mrs. R. B. Robinson, of the Pennsylvania W. C. T. U.; Mrs. G. C. Ruff, of the Union Missionary Association; Mrs. A. H. Bowman, chairman of the Cause and Cure of War Committee of Western Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Harry G. Samson, of the Women's Department of the Council of Churches. Mrs. Jane Lang Hervey, contralto, and Miss Ruth Parker, soprano, will sing, accompanied by Miss Marie Heskey.

SHOE AND HANDBAG ENSEMBLES ADD CHARM TO SPRING ATTIRE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—It seems to be that although the shoes and the handbag are of necessity so far apart from each other they are really soul-mates. But at last, this fact is receiving proper recognition, for nearly every smart shop here now shows ensembles of shoe and bag, and rare it is nowadays to find a shop without several examples of this smart combination. For smart it is, and guaranteed to dress up the simplest spring coat or suit and give it new charm and chic. More and more, we are co-relating our accessories and doing away with slipshod methods of selecting things that are totally unrelated and have no reason for being worn together. Careful buyings is the greatest secret of good dressing, as many women have discovered who were wont to buy indiscriminately, only to find that their appearance never really gave them satisfaction and that, when it came to it, they never had anything to wear. But good clothes, slowly and wisely selected with harmonious accessories, will give unlimited service and prolonged satisfaction.

WE DISPLAY today some extremely smart shoes, two of them with matching bags. All from Perugia. The other shoes also have purses, even though they have not been sketched. First is a shoe in very fine fish skin tinted dark green, this making the heel and vamp. The back and sides are of matching green kid which passes over the instep, where it is padded and slashed to reveal a lining of palest green kid. The pipings are likewise of the pale green kid. The purse is of green kid with the curving flap bordered with a padded and slashed roll similar to its mate, the shoe. It, too, reveals a lining of palest green kid. The second shoe is of fine, supple, patent leather. It, too, is padded and slashed to reveal a lining of white kid, with very narrow pipings of white kid edging the top and vamp of the shoes.

THE THIRD of the trio is in finest navy blue kid. The front has a rolled over tongue of dark red snakeskin. The pipings and the narrow, delicate heel are of the red snakeskin. Also shown is another ensemble from Perugia. It consists of an elaborate sandal and purse. The sandal is of gold kid with black patent kid. The purse is of red kid with a roped top combining the three materials used in the shoe.

Only Six Days More to Deduct 15%

From the Lowest Furniture Prices In a Generation

The importance of this February discount should be realized by every home that needs furniture. It is a proposition that is only available at this time.

Its importance is magnified, this year, by the fact that furniture prices, totally, are at the lowest point in a generation.

Everybody is ready to concede this fact, and the furniture industry is on record to the effect that furniture prices have not only touched bottom, but also that higher prices are inevitable. Furniture manufacturers may have been willing to liquidate surplus stocks on hand at a loss, but they are not going to manufacture new furniture at a loss. They prefer to shut down their factories to running them at a loss.

This points to higher furniture prices in the near future, and with the restoration of normal business conditions, true values, which means considerably higher prices, are bound to be restored. All of these indisputable facts are matters to be taken into consideration by everyone needing new furniture—with the February Sale having only six more days to go.

During this month, and at this store, a 15% discount is offered throughout our entire furniture stocks, without exception. This applies to specially purchased furniture, bought under the favorable condition of present markets; to furniture previously reduced in price (some as much as 50%); to every piece of furniture in stock, regardless of its former price or true worth. It applies to single pieces and suites, to our very moderately priced Stylthrift furniture, to the very fine decorative furniture of our Studio Galleries, and to all the furniture between.

Furthermore you have the privilege of convenient payments, permitting the cost to be distributed over a period of months.

The proposition is one that speaks for itself. Everything that may be said of any other furniture sale may be said of this one, and in addition there are the larger Horne assortments, and 15% discount which is to be had only here and only during February.

Typical of the Fine Furniture Available at 15% Less Than the Present Low Prices.

This sofa and chair ably illustrate the type of furniture preferred in modern homes. The 18th Century English influence is noticeably prominent in the gracefully carved mahogany frames . . . the outlining in antique nail heads, the slender arm rests and the comfortably high backs.

These pieces may be chosen in matching coverings, or in the popular contrasted manner. A variety of other chairs which will harmonize with this sofa is also available.

SOCIETY WOMAN ASSAILS FESS IN 'DRY' ROW

Prohibition Foe Accuses Senator of Evasiveness In Ignoring Questionnaire

CLEVELAND, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—A dispute over prohibition between Senator Simeon D. Fess, Ohio Republican, and the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform broke into the open here today when Mrs. Amassa Stone Mather, Cleveland, made public correspondence between them.

Mrs. Mather, wealthy society leader, is national vice chairman of the women's organization and Ohio chairman.

She accused Senator Fess of evasiveness in not replying to a questionnaire sent out by her organization. The letters stated Fess replied that he never had "allowed myself to be a party to any propaganda either put out by the liquor people or those opposed."

He added that during the bonus agitation there were 1,061 pieces of mail in one of five deliveries at his office in one day, He said:

"All of this was thrown into the wastebasket, first, because it represented no intelligent thought on the part of the sender, and, second, it was nothing but an effort of manufactured clamor."

Mrs. Mather termed the questionnaire "a straightforward letter from a constituent."

The questionnaire, sent to all congressmen and senators, asked whether the recipient was willing to vote to consider, and vote in favor of, a proposal to submit the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to state conventions.

Three copies were sent to Fess, National Republican chairman, Mrs. Mather said, without a reply. Four letters later passed between the Senator and Mrs. Mather, she said.

SUITOR SHOOTS GIRL, SELF

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 22.—Helen Bower, 18, of Westmoreland City, near here, was in the Westmoreland County Hospital here today, suffering from a bullet wound inflicted, state police said, by her sweetheart, John Force, 19, of Phoenixville, Chester County. After shooting the girl, Force turned the gun on himself, police said, inflicting a wound in his chest. Both are in a serious condition.

The shooting occurred in the doorway of the girl's home just after she had told Force that she was tired of his friendship and did not want him to return, police said. The girl told police her visitor made a similar attempt on her life two weeks ago and she disarmed him. He was jealous, Miss Bower told police.

State Policemen George W. Kercher and Charles W. Taylor, who questioned the youth in Westmoreland Hospital, said he admitted the shooting.

ESSAY WRITERS INSPIRED BY ANNIVERSARY

Many Scripts Submitted In Contest; Thousands More Are in Preparation

The inspiration of George Washington moved through the country and Western Pennsylvania in particular today—the two hundredth anniversary of his birthday.

It fell on everyone, but especially the youth under 21 who are trying to catch the first President's vision and transmit it into their essays on the farewell addres.

Already a number of essays have been received by the Washington contest editor of the Sun-Telegraph, and thousands more are in state of preparation. The scripts must be in the hands of school authorities or the contest editor before April 4.

The classifications and prizes:

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay, not to exceed 100 words in length, in any class by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length, by any person between the ages of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 500 words in length, by any child in any high school, gold medal for first, silver for second and bronze for third.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal; for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in the grammar grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5 there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

BRIDGE STARS OPEN TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Josephine Culbertson, Oswald Jacoby and Sidney Lenz, participants in the recent bridge battle of the century, were among the contestants in a series of important contract and auction bridge tournaments which got under way in the Hotel Roosevelt today.

P. Hal Sims' famous "Four Horsemen" team, and the Bridge World team—minus the services of Ely Culbertson, who was ill, also entered.

Today's meeting began a week's intensive day and night competition for three major contract titles. Play for the Banfield cup, an event restricted to teachers, also began.

A unique ruling adapted for the series calls for a $25 deposit with each protest made in the course of play, and it may set a precedent. Designed to prevent disputes and delay, it calls for forfeit of the deposit if the protest is not upheld.

SCHOOL CROWDS BRING CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—School superintendents were told today that the recent rapid increase in school population had created problems more momentous than any arising from the nation's present economic strife.

Charles H. Judd, dean of the School of Education, University of Chicago, addressing the annual convention of the Department of Superintendence, National Education Association, said:

"This crisis is a symptom of a new social order."

He attributed the addition of 5,000,000 children to the American school systems from 1920 to 1930 to "forces originated in an industrial system which has substituted machines for human hands and has become so complex and exacting that it no longer desires the labor of young people."

McSparran Blames Farm Woes on Tariff

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—John A. McSparran, Secretary of Agriculture, today said the real downfall of agriculture began 60 years ago when this nation entered upon the policy of taking care of business by creation of a tariff on imports.

Speaking at the meeting of Group Five of the Pennsylvania State Bankers' Association, McSparran said that minor farm products staples could be given some protection by the tariff, but that none could be given the major staples. He described the fault with the tariff as being its inability to control international conditions.

Attending Mrs. Hess, who will wear her wedding gown, will be her bridesmaid, Mrs. E. F. W. Stellhorn, of Columbus, O. The Rev. Theodore Stellhorn, of Sandusky, O., a brother of Mrs. Hess, will read the ceremony.

The Rev. Mr. Hess has been pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church for 15 years. They have three daughters, Mrs. William J. Patton, Mrs. A. A. Thompson, Jr., and Mrs. E. L. Hax, all of Pittsburgh, and four grandchildren.

NEW MAGNETS POWERFUL

Magnets of cobalt steel so powerful that they will run machinery on the other side of a thin steel partition or repel each other with such force as to cause one of them to float in the air have been developed by P. H. Brace, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

According to Brace, the cobalt steel permanent magnets surround themselves with five times as much energy as ordinary steel magnets. The new type of magnet has already been used in testing locomotive rods, locating oil wells and in sound apparatus for the use of the deaf and dumb.

NOT A Clue!

SCHOOL WAS OVER—where was Mary Ann? Annoyed and anxious, Mrs. Bender looked up and down the street. The child was nowhere in sight.

Alarmed, Mrs. Bender ran next door. "Oh, Mrs Bird," she cried, "Mary Ann hasn't come home! May I use your telephone to call the school?" Not a clue from the school. As the afternoon waned, Mrs. Bender became frantic. The whole neighborhood took up the search.

Then Mary Ann came home, proudly in an automobile. "I was playing with Billy Sharp," she explained. "His mother wanted to tell you, but we have no telephone, so I waited for Mr. Sharp to bring me home."

"We have no telephone!" echoed Mrs. Bender. "But from now on we will. I wouldn't go through that again for anything!"

As an everyday convenience the TELEPHONE is worth many times its low cost. In emergencies it is priceless.

Patriotic Song Composed by Pittsburghers

ALBERT D. LIEFELD

Selection Declared Appropriate to Bi-Centennial

A song composed by two Pittsburghers has been selected by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission as a suitable material to be used in observance of the bicentennial. The song is "All Hail, America." The music is by Albert D. Liefeld, and the words are by the Rev. Walter E. Schuette.

Mr. Schuette

Liefeld is a music instructor and the Rev. Schuette, of Sewickley, is president of the Eastern District of the American Lutheran Church. The composition was first sung in 1910 by several hundred Allegheny High School students, directed by Liefeld.

BAR REVEALED BY DRY RAID

Prohibition agents today reported a raid yesterday in which they found a 22-foot bar at 913 Gerst way. Beer and whisky were seized and Gustave Landy was arrested, according to the agents.

E. M. Graves was arrested and his automobile seized, agents said, when 10 gallons of moonshine were found in his car near Belle Vernon. Joe Valley was reported arrested in a raid on 6243 Broad street, where it was said beer, alcohol, gin, and whisky were seized.

Thousands Would See Powers Hanged

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Applications from thousands of persons who want to witness the execution of Harry F. Powers, March 18, are clogging the state prison mails. Warden A. C. Scroggins said most of the requests are from persons residing in West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland. He explained, however, that only the usual limited number of persons, about 20 or 25, will be permitted to see the West Virginia matrimonial agent put to death. Powers will be hanged for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler-Lemke, of Northboro, Mass.

Radio Sales Expert To Speak at Pitt

Benjamin Soby, director of sales promotion of Westinghouse radio stations, will deliver two addresses tomorrow to students at the University of Pittsburgh. The first will be delivered during the afternoon sessions of the advertising classes of the School of Business Administration, and the second before night students at the Chamber of Commerce Building. His subject will be "Radio in Advertising and Sales Promotion."

U. S. Sailor Killed When Boom Crashes

PANAMA, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Russell S. Kelly, first-class seaman, of Valdosta, Ga., was killed yesterday when a boom wire on the cruiser Augusta snapped and dropped a whale boat on his head.

Other sailors had narrow escapes as the boat crashed to the deck and the boom struck the ship's airplane, cutting it in half. The Augusta was docked at Balboa on the way to Hawaii.

Army Flier Found Wounded in Auto

A pistol was beside him on the seat of the car. Little hope was held for his recovery at a Fort Sam Houston Hospital.

16 Patients Saved As Hospital Burns

DETROIT, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Sixteen patients were carried to safety yesterday when fire threatened to destroy the General Hospital in suburban Dearborn.

The hospital, of 35-bed capacity, occupied a converted three-story residence. Two floors were destroyed.

'BLUES' SINGER DROWNS SELF

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Miss Maud E. Moffett, 30, who as "Eleanor Kingston" thrilled audiences for 10 years with "blues" songs, was dead tonight—a suicide in Lake Quinsigamond. She chopped a hole in the ice and drowned herself, police said.

Miss Moffett returned to her home here yesterday after 10 years trouping about the country in musical shows. She left ostensibly to return a book to a library and failed to return.

Her coat was found on a wharf near Lincoln Park by Eric G. Flodin, who went to the lake intending to go skating. He notified police.

In a pocketbook in a pocket of the coat was found an unsigned note which read:

"I can't explain it, bu——."

FORMER STATE OFFICIAL DIES

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Frederick Rasmussen, former state Secretary of Agriculture, died of heart attack in his home here yesterday. He was 56.

Rasmussen resigned as professor of dairy husbandry at Penn State College to become head of the Agriculture Department in the Sproul administration from 1919 to 1923. When he died he was executive secretary of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers.

Rasmussen was born in Hald, Denmark. He came to the United States in 1899, and was graduated from Iowa State University in 1905. He became a citizen in 1912. During the World War he was with the American Expeditionary Force in France, directing the establishment of dairies at base hospitals.

Gov. Pinchot once termed Rasmussen the "father of the Pennsylvania farm show," held here annually.

MYSTERY FLIER READY TO HOP

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Nathaniel C. Browne, Texas pilot, will take off some day this week on his mystery flight to capture the world's long distance air record.

His nine-cylindered Fokker airplane was in the hangar of Capt. Harry Jones here, all ready for the hop-off.

But Browne refused to say definitely when the start would be made. Edward A. Muldowney, of Scranton, Pa., who arrived with Browne, likewise maintained secrecy. He said:

"When the time arrives, 'Brownie' will give out a statement. We'll be off within two days."

It was generally believed Browne would attempt a solo flight to Buenos Aires. Muldowney, World War aviator, reputedly is financial backer.

Ocean Flier Hurt In Australia Crash

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Charles T. P. Ulm, Australian aviator, who flew the Pacific Ocean in 1928 with Charles Kingsford-Smith, was injured seriously yesterday when his airplane crashed into high-tension wires on the way here from Sydney and fell to earth.

He and a passenger, J. A. Kerr, were rushed to a military hospital here. The force of the impact was so great that the plane's motor was hurled 50 yards. The gasoline tank exploded and started a grass fire.

Doug Fairbanks, the Elder, To Burlesque Robinson On Talk Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1932 by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22.

This new South Sea film of Doug Fairbanks will be a burlesque on "Robinson Crusoe."

The day before he sailed for Tahiti, Doug was describing the story to a small group in his dressing-room at United Artists.

Briefly the plot calls for Doug's character to leave a yacht accompanied only by a small dog. Through exercise of ingenuity, to support life on a desert island. Paralleling the Crusoe legend, there's a savage, who will be called "Friday the Thirteenth."

Doug Fairbanks

The whole adventure will be filmed in a spirit of farce and slapstick comedy. The title of the picture, in the same vein, will be "The Tropics Knight."

Hollywood doesn't expect its famous wanderer to return before two or three months.

THIS ONE RINGS THE BELL

Take is from Bert Kalmar. Hollywood is not so much interested in whos who, as whos through.

AND SO TO GOSSIP

Jottings at a Hollywood party—Helen Twelvetrees in red hostess pajamas. Husband Frank Woody aiding to make the house-warming a memorable affair. Bill Seiter tells that Laura La Plante's play has been held over a second week in Seattle. Bob Armstrong insists he plays golf by ear. Someone points out the new home of Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay across the street. Joan Crawford and Doug, Jr., are a little way down the block. They say the silver service for the Fay-Stanwyck home is being imported from England. Chester Morris tells about receiving letters from another Chester Morris, who lives in Melrose, Long Island. And so it went. The Woodys can consider their house warmed.

Joan Crawford

Ginger Rogers is excited over selling her first song, "Used To Be You." Rudy Vallee crooned it the other evening . . . Junior Laemmle collects stamps, at least he still has the fine collection his father bought him several years ago in Dresden. . . . Joe E. Brown calls Mata Hari "that big wig picture." . . . While in San Francisco, Joe paid a visit to San Quentin. He was amazed to hear a familiar voice hail him. It turned out to be a fellow who had sung in the chorus of two of Joe's musicals. He's up for pulling a fast one on a bank. . . . Joe also cracked a couple of jokes for the women inmates. . . . Clara Phillips, Los Angeles hammer-murderess, was a listener.

WHAT THEY'RE DOING

They tell me that Randolph Scott, Lupe Velez's current flame, is to play a part in the new George Arliss picture at Warners. Mr. Scott, as you may be aware, is under contract to Paramount, where he landed shortly after appearing in a play here for Henry Duffy.

With Chic Sale recovered, shooting has started at M. G. M. on "Limpy." Ralph Graves, who writes or acts as the opportunity offers itself, will play Jackie Cooper's father in this picture. Dorothy Peterson will be his mother.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: The next time you hand out any orchids, toss one at William Desmond, an actor recently with Walser Whiteside on tour . . . While in town he learned that the Union Church in West Forty-eighth street is where if you buy a meal you automatically give one to an actor or actress who cannot afford the price of a meal . . . So Mr. Desmond takes along his friends to dine there and besides paying for the food he always contributes a dollar or so more . . . I wish you'd mention it, for then maybe some of the actors who can afford to do it will copy Desmond's fine act . . . The Palace Theater fire came just when Lou Holtz began his first week as opposition to the theater that paid him $6,000 per week. So Richy Craig, Jr., phoned to say that he saw Holtz trying to put out the blaze with a blow-torch!

A chap named Thomas J. O'Donohue, of Marine avenue, Brooklyn, has his own cards on which he describes himself as a "professional gigolo" . . . That's the first one that ever admitted it, anyhow. Another reason why Counsellor F. K. can't sleep is that Bettina Hall, leading lady for "Cat and the Fiddle," is too beautiful. He spends a fortune on orchids. A friend of mine saw a sign hanging on the safe of the Nat'l Biscuit Co. (Brooklyn Division) . . . It reads: "This safe is not locked and contains no money" . . . Your mother called. I'm getting her a picture of Walda, the one you like so much.

Jimmy Durante's orchestra is marking time at the Ballyhoo until Jimmy returns shortly . . . Please leave my check . . . Nanette Guilford's ex Max Rosen, the concert violinist, takes Mrs. H. Liveright out when Mr. L. is too busy . . . Norma Talmadge and G. Jessel don't care who knows it now . . . Texas Guinan called. Said to tell you she loves you and that she's had more fights about you than with you.

The Public Library at 42nd and Vth avenue has become the most luxurious lodging house in the world. Every night dozens of derelicts, until closing time at 10, take a nap on the marble benches . . . Charlotte Milburn won $5,000 at backgammon last Saturday, and the gent from whom she won the wager welched . . . Charlotte, you know, broke her betrothal to the handsome Reggie Foster. She has a new beau . . . Not Howard Hughes, although they are pals . . . At a restaurant on 10th avenue, near 23rd street, they tell you to ask for Mahatma Gandhi . . . Bill Morrow's simile is good. As bored as an Olympic bob-sledder on a roller-coaster. Bill also says some of us are driven to drink by women, others by business reverses, but most of us depend on cab drivers.

Perry Stephens, of Portland, Me., forwards a epitaph for you: "Here Lies Walter Winchell in the Dirt He Loved So Well" . . . Not bad . . . There's a woman student enrolled at Columbia, a Japanese. Here chiefly in the interests of securing universal suffrage for her native countrywomen. She is outlawed by Japan for her political views but she wears the clothes of her ancestors, silken robes, wooden shoes, etc. . . . The newsreels could use that one . . . David O. Alber has a merciless truth: "As ruthless as the dial on a radio."

Eli Lloyd Hoffman phoned. Said he hopes all your children go to college and become publicity seeking professors . . . Never depend on press agents because look what happened . . . Two Broadwayokels asked a press agent for a pair of seats to a show . . . The exploiter promised to leave them. So the husbands decided to send their wives instead, and the husbands called up a set of blondes . . . But the press agent ran true to form and forgot to leave the pasteboards, as an old-timer would call them, and the wives went home and there you are, as the saying goes . . . So a pair of attorneys have a pair of new cases and you have a new paragraph . . . You praised Prexy Frederick Robinson, of the College of the City of N. Y., and rapped those "Van-Dyck Bearded Fellows," when Robinson himself is a Van-Dycker! . . . A chap named Jerry called: Said he knows a guy who is so conceited that when addressing envelopes he always writes his own name on the back first . . . All these cracks at Garbo's big feet are not nice . . . From what I understand she's merely wearing shoes that once were columnists' hats!

Did you hear anything about a James O'Keefe, whose pappy is a State Legislator in Illinoy, pursuing a neice of Carl Laemmle, object matrimony? . . . Check . . . Mildred Bailey and this lad have written a ditty called "I'm That Way About You." Remick may publish. Seems to me there's been a ditty by that name already in a show. Not sure . . . H. Lincoln Dunn, of New Haven, called. Said to tell you that you make your mistakes, but you can take it, and that he'd rather be that way than perfect like most people think they are . . . Smott crack . . . Day was uneventful.—Your Girl Friday.

Mark Hellinger Story To Be Screened

W. S. Van Dyke will direct "Night Court," a story by Mark Hellinger and Charles Beahan, for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Walter Huston is the only member of the cast selected so far. Continuity and dialogue for "Night Court" are by Bayard Veiller and Lenore Coffee. Van Dyke's last picture was "Tarzan, the Ape Man," not yet released.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

All right, Harry, we'll tell 'em. (Harry is Harry Brown, manager of Mr. Nixon's favorite Pittsburgh playhouse.) He wants the folks to know that the impression that there are no seats to be had for Mr. Ziegfeld's new show, "Hot-Cha," is wrong. He says that although there is a heavy sale for tonight, there are single seats and second balcony seats left. For other nights there are seats on all floors. This announcement, he adds, is for the benefit of the public of Pittsburgh, which never yet has witnessed the spectacle of a performance of a Ziegfeld show for which a single ticket remained unsold.

Small Timer says men hold their age as well as women, but are far behind in the matter of withholding it.

Charles H. Crocker-King, a fine actor, who plays in support of Ethel Barrymore in "The School for Scandal" current attraction in the Alvin as a Professional Players' offering, has been seen frequently in Pittsburgh in late years in varied characters, from an English "red-coat" in the Revolutionary War, and a sort of demon in melodrama, to a gay cavalier in a recent operetta, counting a coupla seasons as recent. McKay Morris is another name in the cast that indicates its high caliber.

Small Timer says considering the result, as it exists today, it was not a snake that worked on Eve but a monkey.

Buddy Rogers, as a guest of Speaker John N. Garner, of the House of Representatives, caused a lot of excitement when he appeared in the visitors' gallery the other day . . . After Maurice Chevalier completes his current week on a New York stage, he will return to Hollywood . . . James Dunn, who has been in the East two months is to return to Hollywood at once to begin work in "Little Teacher." . . . Chic Sale will be in the support of Jackie Cooper in his new starring film, "Limpy," on which he has begun work.

Railroad Melodrama On Harris Screen

Two feature pictures are being seen in the Harris. One is "Girl of Rio," featuring Dolores Del Rio. This is a romance of old Mexico. The other is "The Cannonball Express," a railroad melodrama. The cast includes Tom Moore, Rex Lease and Lucille Brown.

'Hell Divers' Two More Days in Sheridan

"Hell Divers" concludes its three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square tomorrow night. It is a drama of the air. Wallace Beery and Clarke Gable are co-featured. The picture recently had a downtown showing.

MUSIC

Robert Goldsand

Y. M. & W. H. A.

PROGRAM

Organ Prelude ..... Bach
Sonata in B flat major ..... Mozart
Sonata, opus 110 ..... Beethoven
Sonatine ..... Ravel
Etude ..... Stravinsky
Klavierstuck, opus 11, No. 2 ..... Schonberg
Gavotte ..... Prokofieff
Allegro baharo ..... Bartok
Fantasie ..... Chopin
Feux follets ..... Liszt

The Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association gave Pittsburgh another musical star last night when Robert Goldsand, Viennese pianist, gave his recital. It was a program of magnificent proportions commensurate with the musicianly qualities of the player. From the beginning the audience realized they were to hear a virtuoso who could remain on the highest peaks.

Mr. Lissfelt

Goldsand's playing is marked first of all by an unwavering devotion to such details that make for true style. I cannot agree with his method of tone production, however, for with slightest relaxation of his upper body he could produce a less hard and far more flexible tone. That tone would then make Bach more sonorous with less effort. Mozart more limpid without sacrificing one iota of clarity and delicacy which he otherwise obtains, and Beethoven more colorful. Yet we shall have to look far to find another who can maintain the meaning of these three classic composers more accurately.

Of the group of moderns, Ravel's Sonatine is the most agreeable music. It wanted lightness to be entirely right. The Stravinsky is virtuoso music that can vie with the most difficult of Liszt. It was played brilliantly and had to be repeated at once. Schoenberg's is a good study in discordant and detached melodies. Prokofieff plays about with new dynamic effects for the piano and arrives at most amusing results in his Gavotte. Bartok, too, establishes new resonant qualities for the instrument.

Of Goldsand's Chopin I should like to reserve judgment until hearing more of it. The Fantasy is far more poetic than he conceives it, and only in the march theme did he strike the true note as far as tone goes. Liszt's "Feux Follets" was stunning in its swiftness.

As encores came one of the truest readings of Mozart's "Alla Turca" that I have ever heard, a virile march of Prokofieff, a Scriabine Etude for left hand alone and Goldsand's own arrangement of Schubert's "Marche Militaire." May we suggest that Goldsand give us an evening of Beethoven sonatas. That, too, should be something to remember.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

How Modern Women Lose Pounds of Fat Swiftly—Safely

Gain Physical Vigor — Youthfulness With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat, if you don't feel a superb improvement in health, an gloriously energetic, vigorously alive, your money gladly returned.

"The Best that Present Circumstances Permit"

ON the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, it is interesting to recall what Washington said in 1796 in regard to the commercial policy of America. He said it was "the best that present circumstances and mutual opinion will permit, but temporary, and liable to be from time to time abandoned or varied, as experience and circumstances shall dictate."

What he said is just as true now as it was in 1796. In order to succeed, any nation or business must adapt itself to the society it serves. For example, supplying public demand for high quality food at low prices has made A & P successful in business.

We are striving to give the public of today what it wants, and we plan to keep in the forefront by adapting our business to the needs and wishes of the public of tomorrow.

The Story of John N. Garner

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

CHAPTER II.

Young John N. Garner started out in boyhood handicapped physically. He was much like Theodore Roosevelt in this respect.

Like the expounder of the "Strenuous Life," it was not until he neared maturity that the effects of vigorous contact with the out-of-doors, with much hard riding, hunting, fishing and adventures in forest and field, gave him rugged strength, an amazing vitality, and a never failing endurance.

He learned his alphabet at his mother's knee, and when, under the tutelage of Aunt Kitty, he had reached the point where he could spell cat with his eyes shut, it was decided that he should go to school.

Nowadays in the rural districts comfortable buses pick up the kids of school age along the main-traveled roads, and carry them off to well-heated public schools, located in convenient centers. Little John N. Garner absorbed his early education at that fount of wisdom, the old-fashioned country school, a small, bare, unpainted building, on the edge of a pine clearing.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN N. GARNER . . . AT HOME IN UVALDE, TEX.

Trudged to School

It was three miles from home, and John walked there every day. When he had finished his daily task with the three Rs, he trudged back home again, as he had gone, on foot. It was still the Indian country, and often passing tribes flitted through the forest as the children were reciting their lessons to Prof. F. E. Butler, who was the future Speaker's first teacher, and is still held in grateful recollection.

It is a tradition in the Red River country that young John Garner was a pretty smart fellow, but that he wouldn't study. He was mischievous, and full of good humor, with a great fondness for practical jokes.

One beautiful moonlight night young Garner, dressed in his best Sunday clothes, escorted one of the village belles, by name Sallie Jackson, to an old-fashioned campmeeting, held under a bush arbor lighted by lanterns. There was a big crowd, and John's girl becoming separated from him, he went in search of her. The evangelist saw him coming down the aisle, and said: "Young man, are you looking for salvation?" "No," replied the budding statesman, with a humorous twinkle in the eye, "I'm looking for Sal Jackson."

There lived at Blossom Prairie during his early childhood James Walpole, a scholarly man, and a cousin of the elder John N. Garner. He now took the future Speaker in hand, and gave him a good grounding in some of the branches of the higher learning. But schooling came hard, at first, and, for another thing, there was always a great deal of work for a boy to do on a farm.

Young Garner did his share, milking the cows, feeding the stock, planting in the spring, and harvesting in the fall. Also there were miles upon miles of fences to be ridden, to see that the cattle were kept within their lawful bounds. He developed into a first-class cowboy, and acquired the unmistakable walk of the cow country.

An Expert Hunter

When young John would take his gun down from its pegs over the fireplace, Mrs. Garner would make no further preparations for dinner—she knew that John always brought home a bag of game, wild turkey, wild ducks, or perhaps a deer. He was an expert with the rod as with the gun, and hunting and fishing have remained his best loved amusements.

But life is not all game trails and cattle range. By the time the boy had got well into his 'teens, he began to show signs of an ambition for learning. Now and then itinerant teachers came into the settlement, pitched their tents for awhile, as it were, and went on their way. John added this and that to his store of knowledge, but it was hardly enough.

Then came his first adventure. He does not mention it in his brief biography in the Congressional Directory, but in his early youth, he journeyed back into Tennessee, whence his ancestor had come, and spent a year at Vanderbilt University. After he had been elected Speaker, the university searched the records, and established a previously unsuspected fact in which it now takes great pride.

Joins Law Firm

After the first—and only—term, the boy returned to Blossom Prairie, and then began the study of the law in a private law office in Clarksville, Texas, the county seat of Red River County. He made unusual progress, absorbing Blackstone and Coke as a sponge absorbs water. He was admitted to the bar in 1890, at the age of 22.

The firm with which he studied was composed of Capt. M. L. Sims and W. L. Wright, both leading lawyers in that part of Texas. While in Clarksville, he boarded at the home of W. P. Hopkins, and there laid the foundation of a lifelong friendship.

The climate of Red River County had never agreed with the boy, who moreover was seriously threatened with tuberculosis. His condition was not improved by the enervating air of his own part of the state, and he decided to go to the higher altitude of Uvalde County. This plan he put into execution as soon as he had been admitted to the bar.

In Uvalde, the county seat of Uvalde County, he met another young Red River boy, somewhat older than himself, Tully Fuller, with whom he quickly struck up a friendship. A law partnership was formed, and late in 1890 the firm of Fuller & Garner hung up their shingle in Getty street. They also acquired a small weekly paper, the Uvalde Leader, and young Garner found himself in his spare time performing the duties of a country editor, whose pen quickly made itself felt in the community.

Uvalde at this time was a small, straggling town of about 3,000 inhabitants, with wide streets and one-story stores, which were generally left, unpainted, to be colored by the hand of nature. The new law firm did well from the start, and before a great many years had passed, young Garner was buying stock in the First State Bank of Uvalde, which he afterwards came to control. He also bought, later on, a controlling interest in the Zavalla County State Bank, at Crystal City, a small town, 40 miles south of Uvalde.

Banking Experience

The banking knowledge and experience thus gained were to prove of inestimable value in the years to come.

The early law firm afterwards took in John H. Clark, an older and more experienced member of the bar, when the firm became Clark, Fuller & Garner, and still later young Garner went it alone, until the firm became, in the end, Garner & Love. This was when he had taken into partnership W. D. Love, now a member of the Board of Tax Appeal.

From the law it was only a step, in the Texas of that day, into politics. It was not long before the ambition to be a statesman was burning into him like the Texas sun on a prairie dog village.

Soon it began to be noised about in Uvalde County that young John Garner was a reacher and grabber, and that the older fellows would better do something to keep him quiet. The county judgeship was decided on, and when this got about, it aroused the ire of a young lady, Miss Mariette Rheiner, who lived on a 30,000-acre ranch, down the river, in the county, where she had been born and had spent her childhood.

The Girl Appears

She had heard of this young Jack Garner whom people were beginning to talk so much about, and she had the very decided opinion that a boy who by all repute was the outstanding poker player of Texas had no business being on the bench. Being of a fighting family, she undertook to prevent that appointment. The Uvalde County woolsack must be kept spotless.

Miss Etty Rheiner came from a real fighting family. Her father, Peter J. Rheiner, born in St. Gallen, Switzerland, came to the United States an adventurous youngster, drifted out to California in the gold days, returned east and settled in Louisiana, and the Civil War coming on, went into the Confederate Army as a matter of course. The surrender of Lee found him recovering from a battle wound in Texas. He liked the State better than the other places he had visited in his wanderings, settled down, and married Mary Elizabeth Watson.

Etty Rheiner, if she compared notes with the ambitious young lawyer of Uvalde, who could see nothing incompatible between holding four aces and holding court, might have discovered an interesting point in common.

Fear Indian Raids

She, too, was born in a log cabin. It was a large, comfortable house, made of upright cedar posts, plastered inside and out as smooth as a board, and painted white. The shutters were made of heavy timbers, and could be fastened securely from the inside. The Rheiner ranch was in the Indian country, and the Comanches were frequently in ugly mood in the young girl's childhood.

At nightfall her father always rode around the place, and one night—it is one of her most vivid recollections—he found a herder dead, and scalped. He dug the spurs into his horse, returned home at a gallop, found his young daughter out in the yard watching a Mexican cut the day's supply of fire wood, and made the family go inside, whereupon he barricaded the place against an Indian raid.

Nothing happened that night, but one day the Negro cook came in almost pale with excitement. The Indians were coming! They came, and there was a narrow escape. Upon a child of three this made an impression which the passing years have not obliterated. She was a motherless girl, and grew up lonesome, but self-reliant, on a vast ranch of 30,000 billowing acres, with no near neighbors.

Then she went away to school, at a girl's seminary in Tennessee. Her education completed, she returned home, and when her father died, she and a brother lived alone on the ranch. As her brother's business took him much from home, this meant that she was generally left to hold down the family hearthstone all by herself.

At this juncture in her domestic affairs one of her most intimate girl friends announced that she was going to the big city to study shorthand, and urged her to go along. It was alluring! Her brother objected, but a woman's way is commonly the prevailing opinion, and the two girls went up to San Antonio, and Etty Rheiner began the study of that science which in the years to come was to play such an important part in her life. For the mere love of something to do she became an expert stenographer.

Meets the Judge

One day on the train from Sabinal, as she was on her way back to San Antonio, a friend touched her arm and said:

"By the way, Miss Rheiner, may I have the pleasure of introducing Judge Garner, of Uvalde—you know—he added with great tact—"the one you tried to defeat?"

The eminent poker-playing jurist, aged 26, as he looked into the young girl's eyes and acknowledged the introduction according to the proper form, knew that he held a winning hand.

A few months later they were married. There was something about the decisions of this young whirlwind judge, when he handed down the opinion of the court, that left no loopholes for appeal.

Mrs. John N. Garner found no more arguments for impeding a career that was obviously being looked after by Providence.

Besides, from now on, she was on the other side of the market.

The Five O'Clock Frock
Pattern 2290
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

It's called a Five O'Clock frock because it may be worn any time after noon that requires semi-formality . . . late luncheon, bridge, tea or dinner. It is fashioned of sheer fabric in a dainty floral print. The shoulder capes take the place of sleeves and may be edged with fabric or lace. Irish lace is very smart. The trimming is cleverly inserted in the skirt seaming, also.

Pattern 2290 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 3⅜ yards of 39-inch fabric, 3 yards of 1-inch lace.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

TERROR REIGN AT MINES TOLD

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Bell and Harlan counties, Kentucky, were depicted as the scene of a "reign of terror" against striking coal miners and their sympathizers when a group of investigating New York writers and others addressed a meeting of more than 1,500 persons last night.

Waldo Frank, novelist and critic, who charged he was slugged and beaten when he and other members of his group were taken from Pineville, Ky., and escorted across the state line into Tennessee, sent word he had not recovered sufficiently to take part in the meeting.

Allen Taub, an attorney for the International Labor Defense, who charged he was slugged at the same time, described his experience.

Others described the strike district as a place where the Red Cross is under the thumb of the mine owners.

MRS. STEWART WILSON

Mrs. Wilson, the former Miss Lois Hanna, of Washington, Pa., who presented her husband, W. & J. College athlete and football captain, with a son just as he finished his four years of college work, prepared to move to Washington, D. C. They married in his junior year, but had long kept it a secret.

Gunman-Beggar Menaces Girl, Takes 5 Cents

BRENTWOOD RALLY SEEKS UTILITY RATE CUTS

BEGGAR ROBS EAST END GIRL OF 5 CENTS

Alms Plea Denied, Takes All of Victim's Money, Leaving Her Car Check

Police today were searching for the panhandler-gunman who held up Miss Dorothy Moore, 16, of 702 Summerlea street, while she was waiting for a street car at Center and Highland avenues, and took all the money she had—five cents.

Miss Moore said the man, shabbily dressed, made a plea for money. Angered by her refusal, he leveled at her what was apparently a gun in his pocket, and demanded the contents of her purse.

There was a nickel and a car check in her purse. She gave him the nickel, and he ran away. Miss Moore rode home before reporting the robbery. Her father, O. N. Moore, general agent for the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, reported it to police.

Five youths, arrested yesterday afternoon by South Side police in connection with the slugging of Carl Schaffenhauer, watchman of the Coca Cola Bottling Company, Seventeenth and Jane streets, were to be arraigned in Morals Court today. The attack on the watchman occurred last Friday when he was slugged and trussed in a second-floor office of the building. He was robbed of $25.

Raiding Policeman Foils Woman's Leap

The attempted 10-foot leap of Rose White to escape police was prevented last night when the woman was grabbed by Patrolman Joseph Scanlon, one of the officers who conducted a raid on an alleged home-brew establishment at 112 West Stockton avenue, according to a police report.

Rose White and another woman and four men visitors were held by North Side police. Ernest Davis, alleged proprietor, was held on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Helping Hand Plans More Benefit Shows

Within the next three weeks two more unemployment relief shows are to be held by George W. Dawson, director of welfare of the Helping Hand, who has already conducted more than 50 performances. The largest show will be held March 11 in North Side Carnegie Music Hall under the auspices of the North Side Chamber of Commerce. Food, clothing and toy donations will constitute admission fees.

Bogus Auto Plates Charged to Suspect

John Maug, 29, of 92 Morrison avenue, was lodged in North Side Station, early today, after police found a box of cartridges and a "jimmy" in his car, parked in East Lacock street, according to a police report.

Investigation revealed, police say, that the license plates on the car were spurious. They said the original plates were cut, and other numerals from other plates welded on them.

WOMEN VOTERS OF OVERBROOK TO MEET

Sessions Scheduled While District Awaits Results Of City Council Action

Brentwood citizens will rally tonight in the Elroy School auditorium, Brentwood, as a further step in the public utility rate fight. The meet will be held under the auspices of the Forty-fifth Senatorial Committee of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association.

The rally will be held despite the possibility of electric and gas rate reductions being obtained through City Council's conference with local public utility heads Thursday.

A women's voters' meeting will be held Wednesday night in Overbrook Municipal Building. Miss M. C. Halligan, unit chairman, will preside.

President Frank R. Phillips, of the Philadelphia Company, is to inform Council of the company's position on rates and what it intends to do towards eventual reductions, he said.

AUDITIONS SET IN VOICE TEST

Every day now comes one day nearer to the selection of "The Girl With the Sweetest Voice." Public auditions will be given at the Alvin Theater next Monday night and continue throughout the entire week, including a Saturday afternoon audition. The candidates in the contest will be surrounded by the stars of WCAE, who will give a special entertainment at each audition session.

The Pittsburgh area has been divided into seven sections or neighborhoods, one for each session at the Alvin. A special board of judges will be in attendance at each audition.

Girls who have sent in applications will get their audition credentials by mail in ample time for them to make arrangements to participate in the program to which they have been assigned. The first of these cards will go out Thursday.

A normal admission charge will be made for others than the candidates in this unique WCAE-Sun-Telegraph "Girl With the Sweetest Voice" Contest.

500 Radio Dealers To Hold Meet Here

FIVE MEN HELD AS TORTURERS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Five men are held without bond by state police in connection with the torture and robbery of three aged people in the Normalville district.

They are Harry Nicholson, James Franks and Arthur Franks, all of Avella, and Russell J. Kooser and Abraham J. Davies, of Rice Landing.

They are accused of binding and gagging Mrs. Mary Gaborsky and forcing her to reveal the hiding place of a "fortune" they thought to be $13,000, but which turned out to be but $30.

Later, state police said, they menaced Margaret and Alice Sterrett, both in their seventies, while they looted the house.

Woman Arrested In Bad Check Charge

Mrs. Rose Krause, 57, 114 Amanda street, was held for court at a hearing today in Mt. Washington Police Court before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney on a charge of passing $80 in bad checks on eight Mt. Washington merchants. The woman protested she had been out of work and offered to refund the money.

WALKER HELD 'DISCREDITED'

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Mayor Walker's alleged refusal to produce a missing witness for the Seabury investigation of New York City has "discredited him," William Jay Schieffelin said in a radio debate today.

Schieffelin, chairman of the committee of one thousand, asserted the Seabury investigation was a success, while State Senator John J. McNaboe, Democratic minority member of the investigating committee, denounced it as a failure.

In discussing the disappearance of Russell T. Sherwood, shown by the investigation to have held a safe deposit box jointly with the Mayor, Schieffelin declared:

"The Mayor's attitude has discredited the city government from the top down, and until Sherwood is produced by Mayor Walker, nothing less is possible but to regard the Mayor as discredited."

Senator McNaboe assailed Seabury for what he said was a failure to produce constructive results, despite the expenditure of $500,000 on the inquiry.

Homewood Pastor Accepts New Call

The Rev. Dr. George A. Long has resigned the pastorate of Homewood United Presbyterian Church to become pastor of Central Presbyterian Church at Brooklyn, it was learned last night.

He has been pastor of the Homewood church for 12 years. He was previously pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, North Side. The Brooklyn church has a membership of 2,300.

MECHLING DATA GIVEN AUDITORS

Tax books of former Deputy County Delinquent Tax Collector L. R. Mechling, of Wilkinsburg, who ended his life last week, today were turned over to auditors of Main & Co., engaged in making an audit of all county elective offices.

A safe containing the books in Mechling's office, 1011 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was opened by his son, John Mechling, in the presence of R. H. Cotton, counsel for the American Surety Company, of New York, the elder Mechling's bondsman, and Albert R. Ertel, for the auditors.

In the past week, Wilkinsburg police said, several young men had driven up in an automobile and demanded the books, without authority, with the result that police had been stationed near Mechling's office over the week-end.

The books are for 1929, on which Mechling had not made a complete report as to collections, according to John Brown, Jr., county delinquent tax collector.

Trinity M. E. Church Holds Anniversary

The Rev. W. J. Turner will be guest speaker at tonight's program in observance of the sixtieth anniversary of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Warrington avenue. The meeting will be in charge of the Florence Bible Class and Troop 99, Boy Scouts. Similar programs will be held every night this week, concluding Friday.

FIVE MEN HELD IN FATAL FIGHT

Five men were turned over to the Coroner's office today by city detectives for further questioning following the death of a man believed to be William Burke, no home, found dead in Frank Quarti's confectionery store, 1222 Clark street, Saturday.

They are Quarti, Tony Petro, 40, no home; Nick Dilleto, 45, 45 Marion street; Charles Cashow, 44, Helping Hand dormitories, and Martin Aguetter, 48, of 1224 Colwell street.

Detectives said Aguetter and Cahow had told them the dead man had been severely beaten in a fight late Friday night.

MAIL, NOT DOOM GRIPS RUTH

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Ruth Judd, convicted double trunk murderess, tomorrow will be formally sentenced to be hanged.

A jury two weeks ago found "The Velvet Tigress" guilty of killing her friend, Agnes Anne Leroi and decreed that she hang a decree mandatory upon Superior Judge Howard Speakman, who will pronounce sentence.

Jail attaches said Mrs. Judd appeared more interested in her "fan mail" than she is in her fate. She has received 12 to 15 letters daily. Her aged father and mother, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, have visited her daily.

Defense Attorney Herman Lewkowitz said he was totally unaware of a reported move by Mrs. Judd to disclose the name of alleged accomplices in the crime of which she was accused—the killing of Mrs. Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, and the shipping of their bodies in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

Man Struck by Auto Dies of Pneumonia

WASHINGTON DEDICATING NEW $1,000,000 HIGH SCHOOL

Simple, Independent Design Marks Building

By PENELOPE REDD

Tonight the new million-dollar Washington High School, at Washington, Pa., designed by Edward B. Lee, Pittsburgh architect, will be dedicated.

Penelope Redd

This building declares the independence of contemporary American designers from the earlier timidities when schools were masked by cornices, columns and historical detail in ornaments.

This high school is frankly native and functional. In expressing the purpose of the building, Mr. Lee has organized a composition of white Darlington brick, with the chief accents of design evolved from the pattern imposed by the windows and by brick pilasters with limestone terminals, simply shaped. Not a single architectural gadget is permitted to confuse the building's structural integrity.

On the principal facade, extending 180 feet on Jefferson avenue, Mr. Lee has established the logic of his disposition of mass by using the natural rise of land, which is an elevation of 21 feet from Jefferson to Allison avenue. He has built up his successive masses as a series of terraces.

On the Jefferson avenue elevation, the long facade is not interrupted by the customary large central entrance feature. Small doors open from the ground and terrace.

Moreover, through considered design, another disadvantageous necissity has been transformed into a noteworthy architectural element. We refer to the mechanically important but inveterately homely chimney usually detached or obscured in a rear corner as undesirable.

FOUR DEAD AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENTS IN DISTRICT

MANY INJURED IN WEEK-END TRAFFIC

Wilkinsburg Woman Killed When Car Crashes Into Pole at New Alexandria

Four persons died over the week-end and numerous others were in hospitals today as the result of a number of automobile accidents.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, 43, of 1029 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, died of injuries received when a machine driven by her husband, William C. Stewart struck a pole at New Alexandria. Mrs. Mollie Wilt, 73, of South Fork, a passenger in the machine, is in a critical condition in a hospital.

Mrs. Marie Bradley, 36, of Riverview drive, New Kensington, died last night of injuries suffered January 19.

Joseph Kiefer, 70, of Prospect street, Castle Shannon, died in St. Joseph's Hospital of injuries received September 20 when he was struck by a hit-run driver near his home.

Jesse Moses, 39, Negro, of Smallman street, died of injuries received when he was struck by a machine driven by J. D. Miller, of Union avenue, Crafton, at Second avenue and Grant street.

James Devlin, 38, of 1003 Fourth street, North Braddock, his wife, and a daughter, Catherine, 8, and Joseph Roselli, 35, of 853 Mirror street, were seriously injured in a collision between the Devlin machine and the Roselli car at Beechwood boulevard near Forward avenue. The victims were in Montefiore Hospital.

Phillip McLaughlin, 45, of Patterson avenue, Rankin, was injured when the car in which he was riding with Russell Dale, 23, of 506 Campbell street, Wilkinsburg, struck a parked car at First avenue and Kenmawr.

John G. McCune, 46, West Newton postmaster, and his wife, Grace, were in McKeesport Hospital, seriously hurt, after having lain unconscious beneath their wrecked auto for four hours after it plunged over an embankment between Sutterville and McKeesport.

Wilbert A. Hazlett, 25, of 311 East Tenth street, Tarentum, was in a critical condition in Citizen's General Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull, suffered when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into the rear of a stalled truck in the Harmarville-Cheswick road early today. Two companions, Lorraine Householder, of Seventh street road, and Johnson Guyer, of 1221 Fifth avenue, both of New Kensington, were slightly injured.

AMBRIDGE BOY HURT

Billy Kacak, 10, of 648 Glenwood avenue, Ambridge, suffered head injuries when he stepped in front of a machine driven by Thomas Richars, of Ridge road, Ambridge, at Eleventh and Highview avenues, Ambridge, late yesterday, police said. He was taken to the General Hospital at New Kensington.

Mrs. Anna Deihl, 25, of 3511 Walnut street, McKeesport, was in McKeesport Hospital with back injuries suffered in an automobile collision in Beechwood boulevard late yesterday, according to a hospital report.

C. E. Spencer, 51, of 615 Fourth avenue, New Kensington, suffered lacerations of the face and body when he was struck by an automobile driven by George Conser, of 1139 Victoria street, New Kensington, at Seventh and Stanton avenues, New Kensington, last night, according to a hospital report.

Kensington Woman Dies of Auto Hurts

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 22.—Mrs. Marie Bradley, 36, of 838 Riverview drive, died last night in the Citizens General Hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident here January 19.

Township, Borough Registration Days

Register-assessors will sit in the townships and boroughs of Allegheny County tomorrow and Wednesday, giving voters in those communities the only opportunities to register for the April primaries.

Persons not already registered must enroll between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. or 6 p. m. and 9 p. m., either day, if they wish to vote.

3 Students Unhurt As Auto, Truck Hit

Three Perry High School students escaped unhurt when their auto collided with a Haller Baking Company truck this morning in front of 4625 Perrysville avenue. They were Charles Pulleyan and Merle Carey, of Warendale, and a third boy whose name was withheld by the other boys on account of his mother's illness.

Legionnaires to Ask Liquor Referendum facade. This tower, rising 125 feet, departs from the monotonous cylinder, and is modulated into a soaring pyramidal form that commands the eye's respect.

Malcolm Parcell, Washington artist, has designed stone carvings for the doors on the lower floors. These will be installed later as class memorials.

The subjects are allied to local history: Temigaqua, the Indian chief, whose village was on Catfish Creek, opposite the school site; James Houston, early civic personage; the transportation man of the old National pike; and figures representing basic industries.

The U-shaped structure is built around a gymnasium which is a departure from the limited use of such a unit. The auditorium-gymnasium may be divided into three separate spaces by motor-driven folding partitions to afford simultaneous use. The capacity of this room is about 3,000.

About 60 of the 146 rooms in the building are regular class rooms. The school now houses 1,450 students, although provision is made for an ultimate 2,000.

The dedicatory address tonight will be made by Dr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson College. Judge Boyd Crumrine will talk on the civic significance of the new building; and A. G. Braden, former Superintendent of Schools, will give the history of the local publics chools. Meyers B. Horner is the superintendent of Washington schools and R. E. Boyles is the principal of the new high school.

MAYOR PLANS FOR DEFENSE

Offices in the City-County Building were closed today, Washington's Birthday, but there was activity in one, that of the Mayor.

Mayor Charles H. Kline arrived early and a short time later his Pittsburgh counsel, Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, arrived. They were going over plans for the forthcoming trial of the Mayor and his deposed Director of Supplies, Bertram L. Succop, in Butler County, scheduled to start March 14, it was reported.

COUNTY SLATE HELD RAP AT ROOSEVELT

Link in National Drive Seen By Guffey Who Still Claims 66 Votes for New Yorker

With a slate of uninstructed delegates from Allegheny County to the Democratic Natoinal Convention expected to announce principles within a few days, Joseph F. Guffey, local leader of the drive for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, today inferentially labeled this group members of the "national stop-Roosevelt movement," and claimed an "overwhelming majority of Pennsylvania Democrats were supporting the New Yorker. Guffey said:

"Starting out as a campaign of negative purpose, the stop-Roosevelt generals are now engaged in an effort to create dissension in the ranks of the Roosevelt supporters."

Guffey reiterated the claim he has been making for months, that Roosevelt would have 66 of the state's 76 delegates, and added that the prediction has not been based on "any power of mine, real or assumed, to deliver a single vote for any one. It was founded upon knowledge of the attitude of the rank and file of the party in the state."

Probably that the name of Alfred E. Smith will be on the primary ballot with that of Roosevelt has furnished impetus to those seeking an uninstructed delegation. Roosevelt forces are energetic in efforts to land a majority of the popular vote for Roosevelt, hoping this will influence delegates toward his candidacy.

West Virginia Democrats in state convention at Huntington Saturday night indorsed the Roosevelt candidacy. Senator M. M. Neely was sponsor of the Roosevelt resolution.

ASTRING-O-SOL is the concentrated mouth-wash. Because you use such a little at a time, every bottle can make 48 times its volume.

ASTRING-O-SOL

Every day you start with Astring-o-sol starts you fresh and fit and tingling. This delightful, mild astringent rinses away all traces of morning mouth . . . kills the stale taste of past meals and smoking and purifies the breath.

It's most economical. For we make Astring-o-sol without the water. It's concentrated. A few dashes in a quarter glass of water make an effective mouth-wash that costs but a part of a penny.

Get a bottle of Astring-o-sol. Use it as soon as you get up . . . then before social or business engagements . . . after meals. Frederick Stearn & Co., Detroit, Mich.

Physicians and dentists use Astringosol in their practice and prescribe it for use by their patients for its penetrating, cleansing and astringent qualities.

Makers of ZYMOLE TROKEYD

Fundamentalist Seeks to Split Presbyterians

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—The Rev. H. McAllister Griffiths, fundamentalist Presbyterian minister, launched a fight to drive modernists from the church, in his sermon yesterday.

He assailed all modernistic doctrine and called upon its promulgators to leave the church and found one of their own. He demanded specifically the resignation of 11 Philadelphia Presbyterian pastors, whom he named.

Griffiths claimed for his ouster movement the support of the Presbyterian League of Faith, an organization he said included 1,110 ministers, and announced his intention of taking his cause to the general assembly. He declared:

"It is our intention to carry on this fight until the general assembly decides the issue. If we win, the modernists will have to pack and go. If we lose we shall have to establish a new church."

Control of more than $20,000,000 in endowments and the management of many seminaries and colleges hinges on the outcome of the conflict.

Griffiths assailed the Auburn affirmation calling for a liberal interpretation of the infallibility of the Bible, the virgin birth, the salvation of the human race through the crucifixion of Christ, the resurrection, and Christ's miracles.

'Spent Issue,' Declare Pittsburgh Pastors

The Rev. Mr. Griffiths' attack upon modernists was characterized today by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of Shadyside Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Dr. James A. Kelso, president of Western Seminary, and the Rev. Michael McDevitt, pastor of the Knoxville Presbyterian Church, as an attempt to revive a "spent issue."

They agreed his move would meet with little sympathy here and described the movement as being more or less local. The leader of the movement is not known here.

FAKE AUTO TAG BRINGS ARREST

Accused of making bogus auto license tags, John Maug, of 929 Morrison avenue, was arraigned in North Side Police Court today and held for further investigation.

Police said they found him in an auto, bearing license tags which had been made by welding together parts of two other sets. The composite number—94471—had been issued to a Wilkes-Barre man and the tags bearing them are on his car in that city, Magistrate Ray E. Schneider was told.

Elsie Jones, of East Robinson street, and Herman Molden, of Sandusky street, were arrested near Maug's car. They denied today that they knew him, but were held for further investigation.

WIFE OF LINDY TELLS CHINESE FLOOD WOES

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—In a smooth, low-pitched voice Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh told the nation yesterday of the horrors of the Chinese flood she and her famous husband observed last year on their flight to the Orient.

While the colonel sat nearby, Mrs. Lindbergh, appearing demure and even smaller than usual beside a tall radio microphone, spoke for 15 minutes.

She wore a two-piece black wool dress, with a touch of white woolen trimming at throat and wrists, and a wide, red patent leather belt. She had a black felt hat and low-heeled shoes.

DESCRIBES MOB

Although not present on the day Col. Lindbergh with a Chinese and an American doctor, tried to carry medical relief to Hinghwa, she gave a vivid and dramatic description of their experience with a mob of starving Chinese.

The plane descended in a flooded field outside the city walls, she said, and some bulky sampans floated alongside. The Chinese doctor climbed out of the plane into one. She went on:

"A sack of anti-toxins was pushed out of the baggage compartment. Slowly the expressions of the people watching changed. 'Food,' they began to murmur among themselves. 'Food.' The word went from one sampan to the other. More boats pushed up.

"'No,' said the doctor, 'not food. Medicine.' But men, women and children looked at the sack. They made cups of their hands and pretented to be eating with chopsticks."

CROWD SINKS BOAT

"Then Chinese swarmed over the sampan, sinking it, as the doctor climbed into another one. He pleaded to be taken back to the plane.

"In the meantime, the two men left in the plane were trying to keep off a pressing mob. Heavy sampans knocked against the pontoons. People clung to the wings and tail surfaces.

"'We're going to start the engine,' shouted out the doctor in Chinese. 'If you don't get back, you'll all be killed.'

"An old woman sat immovable in the front row of boats. 'What does it matter?' she asked sullenly. 'We have nothing.'"

HOPE VANISHES IN SKY

But the crowd backed away when the motors roared. The plane pushed out slowly, and then took off. Mrs. Lindbergh said:

"I do not know how those people felt when they saw a last hope disappear into the sky. I know, though, that I had a kind of horror that I should be so near them and have the power of escaping so easily from their misery."

The address, sponsored by the Federal Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America and the China Famine Relief, U. S. A., was broadcast over the chains of the Columbia and National broadcasting systems.

"Good Bye"

SOUR STOMACH and Indigestion

GONE — are those uncomfortable hours after meals when food lays like lead in your stomach. I said "good-bye" to digestive trouble when I discovered this new "Alkaline Way" to get relief.

Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Gas on the Stomach, Heartburn and dull Headaches, how I suffered with them. Then one day a friend told me about ALKA-SELTZER Tablets . . . and oh, what a relief!

I discovered that EXCESS ACIDITY was the cause of my troubles. Too much acid forming food in my daily diet—irregular meals, rich foods and over-eating. That's what caused the EXCESS ACIDITY. I suppose hundreds who read this are suffering as I did. But you need suffer no longer. Take my advice—use the coupon below and get a package of ALKA-SELTZER Tablets at your nearest drug store. A tablet in a glass of water makes a delightful effervescent anti-acid drink and will give you prompt relief.

Should a Man Help His Wife With Domestic Work?

Is a young woman who does her own housework and cares for two small children an overworked martyr?

Has she the right to expect her husband to help with the household chores when he comes home? And is he a brute if he doesn't?

"Discontented" thought she had, and that he was, and she proceeded to broadcast her own domestic troubles to the world.

Didn't her own husband sit down and read the evening paper and expect her to do the dishes, all by herself? And wasn't that reason for divorce?

Maybe you agree with her. But here's a wife who doesn't.

"Dear Sally:

"I read your column every day, and I think you give grand advice. But I'm not coming to you with a problem. I have just finished reading the letter from "Discontented," the woman who was complaining about the terrible hardship of having to work so fearfully hard in order to care for her two children, and who thought that her husband ought to help her, after doing his own day's work.

I can tell you a few things about taking care of a house and children. I am the mother of seven.

NOT A SLAVE

"And I can tell you that taking care of my family has been the greatest joy of my life. The smiles and the compliments that my husband gives me when I prepare him an extra fine dinner, or when I make one of my girls a pretty new dress, are the joy of my life and the greatest pleasure I know.

"I am not a slave to my family either, as you might expect from listening to people like 'Discontented,' or from reading this letter. It is just that I think that being a successful wife and mother is all the 'career' I want—and I am not afraid of a little hustling.

"Perhaps you think I am silly to write this, but you hear so many 'modern' women who don't seem to be able to stand a penny's worth of real work without squawking, so that I just had to put in my oar. And now I'm glad I've got it off my chest.

DOESN'T EXPECT HELP

"I never expected my husband or anyone else to help me with the care of my kiddies or my house.

"I think that when a man has done a hard day's work in his effort to support us, he is not to be expected to do the housework too, or care for the youngsters, when he comes home tired at night.

"He has done his part, and is entitled to his rest. I think it is unfair to expect him to do two jobs.

"And I think 'Discontented' must be a pretty poor manager to make so much fuss and feathers over two children!

"MRS. M. M."

"Whoops, my darling! That's a great letter! It should make some of our bigger and better calamity howlers feel like thirty cents.

But what do you think of it, stranger? Do you agree that the big boy's day's work should be done when he lays down his pen or his pliers and shoves off for home?

Or do you think he should help with the kitchen mechanics, too?

By FAY KING

Actions are often deceiving.

Many girls who act so hardboiled and wild are really at heart quite sensitive and sentimental.

While other girls who are really hardboiled and wild at heart can act and look as demure and delicate as bits of Dresden china.

And when it comes to driving a bitter bargain in sheer selfishness they are hard as steel.

Sad-looking girls often have a grand sense of humor and can take a broken heart more lightly than the jolly girls who are supposed to laugh everything off.

Madge Begins Task of Revising Speeches of Play Character

As Dicky ruffled the pages of my third act, which had to be revised for Philip Veritzen, I sat opposite to him, outwardly quiet and composed, but inwardly racked with anxiety at what he might do.

If I had been willing to accept Dicky's aid, and say nothing about it, I was sure that the great dramatic producer would not discover the difference between Dicky's lines and mine, for Dicky is too clever, as well as too familiar with the theatrical game, to write speeches which differ materially from my style.

But my gorge rose at the idea of claiming any work as mine which really belonged to someone else.

Had I skirted the Scylla of unconsciously caricaturing Dicky to knock the frail craft of my third act against the Charybdis of Dicky's offer to help my revision?

It was this question which beat insistently upon my brain as I watched Dicky scanning the pages which held the speeches of Vickers.

He looked up at last with a rueful grin.

"Well, I've certainly had wished on me what Bobby Burns asked for," he said. "I'm seeing myself as others see me, all right, at least as you see me."

"Dicky!" I sprang from my chair and, going over to him, put my hands upon his shoulders and shook him back and forth as violently as my strength would permit. "Don't you dare say that again," I commanded. "You know it isn't true. I never had a thought of you when I was writing those speeches. I believe it is your imagination anyway, this idea that it's like you. Mr. Veritzen didn't see it, neither did Lillian."

"That's easy," Dicky said stubbornly. "Veritzen doesn't know me well enough to see the resemblance, and old Lil was so busy typing that she didn't catch it, but I've lived with myself longer than you've lived with me. I see it, and you saw it, but I'm not particularly proud of the vision. However, that's beside the mark. The thing to do now is to rewrite these speeches so nobody else will see Richard Graham, Esq., as his wife sees him."

I dropped my hands from his shoulders and turned away heavily to go back to my chair. But I had taken but one step when my husband's arms were round me, holding me so tightly that I could not move.

"Sorry! Sorry!" he said. "Forgive your bad boy! I didn't mean to tease you. Kiss me and let's tackle the pesky speeches!"

Miraculously, at the touch of his arms and his lips as they pressed down on mine, all my worry concerning the revision of my work slipped away.

"Sit you down here," he intoned, as he half led, half carried me to my desk. "take a pencil in your lily-white right hand, rest your left upon this manuscript on the page where Vickers enters, and turn on the one-tenth inspiration and nine-tenths perspiration, which is genius. You ought to be able to make a rough draft of what you want to say in short order. Then, though I am not in Lil's class, I sling a wicked typewriter sometimes—or so Ede says."

I heard his breath catch sibilantly upon the last word, and knew, although I was not looking at him, that the familiar nickname of Edith Fairfax had slipped out inadvertently, and that he would have given much to have caught back the words before I had heard them.

Ede—Edith Fairfax. Not since the preceding Christmas time had I heard Dicky speak the name which had caused me so many heartaches. Then he shamefacedly had tried to pass off as negligible the handsome Christmas gift of a dressing gown which she had sent him, and which, by an impish chance, had been a cheaper edition of my own Christmas present to him.

I had not seen Edith since the Christmas party, until she appeared one day at the hospital with flowers for me, and apparently genuine admiration for my tiny new baby. But I had known that the call was a perfunctory one, and that her hatred of me had been sharpened by this fresh, precious proof that Dicky and I were not estranged, as I knew she had hoped we would be.

Dicky was puzzled and worried by my silence. I knew that when he said crossly: "Why should the casual mention of Ede's name turn you to stone, as if you had seen a gorgon's head?"

Early Discovery Lessens Danger of Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis is all too often "the thief that comes in the night." It steals the vitality of its victim and may rush to the serious stage before the afflicted person is aware of its presence. What are really the early symptoms of the disease may be unobserved.

Dr. Copeland

We must make it known that anyone who has extreme exhaustion over a period of time and a slight cough, should consult a doctor. These symptoms may be signs of tuberculosis, and it is in the first phases that the disease may be checked. If permitted to run unheeded, it may become hopeless, or at best it may work such havoc as will take months to arrest and possibly years to repair.

There is no reason for the person told he is tubercular to despair. Recovery will come if he is willing to follow the routine prescribed. But the first thing to learn is that much of the cure rests in the patient's own hands.

One of the most treacherous forms which tuberculosis takes is called by physicians a "low grade infection." It sometimes follows influenza, or a long-drawn-out cold in a person who has been depleted in health and is continuously overtired.

With this form there is seldom a hemorrhage or other prominent symptom. The disease is likely to be unsuspected unless one has been under the care of a physician, or has learned, through the educational methods of health officials and other agencies, the significance of the symptoms. There is a low afternoon temperature, great exhaustion with little effort, and a superficial cough which the untrained person may think is an aftermath of the "flu."

This is a stubborn infection to heal. It increases gradually and steadily until it is well established, unless one is alert to the early symptoms. We can help in the cultivation of that alertness.

Sunshine is one of the most important agents to use in combating tuberculosis in its first stages. Fortunately, the germs of the disease are frail and do not thrive when exposed to sunshine. Sun baths raise the vitality of the body and help to kill the germs which have been making inroads in the lungs.

Doctors who have been making a study of lung trouble agree that the hot, dry climate of the desert is most favorable to the quick arrest of the acute stage. But for those who cannot go to the desert, long hours in the sunshine, with as much of the body as possible exposed to the sun's rays, are imperative.

These sun baths should be taken under the advice of a physician, because they must be indulged in temperately. Too much sun in the afternoon sometimes increases the temperature. The time most beneficial to the patient is from 11 to 1. This is the period when the ultra-violet rays of the sun are most powerful in their healing qualities.

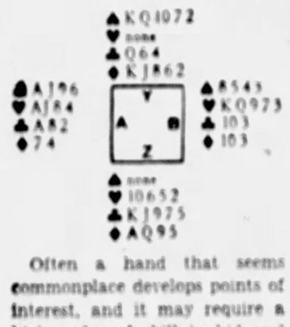
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

How Should Bidding and Play Go?



Often a hand that seems commonplace develops points of interest, and it may require a high order of skill to bid and play the cards to the best advantage. The above hand offers an illustration of this kind.

Z passed. A bid 1-Spade, which Y was intending to do. It rarely pays to overcall an opponent with his own make, so Y bid 2-Diamonds, not expecting too much from a partner who had refused to open contracting. Instead of at once supporting his partner's spades, B shifted into 2-Hearts. To show strong support for his partner's diamonds, and to announce having no losing tricks in opponent's spade suit, Z bid 2-Spades—a bid much used by "feature showers." A aided his partner's make, by bidding 3-Hearts. Taking his cue from Z, whose bid of 2-Spades announced game prospects, Y bid 4-Hearts, to show no losers in the other suit named by opponents. B passed. Of course a bid of an adverse suit is the strongest sort of demand bid; it would be suicidal for partner not to take out such an informatory declaration. Z was obliged to shift into 5-Diamonds, but he dared not bid six, as his partner had hoped he might. That closed the bidding.

With one adversary announcing no spades, and the other announcing no hearts, A could not well open either major suit; he had to make an opening lead of one of the minor suits. Laying down the ace of a suit of which the bidding indicated declarer and dummy held considerable strength did not look wise to A. He felt that he must lead a trump. This proved to be as good as anything that he could have done.

Most players as declarer favor their own hand, either in attempting to establish its long suit or in endeavoring to use dummy's trumps for ruffing off losers of a side suit. Frequently it is dummy, and not the declarer's hand, that should be rid of losers. Y was sufficiently wise to realize that he never could establish his spade suit or ruff off his numerous losers of that suit. He decided to use his own trumps for ruffing off Z's losing hearts, establish dummy's clubs, pull opposing trumps, and play the dummy as the strong hand.

The first trick was won in dummy, and Y ruffed a return lead of hearts. Y laid down his Q of clubs, losing to A's Ace. A trump was led by A, and won in dummy. Another heart was led from dummy and trumped by Y. A return lead of clubs gained entry to dummy, and its third heart was led, and ruffed with Y's last diamond. Three rounds of clubs and a trump lead left A with only the Aces of the two major suits. Dummy held another trump and the 10 of hearts. Declarer had the K-Q of spades, and B held the K-Q of hearts. Had dummy not been exposed it is possible that A would have discarded his Ace of hearts. As it was he held that, letting go his Ace of spades, and holding down the score to the five odd bid.

Marriage Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A couple who are planning a secret marriage, wish to know when to send out the wedding announcements. Should they be sent before the marriage is published in the newspapers, or several days after the wedding?

READER.

The sooner these marriage announcements are sent out, the better. And if they could be sent out before the announcement is made in the papers, this will be especially good. Of course, it takes some time to have these announcements engraved, and on the announcements must appear the date of the marriage and the place in which it was performed.

PRO LEAGUE MAY REJECT NEW RULES

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE between the playing rules of college and professional basketball, and next season there may be a difference between the regulations of college and professional football. The changes made in the gridiron code by Chairman Edward K. Hall and his colleagues on the collegiate committee have fallen so far short of meeting with the approval of men high in the pro game that it is rumored the latter may refuse to go along, threatening instead to keep the old rules in force for all contests of 1932 in their organization.

Edward K. Hall

A number of the officials of the National Professional Football League view some or all of the new regulations with disfavor, seeing no need for them and expressing the opinion that the sport will not be helped by their adoption. The most outspoken and openly antagonistic man in the circuit on the subject is Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants. He not only disapproves the changes personally, but plans a movement to have them rejected by the professional body.

OWEN SAYS THAT he intends to place before the other coaches and officials of the league a plea that they consider the alterations on their merits alone and act accordingly, rather than adopt them simply because the colleges have done so. The new rules on substitutions and equipment meet with Owen's full approval. But as far as he is concerned, the rest are out.

He sees nothing new in the regulation on use of hands on defense, saying that all that was necessary was to enforce the old rule; he is opposed to banning the flying block and flying tackle, and the dead ball provision and fails to see any good in, or even any need for, a change in the kickoff rule.

NEW EVIDENCE THAT college athletes can also be the best students comes from Columbia University in New York where the five regular members of the basketball team have proved themselves better scholars than the average student.

Led by Jay Hirschoppish star guard, who has made a perfect "A" in each of five subjects, the Columbia floormen show a classroom average of "B," whereas the average of the student body is only "C plus." Hodupp's teammates are David Jones, Lou Bender, Bob McCoy and Owen McDowell.

ALBERTO (BABY) ARIZMENDI, sensational Mexican bantamweight battler, is coming East this year, and California experts are touting him as the next 118-pound champion of the world. Two recent achievements demonstrated Arizmendi's rare class beyond dispute. On New Year's Day he handed Fidel LaBarba a beating, including a clean knockdown, in Mexico City, and a couple of weeks ago he outfought, outboxed and outgeneraled the crack Filipino, Speedy Dado, in 10 of the fastest rounds ever seen in Los Angeles. Though only 18 years old, Arizmendi says he has had 280 bouts and claims he never has been beaten or knocked off his feet. He was boxing 112-pounders when he weighed only 100 or less himself, and he is still giving away weight, as he is matched to box Manuel Poncho Villa for the Mexican lightweight title in May.

Walter Lindrum

A CHANCE TO compare the best in English billiards of the present day with American cue standards will be afforded during the tour of Walter Lindrum, of Australia, and Tom Newman, six-time British champion, who have just arrived in this country.

Lindrum has been a sensation on the other side, his most notable feat being the world record run of 4,137 at straight rail. He won the British Empire handicap tournament of 1929-31 from scratch, and by royal command appeared before King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace a year ago.

THE APPOINTMENT OF Lawrence B. Coller as business manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club is right in line with the other popular steps that saw William E. Benswanger elected president and Samuel E. Walters promoted to the vice presidency. It rounds out an excellent business organization for the Pirates.

The duties of his office will not be strange to Business Manager Coller. Except for the World War period, when he served his country with distinction, he has been connected with the local club since 1909, knows all the ins and outs of the business end of the game, and is a thoroughly capable official.

THOUGH CARNEGIE TECH'S glove team lost to Syracuse University, Saturday night in a match at Syracuse, some of the wildest and exciting moments in the history of college boxing were enacted as Jacques Croissant, Carnegie's second-string 175-pounder, floored Joe Moran, brilliant Orange fighter, and, according to Skibo teammates, had him out cold twice, only to be counted out himself in the second round. Two thousand spectators, a packed house, sat in awed silence when Moran, seeking his seventeenth knockout, came confidently out of his corner to make short work of the inexperienced and awkward Carnegie football player, only to run into a terrific right-hand punch that sent him to the canvas and had him completely helpless, his head striking the floor with a resounding thump.

COACH ERNIE SESTO, of the Plaid, a thorough sportsman, asserts that Moran got to his feet but was helpless, and that the referee held Croissant back, refusing him the right to go in and finish a man who was in fighting position. The official is said to have protected Moran long enough for Sesto to run clear around the ring and back again in a futile protest.

When the referee finally released the inexperienced Croissant, the latter again floored Moran and had him down a third time before the end of the round. The Carnegie boxer's right hand was fractured on one of the knockdowns, but he put the Syracuse ace to the floor again in the second round. Missing another swing, Croissant fell to the canvass, and his second called to him to stay down for a nine count to rest.

ACCORDING TO ACCOUNTS of the bout, which drew glaring headlines in the Syracuse papers, the crowd made so much noise that Croissant could not hear the count, and he was declared out with Moran standing grossly in the center of the ring, not having laid a glove on the Carnegie boy.

Bob Waddell

The crowd stormed the ring, carried Moran out on its collective shoulders, and the result was hailed as his seventeenth knockout. But Croissant, victor over one of the greatest college boxers of all time in everything but the decision, was receiving the plaudits of a conqueror on the Tartan campus today.

THE NAMING OF Bob Waddell as head football coach at Carnegie Tech, with Judge Walter P. Steffen retaining a connection with the staff in an advisory capacity, is one of the most popular and richly deserved promotions in the history of college football in Pittsburgh. It means no great change in Waddell's duties or in the scope of his work, as he has been performing the major portion of the coaching labors for several years without receiving as much public recognition or credit as he merited for the big part he has played in Carnegie's success. But now, in his eleventh year at the Schenley Park school, Bob is to be in full charge, with complete responsibility for the team, an advancement well earned from every angle. He is one of the smartest football men in the country, and the Skibos could not be in better hands than they will be under his able leadership, with the wise old head of Judge Steffen as a helpful advisory factor on the side. It is an ideal arrangement.

GLOCK PASSERS FACE TEST IN HAR-BRACK

By JULIUS LEVIN

The New Kensington High School basketball team, coached by Carl Glock, will be out to clinch the championship of Section I and at the same time assure itself a place in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations when it engages Har-Brack Union on the latter's floor tonight.

Carl Glock

Undefeated in nine straight league encounters, the New Kensington passers can sew up the championship by defeating the Har-Brack quintet tonight. Har-Brack is resting in second place.

The contest originally was scheduled for tomorrow night, but was moved up by mutual consent. In facing Har-Brack, the Ken High passers are tackling one of their hardest tests of the season. In the first meeting between the two schools New Kensington won the decision by a 29-25 count.

One of the features of the New Kensington showing this season has been the all-round form of Babe Dayoub, one of the outstanding centers in the W. P. I. A. L. ranks. Dayoub's floor work has played a prominent part in the successes attained by the Glockmen this season.

DAYOUB OUTSTANDING

Formerly one of the leading scorers of the team, Dayoub has forsaken personal glory to help the Valley passers sweep their way into the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations. His passing and teamplay have stood out in every victory scored by the Section I leaders. Tonight's game is the final league contest for New Kensington. The record of the team in Section I follows:

New Kensington	28 — Springdale	10
New Kensington	34 — Freeport	19
New Kensington	36 — Arnold	11
New Kensington	36 — Tarentum	4
New Kensington	26 — Har Brack	24
New Kensington	37 — Springdale	23
New Kensington	14 — Freeport	10
New Kensington	36 — Arnold	11

School Notes

There is a possibility of the Section X race ending in a three-way deadlock should Kiski Prep and Connellsville High passers win tonight. The game is expected to be a real battle, Greensburg not participating. Connellsville tomorrow night must win the game to prevent a three-way deadlock with Connellsville at Latrobe.

Homestead High School, basketball champion of Section VII and one of the favorites to win the W. P. I. A. L. championship, has September 16 and 23 open for football games. Any team desiring to fill these dates are asked to call Coach Bill Campbell at Homestead High school.

Ambridge and Aliquippa will settle the championship of Section IV tomorrow night. A similar situation exists in Section III where Butler and New Castle are deadlocked. The two teams must tomorrow night settle the championship. Section XII will be at stake in the Ballentrae-Sewickley Township battle. The two teams are deadlocked at present.

Keep your eye on Charleroi in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations. Coach Steve Stepanian, one of the smartest basketball mentors in the league, has developed one of the outstanding quintets in the circuit and this team likely will make a strong bid for the championship. Joe Kostolnikoky at center is one of the team's best bets. He also starred in football, winning a place on the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph all-star team. He played end.

Three all night fight fans will be entertained when two undefeated teams will swing into action in the W. P. I. A. L. circuit at the Pitt Stadium pavilion next Friday. Bentworth is undefeated in Section XI while East Pittsburgh holds a perfect record in Section XVI. Ed Pavlik is coach at Bentworth and Johnny Chapman at East Pittsburgh.

W. & J. TO NAME COACH SOON

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 22.—With a promised announcement only a few days away, belief is growing daily that Leroy P. (Hank) Day, Washington High School coach, is to assume similar duties at Washington and Jefferson, to fill a vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Bill Amos.

President Ralph C. Hutchison has promised to give out, probably this week, something definite in regard to the coaching situation and probably regarding the selection of a graduate manager. Wilbur F. (Pete) Henry has been acting manager since the resignation of William G. Theurer some weeks ago, and it has been assumed that Henry will be elevated to the full managership.

Women's Baseball Course at Columbia

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Women invaded another sport today with the announcement that Columbia University will give a course on "baseball for women" at its summer session this year.

The fine points in coaching and officiating will be taught, it was announced.

MEYER GETS ACE

Walter S. Meyer, playing with S. D. Carlson and Mac Perlman, scored a hole-in-one on the 115-yard third hole at the Westmoreland Country Club yesterday. He used a No. 6 iron and recorded a 78 for the round. Carlson had a sub-par 70 and Perlman registered 78. Meyer blamed it on Pete O'Hara's lessons.

BUFFALO IN FIELD

BUFFALO, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—After an absence of important auto harness racing for 18 years, Buffalo will be welcomed back in the big ring this year. Buffalo has been allotted the dates, July 21 to 24.

BOB AND WALLY ARE RE-SIGNED

Robert N. Waddell has been reappointed head football coach and Judge Walter P. Steffen has decided to continue in an advisory capacity, it was announced by Carnegie Tech following a meeting of the Skibo athletic council. It is anticipated the staff of assistant coaches will remain the same as of last fall.

Waddell will begin his eleventh and Steffen his nineteenth year of association with Carnegie football this fall. Steffen, it previously had been announced, had intended withdrawing from the picture, but changed his mind under the persuasion of Tartan supporters.

It was intimated, however, that Waddell is to have greater responsibility from now on, with Steffen advising only when necessary.

There is to be no spring training.

WALLY AGREES

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Judge Walter P. Steffen said he had agreed to continue as advisory football coach for Carnegie Tech, "only whenever it is convenient for me to do so."

Judge Steffen said he would not be able to be with the Skibos for every game, and probably would be able to spend little time in the East. He said he had told the Carnegie athletic board that he "might be able to spend a week with the team during the early fall training period."

DURANGO TRIUMPHS

GOESSLING COPS TITLE

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Paul Goessling, of St. Louis, won the western squash racquets championship here yesterday by defeating Jack Gordon, also of St. Louis, in the final round, 18-14, 10-15, 18-13 and 15-10.

CAREY AUTO WINNER

SPORT VIGNETTES

The recent death of John A. McCracken recalls to old-timers in Pittsburgh memories of the old Homewood race track of some 40 years ago, where the Grand Circuit held forth . . . Maude S. and other famous stars of the trotting world raced there in those days, with McCracken the sponsor . . . A son, Alex McCracken, who survives, was a famous athlete at Shady Side and East Liberty Academies and Wash-Jeff and later played baseball in the Ohio and Pennsylvania League.

Pitcher Sam Dayoub and Outfielder Regis Flinn, of the Verona Club, will play with Corsicana in the Texas League this season . . . Dayoub has pitched for Wheeling and Clarksburg and Flinn was with Charleroi.

Tiger Joe Randall received a little more than $56 for his bit, along with a broken left hand, for his 10-round bout with Billy Holt the other night. . . . He won the bout, but didn't get the decision, so don't be surprised if he socks you with his good right hand if he happens to run across you. . . . You'd feel tough, too, under the circumstances.

The annual A. B. C. tenpin tournament is scheduled for Detroit from March 8 to April 11, and Pittsburgh will be represented by its usual number of keglers. . . . The word keglers is not derived from "keg," in the event you thought it was. . . . Mike Brady, the star golf professional, has made seven holes in one in his time, two of them in one round.

What with the latest changes in the rules, the football fans may be pardoned if they think they are looking at a jolly good game of cricket next fall . . . Only cricket still is a brutal sport—on the spectators. . . Our Pirates are off to a good start on the 1932 season . . . The advance squad reached camp yesterday and so far hasn't been defeated.

Johnny Freund, who recently staged that professional basketball game between the Cleveland Rosenblum Celtics and the Brooklyn Americans at Motor Square Garden and drew a paying crowd, expects to show the Rosies there again the second week in March, with the famous Renaissance Negro team furnishing the opposition . . . All three local college basketball teams turned in victories Saturday night, which means the season soon will be over . . . And the track season—of all things—is upon us!

It will pay you to read Lawson Robertson's series of articles on the Olympic Games beginning in Wednesday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph . . . The head coach of America's teams carries you back to the origin of the classic games by the Greeks and traces the history of the competition up to the present . . . Knowing the background of the meet will help you to enjoy reading about or viewing the spectacle in Los Angeles this summer.—HARRY KECK.

Campbell May Try For Mark Tomorrow

FLYING DUTCHMEN COPS

PEWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—John Buckstaff and J. Camp Van Dyke, sailing the Flying Dutchmen, won the International Hearst Trophy yesterday in the third of a series of ice boat races on Pewaukee Lake. The winning time for the 10-mile course was 53 minutes and 51 seconds.

PAULSON SETS RECORD

RED WING, Minn., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Setting a new jump record for the Charlie Hill here, Gutrok Paulson, Chicago, yesterday won the Central Ski Association tournament with 216.9 points. He had jumps of 141 feet and 148 feet, the latter 12 feet better than the mark of 136 established by Casper Olmen, Canton, S. D.

M.-A. DROPS FOUR CLUBS

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—The Middle Atlantic League will play the 1932 baseball season with eight clubs. At a meeting yesterday, Fairmont, Scottdale, Beaver Falls and Charleroi were dropped. The 1932 roster will include Beckley, Huntington, Charleston, Clarksburg, Cumberland, Johnstown, Youngstown and Wheeling.

The vote on dropping Fairmont was 7 to 1. The action was taken, it was explained because the Black Diamonds had rough going last season and the club is delinquent in player salaries.

FORFEITS POSTED

Scottdale, Beaver Falls and Charleroi previously had dropped from the old 12-club circuit and their action was ratified.

Beckley, Charleston, Huntington, Clarksburg and Cumberland each posted bonds of $1,500. The other three clubs guaranteed to post their bonds by March 1.

Harless Clark, director of the Clarksburg outfit, said his club has a $21,000 organization behind it.

A 126-game schedule was adopted and a split season indorsed. The season will open May 5 and close September 5, Labor Day. The first half season will end July 3.

Opening games will be Huntington at Charleston, Clarksburg at Buckley, Johnstown at Cumberland, and Youngstown at Wheeling.

Number of players will be limited to 15.

It was agreed to reduce salaries from $3,000 to $2,500 and to require a $100 guarantee for each game.

Although no confirmation could be obtained, Dave Lamb was understood to have signed a contract to manage Wheeling.

HORTON SMITH PLAYS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Horton Smith played his first game of golf yesterday since his arm was broken in an automobile accident at San Francisco last December. He later he won the medal in the national match play open championship. He will play no more tournament golf until next summer. Smith reports to the Oak Park Club, in Chicago, next April.

GENEVA HOPES TO STOP U. P. FIVE TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT

Creighton vs. West Virginia at Morgantown.
Westminster vs. Geneva at Beaver Falls.
Potomac State at W. Va. Freshmen.
Wash-Jeff at Dickinson.
Sewickley V. at Geneva Reserves.

By JESS CARVER

Westminster's skyscraping Titans can just about sew up the tri-state basketball championship tonight by beating Geneva. Also, you can set yourself for life by sticking a bomb under a good, big bank and having a million bucks blow into your lap. The game will be played in the new Beaver Falls High School gymnasium, the gym of magnificent distances.

The Titans won themselves two ball games last week, walloping unmercifully Bethany and Thiel, and as a result of Tech's socking of Allegheny Saturday, sport a mark of 12 games won and two lost today. Geneva has won 14 and lost four; Duquesne 13 and dropped a quartet and Allegheny captured 11 and lost three.

GENEVA FORMIDABLE

Beating Geneva tonight, however, will be far from an easy task. Geneva, when the team is 75 per cent right, is as tough a club as there is in the district. The Covenanters were soundly spanked by Westminster in the first match between the pair at New Wilmington, and in a vengeful spirit tonight, they figure to make it very, very exciting for the Titans.

Nevertheless, Westminster is a powerful and formidable factor. Other coaches in the section who have met the Titans or seen them play are of the opinion that this year's outfit is the best Westminster ever has boasted, and in the past Westminster has turned out some sparkling combinations. The present aggregation is accounted a better defensive machine than others in U. P. history, and the equal of the best on the attack.

The contest is one of the feature engagements of the week. In the other battle listed for this evening, Creighton's fine team, which lost a tough one to Pitt here Saturday, meets West Virginia at Morgantown.

The Mountaineers, incidentally, turned in their best performance of the season over the week-end, when they took Georgetown and Penn State on successive nights. They beat State's highly touted Lions at State College, Saturday, in one of the upsets of the schedule.

OCHSENHIRT LEADS PITT

Pitt, looking far from good, beat Creighton, thanks to the good looking Mister Russ Ochsenhirt, who outplayed the Blue Jay's towering Mister Willard Schmidt, of 6 foot 8-inch fame, and turned in the only headsup performance of the Pitt cast. Tech came to life by beating Allegheny, and the Dukes walked through three opponents, George Washington, Grove City and Georgetown.

Grove City dropped below the 50-50 rating by losing to the Dukes and Waynesburg, while the Yellow Jackets gained a position above the .500 mark. West Virginia Wesleyan served Glenville Teachers their first defeat in almost two years, Cliff Battles and company walloping the Teachers Saturday night, 40-17.

Westminster and Geneva, by the way, are scrapping not only for a strangle hold on the district title, but for the lead in the Tri-State Conference tonight. Both have won six games and lost one. So two titles may be decided at tonight's contest.

Worth the price, eh wot??

Tonight's probable lineup:

Westminster		Geneva
Kochiras	f	Mashida
Keating	f	Gilmore
Brownlee	c	Montgomery
Rice (c)	g	Graham
Alexander	g	Ashman

RUNYAN TOPS MACFARLANE

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Paul Runyan, young Port Chester, N. Y., professional, won the Gasparilla open golf championship here yesterday, defeating Willie MacFarlane, of Tickahoe, N. Y., 3 and 1, in the 36-hole final round. He received $925 for first prize, while MacFarlane's share was $625.

Peters, Former Phil Catcher, Succumbs

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—John Peters, 39, catcher with the Kansas City club, of the American Association, since 1927, died unexpectedly here last night from heart disease.

Peters began playing ball as a semi-pro in Kansas City, but came to the Blues from Hollywood, of the Coast League. He had played with the Philadelphia Nationals and in the Southern Association.

At the time of his death, he was planning to leave March 1 for a spring training camp. Peters is survived by his widow and six children.

HERRERA, COHEN SET FOR BOUT

POPULAR TONY IN WINDUP AT GARDEN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tony Herrera vs. Denver Mickey Cohen, 10 rounds; Guy Salerno vs. Jimmy Taylor, 8 rounds, and Sailor Matty vs. Lee Sata and Bobby Wilson vs. Sharkey Lesko, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

Phil Rafferty vs. Paulie Walker, Jimmy McNamara vs. Eddie Guida and Tony Caragliano vs. Willie Siegal, 10 rounds each, St. Nicholas Arena, New York.

Max Baer vs. Tom Heeney, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Amateur bouts, Sharon, Pa.

Willie Wallace vs. Frank Fullam and Vincent Green vs. Frank Biangasso, 6 rounds each, Jamaica, L. I.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Tony Herrera is back with us tonight.

Tony Herrera

None of the boxing shows hereabouts has been drawing well lately and it is hoped that the return of the colorful Tony will inject new life into the sport.

This is the second clash between Tony and Mickey. They fought a torrid 12-rounder in Kansas City a little more than a week ago, with Cohen finishing in great style and Tony needing a big early lead to grab off the decision. Mickey also has fought a number of other prominent lightweights around the country and is heading East for an invasion of New York. Both Herrera and Cohen worked out in the Garden gym yesterday afternoon.

SALERNO IN SEMI-FINAL

Guy Salerno, the Los Angeles middleweight, undismayed by his setback by George Courtney at the Moose Temple last week, returns in the eight-round semi-final tonight against Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, who has boxed here a number of times before, always impressing as a rugged boxer and a good puncher.

Lee Sala, of Depora, will take the place of Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, who is ill, against Sailor Matty, Homestead middleweight, in the second bout, and Sharkey Lesko, of McKeesport, will bat for Max Elling, whose sister has just died, against Bobby Wilson, of the East End, in the opener at 8:30 o'clock.

WILSON BOXES DAVIES

Jackie Wilson, East End Negro bantamweight, and Willie Davies, veteran star, of Charleroi, box the windup at Eddie Kapphan's Arena in Addison street, off Center avenue, Friday night. Indications are that there will be no show in the Moose Temple on Wednesday night. A card of 19 bouts makes up the semi-finals and finals of the Greater Pittsburgh amateur championship tournament in Jim McGirr's McKeesport arena tonight, the conclusion of competition that held forth for two nights last week.

Davy Grove, of the North Side, and Marty McHale, of McKeesport, have been signed for the eight-round semi-final to the Davies-Wilson battle.

Word comes from Promoter Al Gill, of Youngstown, that he has signed Gorilla Jones and Billy Hood to box his windup next Monday night.

FABIANI TO BE HERE

Ray Fabiani, of Philadelphia, will be here in person for his opening wrestling show in Motor Square Garden, Thursday night, in which Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former champion, and John Maxos, Greek, will appear in the main bout, according to Charley Reinecke, Fabiani's local partner. A change has been made in the card whereby Babe Caddock will take the place of Joe Harper, who is ill, against George Kotsonaros.

SWIM RECORD BROKEN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Else Jacobsen, of Copenhagen, established what is claimed to be a new world record for the 200-meter breast stroke today when she swam the distance in 3 minutes 8 3-5 seconds beating Miss Karston Isberg, of Sweden, by one yard. Both will compete in the coming Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

NEW BEDFORD WINS

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—The New Bedford Whalers will represent the East in the National Cup competition of the United States Soccer Football Association. The Whalers, unbeaten champions of eastern Massachusetts, qualified as eastern champions by defeating the New York Giants here, 5 to 0, and will meet the western winner for the national title.

PERFECT BOWLING SCORE

Golfers to Make Tourney Rounds In Boats

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Players in the invitation golf tournament of the Houston Country Club faced the prospect today of making part of their rounds in boats.

Flood waters backed into Slaughter Pen Bayou, creating an unwelcome water hazard on several holes, and officials arranged for boats to transport players at numbers 3, 8, 11 and 18.

At No. 8, the boats would have to cross almost quarter of a mile of water to take the players from the seventh green to a spot near the ninth tee.

MANDELL PLANS 'COMEBACK'

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Sports Writer.
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—A champion at 22, an ex-champion at 26. And today, at the age of 28, just a preliminary fighter whose one ambition is to be a champion again.

That's the story—a rather tragic one—of Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion of the world, who is quietly training at Daytona Beach in the firm belief that some day he will be crowned the king of the welterweight division.

OUT OF "MENTAL FOG"

Hiking along the boardwalk with an International News Service reporter today, Mandell revealed in discussing his "comeback" that he is emerging from a "mental fog" which came upon him along about the time he unexpectedly lost his title to Al Singer, who knocked him out in the Yankee Stadium, New York, July 17, 1930, in the first round, after one minute 32 seconds of fighting. Singer subsequently lost the championship to Tony Canzoneri, who once was beaten by Mandell.

"I haven't said much about this before, but, after the Singer fight, I went up to the Mayo Brothers' Hospital at Rochester, Minn., to find out what was wrong with me," Mandell said. "After a thorough examination, they told me I was suffering from mental exhaustion.

HAZY ON SINGER BOUT

"Mental exhaustion, that's what took me out of the championship and that's why I have been in virtual retirement ever since. I knew I was physically all right because I always took care of myself. I never ran around to night clubs or dissipated in any way. I wasn't punch drunk because, being a good boxer, I did not have to take beatings in the ring.

"I lost my mental co-ordination quite suddenly. I knew what I wanted to do, but couldn't do it, particularly in my last fight with Jimmy McLarnin. It is quite possible I had trained too long and too conscientiously and that I had not learned how to relax.

"The night I lost the title to Singer everything went black when the referee called us to the center of the ring. I can't even now tell you who the referee was. I don't remember a thing of what happened once the bell rang."

PRINCETON BIDS FOR CRISLER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Herbert O. Crisler, athletic director and former football coach at the University of Minnesota, today was considering a definite offer to act as athletic director and coach at Princeton University.

In a long-distance telephone conference with Dr. John Greer Hibben, president of Princeton, Crisler was informed that a contract for him was in the mail, and that a salary of $12,500 a year was attached.

Crisler said today that he would keep a previous date to meet officials of the University of Wisconsin at Madison on Wednesday to talk over their offer of the position of head football coach.

He will then proceed East to confer with President Hibben and other Princeton officials.

It was generally considered here that Crisler would accept the Princeton post, but feels in duty bound to keep his date with the Wisconsin officials.

Tick On Sande's Choice in Derby

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Earl Sande, noted jockey, picks Tick On to win this year's Kentucky Derby.

Sande, stopping here en route to florida on his honeymoon, said the black colt owned by the Loma stable of Mrs. L. G. Kaufman has the best chance in the turf classic.

He said he weighs 126 pounds—too heavy to ride in the Derby—but he hoped to get down to 115.

He was married a few days ago to Mrs. Clarence Kummer, widow of another famous jockey.

RUTH-BURKE BOW

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth and Billy Burke were beaten, 3 and 1, in an exhibition golf match here yesterday by Joseph B. Schoiman, Detroit, and Walter Hagen, former National and British open champion.

IVRY RACE VICTOR

AUTEUIL, France, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—L. Dunn's Ivry won the Prix Robert Hennessy, a 3,500 meter steeplechase handicap, which featured the reopening of Auteuil's track yesterday. La Pregate was second and Bouchon third.

SQUASH PLAY SET BACK

The city squash racquets Class B championship, scheduled to get under way today at the Keystone A. C., has been postponed until Wednesday.

BRAME ACCEPTS TERMS; LEAVES TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pitcher Ervin Brame, one of the most prominent of the Pirate holdouts, signed his 1932 contract today after a conference with the officials of the club.

Brame drove to Pittsburgh unexpectedly with Mrs. Brame, who is a Pittsburgh girl. A short time ago he gave out a statement at his Kentucky home to the effect that he would refuse to sign a document that called for a 12 per cent cut as compared with his salary for last summer.

The Pittsburgh bosses declared last week that the differences between the player and his employers were so small they were sure to be adjusted in time for him to report to Manager George Gibson as a member of the second squad.

ACCEPTS REDUCTION

Brame is reported to have drawn down approximately $11,000 for his work last year, but he had a poor season and it is likely he consented to a reduction. He is the club's chief pinch hitter.

In charge of the club's new business manager, Lawrence B. Coller, the second squad of Pirates will leave for California tomorrow night, the departure to be taken from the Pennsylvania Station at 10:30. The rear guard will follow the identical route of the vanguard, which reached the Paso Robles camp yesterday afternoon. The Santa Fe will carry the Pittsburghers to Los Angeles, where they will change to the Southern Pacific for the remainder of the tour to the training site. The second party is due to reach camp Saturday afternoon.

OFF TOMORROW

Scout Bill Hinchman will come from his Columbus home to embark with tomorrow's junket. Others in the party, aside from Coller, will be Adam Comorosky, Ervin Brame, Dave Barbee, Augustin Dugas, Floyd Young and Howard Groskloss. There is a possibility, however, that Groskloss will be held up a few days on account of his studies at the Yale School of Medicine.

Pitchers Heinie Meine, Larry French and Bill Swift remain as the club's most pronounced holdouts, it is believed.

ADVANCE GUARD ARRIVES

The initial rehearsal for the 1932 pennant onslaught will be held today.

Manager George Gibson will open the training activities with a talk on what he expects from his crew while they are in camp and during the regular season. Two workouts a day are planned.

Gibson said he is confident he has a good foundation for a winning team among his regulars and that "if the youngsters show all that I expect of them, then Pittsburgh will have a very much improved team on the field next April."

The party detraining at Paso Robles was composed of Pitchers Spencer, Wood, Niggeling, Kennedy, Harris, Taylor, Grace and McEwan, Outfielder Jensen, Coach Hartley, Trainers Jorgensen and Aston and Manager and Mrs. Gibson.

Citizens of Paso Robles and nearby towns were at the station to welcome the Buccaneers.

Kremer, French, Brame and Meine were still among the missing late last night. Johnny Rice and Jim Bivin, a pair of rookies, also are on the scene of action.

CARDS BEGIN WORK

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Members of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals began arriving yesterday for the training season, which opens today. Those who arrived are: Pitchers Flint Rhem, Paul Derringer and Tex Carleton, recruit from Houston; Outfielders George Watkins and Ray Blades, Catcher Mike Gonzales and Eve Jenkins.

Manager Gabby Street heads a delegation of 10 which is due today. The first workout will be held this afternoon.

News From Spring Training Camps

SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Work for the young Cubs was due to become heavier today as Manager Rogers Hornsby worked on pitchers to have them ready for the opening of the second squad at the end of the week.

Of the recruit pitchers, Lyle (Bud) Tinning, who won 24 games, 16 of them in a row, while losing two for Des Moines in the Western League last year, was impressive. Hornsby, as has Joe Warrene, Clare Barton, outfielder, who finished the season with the Cubs last year, also is getting plenty of pointers, especially on batting form.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Fourteen pitchers and three catchers of the New York Yankees were scheduled to inaugurate spring training here today under the direction of Manager Joe McCarthy. Infielders and outfielders will not report until a week from today.

McCarthy stopped off in Washington on his journey southward, revising reports that he was trying to trade Tony Lazzeri, veteran second baseman, to the Senators for Pitcher Fred Marberry.

CAREY DIRECTS DODGERS

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Skull practice, lightning up exercises and a new set of training rules greeted the errant Brooklyn Dodgers who reported today to their new manager, Max Carey, for their first workout of the season. There will be a training table, an 11 p. m. curfew, and a moratorium on horseback plays, Carey announced.

Pitcher Dazzy Vance, ringleader of the six holdouts, dispatched word here he would sign a contract for $17,000, a cut of $5,500 from his last year's pay. The club has offered him $15,000.

SPEAKER, BANCROFT PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Three great ball players of other years, Tris Speaker, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Dave Bancroft, will play on the Joe E. Brown baseball team against the Buster Keaton team here next Sunday.

Brown and Keaton are assembling all-star nines for the game, with all the proceeds going to the American Olympic finance committee, southern division. The money will be used to train and transport Yankee stars to the games here next summer.

By TOM BIRKS

Playing a good game on a heavy field, with a large crowd on hand, Morgan practically cinched the Keystone Soccer League pennant by defeating the Curry club, 5 goals to 1, at Morgan yesterday afternoon.

FIRST HALF EXCITING

The first half of the Morgan game was exciting, Mitchell scoring within five minutes, and Molly equalizing shortly afterward.

The going was heavy and the players experienced much trouble. Curry and Morgan both were short handed but the juniors put up a good game.

Molly's shot was one of the finest of the season, the ball being flashed in from the touch line. Before half time, F. Mitchell staged a brilliant individual effort, beating several men and smashing the ball into the net.

FORWARDS HELD

Mogan monopolized the second half entirely. Dave Matthews and Chappel held the Curry forwards, while Urbanic and Mitchell again ran wild. Urbanic scored twice in quick succession, and Mitchell shot through Posel's legs for the fifth and last goal.

Mitchell, Chappel, Powell and Molly were the outstanding players, but the field was too heavy to permit a real concerted action by either club. The lineup:

Morgan—5.		Curry—1.
Burnaby	G	Posel
Cyle	R. B.	Villani
Urbanic	L. B.	Petrovitch
Chappel	C. H.	Sopko
Matthews	L. H.	Mangus
A. Mitchell	R. W.	Rankin
F. Mitchell	O. R.	Bruce
McCosky	I. R.	Powell
Urbanic	C.	Kirk
Lyons	C. L.	Innocenti
Stenzel	O. L.	Molly

Goals—M. Mitchell, 3, Urbanic 2, Molly. Referee—Brannigan.

W. VA. TO PARE SPORT BUDGET

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—H. A. Stansbury, athletic director at West Virginia University, said today the university is considering reduction of the overhead costs of its coaching staff, but added that no fixed cut had been agreed upon by the athletic council.

Stansbury said published reports that the coaching staff budget is to be reduced about $15,000 were without official foundation. There will be nothing definite concerning the personnel of the staff, he said, until the university board of governors considers the 1932-33 budget in July.

The athletic director refused to express an opinion on whether the present staff would be reduced by consolidation of duties or whether the salaries of all would be cut.

A super-attraction to climax the most pretentious winter sports program ever attempted by West Virginia University is the hope of Mountaineer athletic department officials for March 8 when three University of Pittsburgh combinations—varsity basketball and boxing and freshman basketball—are scheduled to meet the Mountaineers.

A formal invitation has been forwarded to Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, to attend the triple-header, as a guest of the athletic department.

Brooklyn Fighter Dies After Kayo

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(INS.)—Robert Brown, 25, Brooklyn fighter, died of cerebral hemorrhage Saturday night after being knocked down in a preliminary bout at the 14th Regiment Armory. His opponent, police said, was Joseph Sanisuvero, 23, who fights under the name of Joseph Padetta.

The fighters were mixing blows a. a rapid rate in the second round when Padetta, according to police, landed a hard blow on Brown's jaw. Brown was knocked down, his head striking the canvass-covered floor of the arena. He died a few minutes later.

LWOW, Poland, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—A boxing match here last night ended in the death of a middleweight fighter named Godlowski, who was knocked out in the third round and failed to recover consciousness.

Favorites Advance In Miami Net Play

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Favorites advanced without difficulty yesterday in the first round of the Pan-American tennis tournament here. Count George Du Manoir, Paris, won the only bitterly contested match when he advanced over Steve Zacher, Miami, 6-2, 15-13. Theodore Drewes, of St. Petersburg, won 6-0, 6-3, from Dwight Collins, Miami.

Perkins and Tryon Beaten in Final

CORAL GABLES, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Sinking two eagle 3s as dusk hovered over the course, Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, Fla., won for himself, and Tommy Aycock, also of Jacksonville, the first international amateur four-ball match title here by defeating T. LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

RADIO'S TRIBUTE to "The Father of His Country" beginning with the broadcast of President Hoover's address before the joint session of Congress at noon today, continues throughout the afternoon and evening.

Heading the programs originating in Pittsburgh is the Chamber of Commerce banquet on KQV at 8:50, with Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, as principal speaker. The cabinet member will be introduced by Col. Samuel Harden Church.

Outstanding on the WCAE schedule is the address by Attorney General Mitchell at 10 o'clock tonight on "The Supreme Court of Washington's Time." Erno Rapee's "March of the States" presentation at 9:30 salutes Washington, D. C. Afternoon features include dedication of the bust of Lafayette at New York University's Hall of Fame and the Washington testimonial rebroadcast from Venezuela.

KDKA's Washington features include the Boston program and international broadcasts from Italy and Germany this afternoon and appropriate marches by Maj. T. J. Vastine's band in the "Westinghouse Parade" at 6:15. WJAS offers an afternoon "Washington Birthday Party."

Program Pointers

Mildred Hunt, radio's blue-eyed pioneer contralto, is staging a comeback on the WJAS "Broadcast Rehearsal" program at 9:15.

An all-Chopin program commemorates the 122d anniversary of the Polish composer on KDKA at 4:30.

Miss Hunt

Jack, Tony and Pete, KQV's Blues Chasers, win a night-spot at 8:15 because of their morning program's popularity.

The directress of the Home Circle, Grace Ellis, finds it difficult occasionally to answer some of the questions asked her by listeners. Circle members want to know:

"How can I obtain lots of pep?" . . . "My daughter is in love with a man younger than herself. What shall I do?" . . . "When a couple goes to a minister to get married, is it proper for the bride to be kissed in the minister's presence?"

And these are only a few specimens!

Loew's Penn Stars In Nite Club

The Embassy Trio, three vocal harmonists, appearing this week at Loew's Penn Theater in Joe Cook's Vaudeville Revue, feature the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club program on WCAE at 11 o'clock tonight. In addition to their songs, they offer piano and harp selections. Lois Miller, singing organist of the Penn, also is on the program with special request numbers.

Herb McGee, popular announcer, makes his debut as master of ceremonies for the Nite Club tonight, replacing Riggs and Moke, who are scheduled for regular 7:15 p. m. programs Wednesday and Saturday.

The Sun-Telegraph Family's children's program is on WCAE from 4:45 to 5:15 p. m. today.

Because of the Washington celebration program on the networks at the same time, Louis L. Kaufman will not be heard in his usual 12:15 news broadcast today. However, he gives his other regular broadcasts at 9:05 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

SEES STRONG STEEL PICKUP

CLEVELAND, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Lack of substantial railroad and automotive demands continues the chief handicap of steel producers, yet this lack suggests an element of future strength, the magazine Steel said today.

Current production virtually represents minimum needs of important outlets for steel other than the railroads and automobile manufacturers. These needs apparently, will go no lower, while any change in the transportation industries must be on the side of improvement.

Steel making operations declined 2 per cent to 25 per cent last week and probably will remain at the same rate this week, the magazine said.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

COPPER BUYING TAPERS OFF

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Recent advances in copper reflected improved foreign demand, but when domestic buying failed to broaden, purchases from abroad also tapered off. Electrolytic for delivery in the Connecticut Valley was offered by smelters last week at 6¼c, although some larger producers were asking ¼c higher. Uncertainty over the outcome of renewed conferences between domestic and foreign producers has made buyers cautious.

Buying of tin continued restricted with prices fluctuating irregularly in a narrow range. Moderate demand for lead has developed at steady prices with consumers buying for part of their March requirements against orders for finished products.

Although only a fair demand for zinc was reported, the undertone was steadier owing partly to refusal of some dealers to sell at recent market levels, and partly to a steadier ore market. Antimony declined moderately under pressure of prompt metal and restricted demand.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The poultry markets remained steady; demand fair; supply adequate without changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets ruled firm; demand good; supply nominal with slight changes in butter quotations.

Carlot supplies were moderate with 329 cars on track. Arrivals included 5 cars apples, 4 bananas, 2 cabbage, 1 celery, 2 grapefruits, 1 kale, 2 lemons, 6 lettuce, 8 onions, 1 orange, 1 parsnip, 9 potatoes, 2 strawberries, 2 sweet potatoes, 5 spinach, 2 tangerines and 1 potatoes.

Forbes

Reconstruction Forces Getting Up Full Steam.

By B. C. FORBES

SENTIMENT HAS RISEN; spending hasn't. Stocks, bonds and most farm products show substantial betterment; very few industries do.

FINANCIAL RATHER than agricultural and industrial developments have held the center of the stage.

Mr. Forbes

Wall street was precipitated into a state of excitement by an announcement late on Thursday by the New York Stock Exchange that after March 31 brokers must not lend stocks to "shorts" without written authorization from customers. The first interpretation was that this would practically abolish short selling. Consequently, quotations shot up sensationally the following morning.

Reflection revealed, however, that bears would still find ways and means to continue short selling on some scale. This realization caused quotations to recede on Friday afternoon. And Saturday demonstrated that the bears had overcome their acute nervousness.

WHEREAS THE STOCK Exchange governors had been given credit for this latest handicap on bear selling, President Hoover promptly revealed that his administration was responsible for the move. It would have been infinitely better had the exchange authorities acted voluntarily. Public sentiment against the New York Stock Exchange has become so hostile that unwise legislative measures may be enacted. Had the exchange governors gone the limit in mollifying public clamor, this danger probably could have been averted.

This writer, although he earnestly urged President Whitney to experiment with suspension of short selling because of aroused public antagonism, because of the already disastrous slaughter of market values, and because of the recent danger of further disastrous demoralization, is profoundly convinced that the forbidding of all short selling by legislation might produce unforeseen unfortunate results, results which perhaps could not be speedily corrected by our lawmakers.

Instead of rushing restrictive legislation on the statute books, Washington should afford opportunity for this latest reform to be given a fair trial. To go further at this juncture would seem to be ill-advised.

THE BANKING WORLD is greatly encouraged over the prospect of the immediate adoption of the very helpful provisions of the Glass-Steagall law. Candidly, the banking world is badly in need of encouragement. Much nervousness still prevails under the surface. Metropolitan banks are still being called upon to mend "weak spots" throughout the country. They have done far more mending of this nature than has been revealed to the public. Indeed, if the full facts were known, condemnation of many leading bankers would be less sweeping.

This week should see the National Finance Corporation, the Railway Credit Corporation, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Glass-Steagall relief measures actively functioning. Bankers are now more hopeful that threatened troubles will be largely averted. At that, they are still in a sober frame of mind. They cannot reason out how bonds and stocks can record any substantial, permanent advance until the market has absorbed a great mass of securities now carried involuntarily.

THOSE PESSIMISTICALLY inclined continue to emphasize that of real trade or industrial recovery there has thus far been scant evidence. They admit that expectations have brightened. And they cannot ignore the rise in various basic commodities. But, things having gone so much farther in the wrong direction than anyone anticipated, they are "from Missouri" concerning actual business improvement.

WITH SO MANY reconstructive forces going into action, with the prospect that credit will become distinctly less difficult to obtain, is it not reasonable to figure that the advent of spring may definitely turn the tide?

SINCLAIR TAKES SHELL SALES EXECUTIVE

Oil Man's Excellent Record Adds to Prestige of Firm; Sees New Stability Near

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

WILLIAMS, Ariz., Feb. 22.—A San Francisco executive, Herbert Gallagher, chief sales executive of the Shell interests in California, has been selected for the presidency of the Consolidated Oil Corporation, the merger of the Sinclair Prairie units.

The Rockefeller and Sinclair groups exchanged suggestions of 40 possible executives to head the consolidation, and Mr. Gallagher was the only one acceptable to both sides.

Mr. Rukeyser

He was chosen because of his fine record as an operating executive.

His appointment heightens the prestige of the new consolidation. His competitors in California are loathe to see him leave because he has always been a leader in constructive plans for the good of the industry.

The president of one of the major California companies told me that the Shell interests, in his opinion, blundered in not holding on to Mr. Gallagher.

Mr. Gallagher will go to New York early in March to take over his new work. He thinks that the oil industry is gradually getting on a more stable basis. He believes it is important, however, to get a better price for the crude.

The consolidation, according to Mr. Gallagher, adds to the crude reserves of Sinclair and gives it a participation in the profits of the Prairie Pipeline, instead of continuing to patronize pipelines in which it has no stake. As for Prairie, its market for crude was restricted by recent realignments

ANCIENT RAIL FIGHT SETTLED

KANE, Pa., Feb. 22.—An ancient railroad war at Smethport, 25 miles east of Kane, has been settled by the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern Railway making arrangements to acquire the terminal property of the defunct Kushequa Railroad at Smethport. Years ago the Kushequa Railroad acquired the right of way of the Bradford, Bordell and Kinzua line, a narrow gauge railroad, including a crossing of the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern in Smethport Borough. The Kushequa road and the Shawmut line were rivals for the patronage of that section and the fight waged over the crossing was a bitter one, climaxed by pitched battles between employes of the two roads.

Finally the Kushequa was awarded the crossing. Elisha Kent Kane, owner of the Kushequa line, had a huge ferry-car constructed to ferry the standard gauge engines and cars, one at a time, across the narrow gauge crossing. The contrivance was used until lack of patronage caused the abandonment of the Kushequa line. Fourteen miles of track between Smethport and Kushequa, formerly used by the defunct railroad, will be torn up this summer and the station building at Smethport, which has been acquired by the Shawmut line, will be used for a freight depot.

STEEL KEY TO JAPAN THRUST

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Steel furnishes the key to Japanese aggression in Manchuria, says The Iron Age. Japan's military action was not prompted by the land hunger of its teeming millions, but rather by the desire to obtain more complete control of basic materials essential to the development of its steel industry.

Japan's production of steel ingots and castings in 1929, its peak year, was 2,293,840 tons. To achieve this output it was necessary to import large quantities of pig iron, as well as iron and steel scrap.

Future expansion of steel production would increase the island empire's dependence on foreign sources of raw materials, since domestic deposits of iron ore and coking coal are small and of poor quality. The only hope of building up a self-contained iron and steel industry lay in further exploitation of the mineral resources of Manchuria, where Japan already had a "sphere of influence" and large investments.

Additional capital outlays in Manchuria would not be warranted, according to the Japanese view, without political security. Hence the campaign to drive out "bandits" and to set up a government under Japanese suzerainty.

DREW CHARGES BEFORE JURY

BRADFORD, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Evidence against Webster G. Drew, former Treasurer of Bradford, who is charged with embezzlement and misapplication of funds was laid before the McKean County grand jury today.

Drew was ordered by mandamus several weeks ago to turn over to the city all properties in his possession. City Solicitor Francis M. Nash maintains Drew failed to comply with the order and still holds certain records and a Liberty bond.

In Loving Memory of Tom Riley,
the world was all unbroken when she went,
Since days had passed and trembling spring
Had lost awakened everything.
And on what beauty her young life has meant
Sadly missed by her family.

Ken's Parents Take Steps to Have Marriage to Lily Lou Annulled

CHAPTER XVI.

They had breakfast sent up. It was Ken's idea. He said you always had breakfast in your room when you stayed at hotels, and he laughed at her because she hopped out of bed and hid in the bathroom while the elderly bellhop was arranging the tray on the card table he had brought.

Lily Lou didn't mind his laughing. She laughed too. She felt as though she had been married for ages, not just one day. "I'm Mrs. Kentfield Carey Sargent. That's," she thought, combing her hair before the small bathroom mirror, and was a little surprised to see that she looked just the same—just Lily Lou Lansing, not married looking at all.

Ken had a San Francisco morning paper. "There's not a thing about our wedding—must be an awfully early edition," he said.

Lily Lou put down her coffee cup. "Why—did you think—"

"I naturally expected Dad would give out the news—"

He had another morning paper sent up, but there was nothing in that, either. After that he seemed anxious to be on the way, so Lily Lou packed, feeling important and domestic as she folded Ken's bathrobe, and laid it in his suitcase.

He drove very fast. Much faster than there was any necessity for, she thought. "I'm kind of anxious to get home and get it over with," he admitted.

REACH SARGENT HOME

When they reached Oakland and drove down the tree-shaded street that led to his home she began to tremble. She had felt his uneasiness all the long drive. She looked up at him a little pathetically. He shouldn't let the thought of his parents make him uneasy when they were you might say, on their wedding trip ...just married yesterday.

"Gee, you look glum. Mother won't bite you," he said as they stopped in front of the Sargent place, and Lily Lou stepped out of the car.

"I'm not glum. I'm just scared!"

So after all, they went in laughing.

She had never been inside the gates before. It was one of the few old homes still standing in what was now a rather exclusive apartment district.

You went in a tall iron gate, up a brick path to the house—large and rather square, with immense plate glass windows, and broad inviting verandas, shaded with climbing roses and a tall purple bougainvillia vine.

Ken said, "Let's do this thing right," and rang the bell, slipping his keys back into his pocket.

Annie, the maid, opened the door. At sight of her florid, square face and ashblond hair—Annie!—the same old Annie he'd known for years, Ken's happiness returned. He grabbed her, both arms around her square unyielding waist—"Kiss the bridegroom, Annie!" he shouted. "Don't faint, you squarehead! Didn't you know I was married?"

The maid closed her mouth, stared, round eyed and frightened at Lily Lou—"What? Mr. Ken—YOU—Married?"

"Yes, and this is Mrs. Sargent, Lily Lou, this is Annie Nelson—used to be my best girl before I met you—good old Annie!"

Mrs. Sargent must have heard them. She was coming down the stairs, her hand on the fine, old balestrade, a grave smile on her lips.

"That will do, Annie," she said.

Lily Lou wanted to hide behind Ken, but she didn't. She stood her ground, watched this tall, self-possessed woman in golf clothes—her mother-in-law now—descend the stairs.

"Well, mother, you got the news! Lily Lou and I— Lily Lou and I—"

His voice quivered a little. Lily Lou's face burned with shame. He wasn't doing it right . . . and again she had that feeling that it was she . . . Her shame for him was as if it were for herself. She bit her lip, to stop its quivering. Followed Ken's mother into a small glassed-in room furnished in wicker rose patterned glazed chintz.

It seemed so out of place—this bright, sunny room, Ken's mother in her informal sports clothes, and the steely glint in her eye—

Lily Lou held her head high. She thought, "This is going to be hard—harder than I thought. She really hates me—"

QUESTIONED BY MOTHER

Ken was sprawled in a chair. Lily Lou was on the soft, deeply cushioned sofa. Ken's mother, long and lean and graceful, sat on the arm of a big chair.

"Perhaps it would be less painful if I spoke to my son alone," she said, smiling her cold, slow smile at Lily Lou.

"You can say whatever there is to say, to us both," Ken cut in decisively. And at that show of spirit from him Lily Lou's heart quickened. She felt a glow of grateful pride.

"I merely wished to spare Miss Lansing."

"Mrs. Sargent!" Ken snapped.

Ken's mother smiled down at her ringed hands. "Very well. That's what I am coming to. Now, how many people know about this thing?"

"Why Lily Lou's people, and you and dad and—that's all, I guess."

Lily Lou saw the look of relief on the older woman's face, as she said, "I'm glad that you showed that much sense, sonny."

"Oh, I'm not trying to keep it a secret. You needn't think that. I thought Dad would have given it to the papers before this. Why, I really expected to find a bunch of reporters—" He broke off, embarrassed.

"The less publicity we have the better it will be for us all."

"You needn't think you can break this up, mother—"

Ken, white-faced and furious, was on his feet. His mother, still unruffled, smiled faintly at her rings. Lily Lou could bear no more. She stood up, said with all the dignity she could muster, "Ken, I think it would be better for you to speak to your mother alone. I'll be waiting outside—in the car."

Mrs. Sargent rose also. "Let the maid show you to the library. It will be pleasanter to wait there—"

Ken gripped Lily Lou's elbow so tightly that it hurt. "I said I wanted you to stay—anything my mother has to say—"

"But I must go—Ken, I must—"

"You can go in a second. I see what mother has to say. If it's what I think it is, it's no use staying. Do you hear that, mother? If you won't accept Lily Lou it's goodbye to the two of us . . . And that goes for dad, too!"

Ken was shouting now. Mrs. Sargent's voice, low, beautifully modulated, answered, "Don't dramatize it, sonny. You can darken our door any time you choose. And, as always, you can bring any of your friends." She smiled, almost kindly, at Lily Lou. "But the fact is—" She broke off, turned suddenly to Lily Lou, and her voice was hard now. "My dear girl, do you know that my son is not of age? That he has not his parents' consent to marry, and that we can, and will, have this illegal marriage annulled?"

Lily Lou opened her mouth to speak, looked appealingly at Ken. Ken would have to say something—she—she couldn't—

"I will be 21 in September!"

"And this is June."

Lily Lou gripped the arm of the sofa. She was trembling violently. Her face was as red as fire, and she choked back tears of helpless rage. It wasn't fair . . . Ken should have thought of that . . . and yet . . . and yet . . . It was really she who had brought on this marriage . . . she made him do it . . .

She must have sobbed, because Ken came and put his arms around her. "Never mind, honey, we're going—"

"Yes—let's go—away from here—"

Ken's mother followed them to the door. "This is sheer nonsense, Kentfield," she said briskly, "I tell you your father has already taken steps. Your marriage is no marriage at all!"

"I won't leave Lily Lou!"

"I tell you the marriage will be annulled!"

"All right. In September I'll marry her again. In the meanwhile if you want to start a swell scandal about your own son, go to it! Go ahead! See if I care!"

"Kentfield, I'm ashamed of you. My dear boy—listen to me—"

They went down the stairs, Lily Lou red and humiliated, Ken, white and shaking with passion.

Ken started the motor, drove off. Lily Lou looked at his white, set face . . . He was driving fast . . . but where? Where, in all the world, was there a place for them to go?

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, pretty, young telephone operator lives with her married sister in moderate circumstances. She is torn between desire for an operatic career and love for the wealthy Ken Sargent, but, following a party at Ken's home, she realizes they are unsuited socially and decides to give him up. Ken overrules her objections and she accepts his proposal of marriage. They go to Woodlake for their license and the next day they return there and are married. The newlyweds go to the home of Lily Lou's parents and reveal the news.

Now Go On

ALL IN A DAY — By MARK HELLINGER

Story in the Paper

DOWN IN WASHINGTON, D. C., the other afternoon, Mr. Andrew Kelly and I had a long chat about this, that and the other thing. Although Mr. Kelly is a dramatic critic, he is a fine gentleman when you get to know him personally. More than that, during the course of our conversation, he supplied me with an excellent story. So you can readily understand why I think the world of him.

Mr. Kelly's yarn goes back to the city of Washington during those turbulent days when America first entered the World War. We find the city seething with excitement, the newspapers carrying gigantic headlines, a few Senators actually saying something before Congress—and a reporter named Jones crawling out of bed at 2 in the afternoon and nursing a hangover that was something of a classic.

After two shots of rye and a goodly portion of bromo seltzer Jones felt that it might be a good idea to report for work. At 3 o'clock he wandered into his office and strolled nonchalantly to his desk. There he found an assignment. He had been ordered to cover the graduation exercises of a very important military school that afternoon.

As a general rule, graduation exercises mean little as newspaper copy. But this was something different. Among the graduates were the sons of some of the biggest political figures in the United States. These were war days, and some tremendous names were on the speakers' list. Who knew what might break?

Jones blinked blearily, stuffed the assignment sheet into his pocket and began to walk out.

As he passed the clock he stopped suddenly. The graduation exercises were scheduled to start at 2 o'clock. And it was now long after 3. So the reporter did as all good reporters have been doing since Adam was the special correspondent for the Paradise Gazette. He shrugged his shoulders, decided to pick up the story later from one of his newspaper pals—and strolled to his favorite saloon.

Around 5 o'clock, when Jones was certain that he would rather be tight than be President, in walked his old friend, Smith. Smith was a reporter for the rival paper—but Jones and he had been working on stories together for so long that there was no rivalry between them.

"Have a drink, Smitty," cried Jones. "What'd you work on today?"

"Glass of beer," ordered Smith. "I was over at the graduation exercises of that military school. Lot of big shots present."

Jones slapped the bar.

"That's swell," he cried. "I was assigned over there, too, but I got in too late to make it. Just give me a few notes on the thing and you'll cover me."

Whereupon Smith did a strange thing. For the first time since the two men worked together, he refused to come through.

"I don't want you to be sore, Jones," he returned, "but I can't do that any more. I'll never ask you and I don't want you to ask me. An order came around this morning that forbids any member of our sheet to exchange a yarn with a member of yours. And it's so strong that any man who disregards it will absolutely be fired."

Jones attempted to argue. He pointed out that, after all, it wasn't an important story. There were no scoops to be scored. They had been such great pals.

But the other man would not change his mind.

"Nothing doing," said Smith firmly. "I have my orders, and they stand. I'll see you around some time."

He walked from the saloon. Jones remained at the bar with his fists clenched. He ordered another drink—and another. The more he drank, the angrier he became. Finally he clamped on his hat and rushed back to his office.

"I'll show them," he muttered. "I'll do a story without any help at all."

And he did, too. He sat down before his typewriter and went into a typical story of a graduation exercise. Toward the end of the third paragraph he glanced at the list of the names of those who had been advertised to speak. And among them he found Newton Baker, then the Secretary of War.

The reporter rubbed his chin. There had to be a few quotes in the story—why not a speech from Baker? No sooner considered than done. Jones composed a speech that was highly patriotic and contained two or three well rounded phrases. He quoted Mr. Baker directly, and then went on with his imaginary story.

When he was finished, he turned it in. At the moment, he didn't have a care in the world. His work was over. Whistling happily, he returned to his favorite saloon.

Meanwhile, his city editor was reading the yarn. His eyes caught the Baker speech and he nodded cheerfully.

"The Secretary of War made a great address today," he asserted. "Sorry Jones didn't give us more of it in his story. But it's a great piece anyhow. Put the story on page one and make a special box out of Baker's speech. It's full of meat."

And that's the way the paper went to press.

The following day, when Jones awakened and saw the paper, he first began to realize the seriousness of the thing he had done. He had but a hazy recollection of writing the story in the first place, and when he saw how he had quoted Baker and that the imaginary speech had made the front page, he went into an expert tremble. Baker would probably call the office with a squawk—and goob-bye job.

But lo and behold! Mr. Baker registered no squawk. The quote was picked up and published from one end of the country to the other. Perhaps Mr. Baker never saw the piece in question; perhaps he was too busy with the nation's affairs even to see a paper. At any rate, nothing was said about it. And until you read this column, no one ever knew.

After receiving the congratulations of the city editor on his fine piece of reporting, Jones wandered into the same saloon late in the afternoon. Smith was waiting for him. And in a state of great excitement.

"Jones," he cried excitedly, "you got to help me. I'm sorry about what happened yesterday. But you got to help me."

"Yes?" returned Jones easily. "What about?"

Smith gulped.

"I'm in serious trouble," he muttered. "When I got to the office, I never even reached my desk. The city editor nabbed me, pointed to your story of the graduation exercises and accused me of never having covered the thing at all. He said I had muffed Baker's speech, and that you had scooped me.

"I swore that Baker didn't even make a speech, but he called me a liar. Oh, Jones, you've got to help me get my job back."

"Job back?" repeated Jones. "You mean—"

"Exactly," cried Smith. "Because I wouldn't help you and you turned in a phony story, I've been fired." . . .

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS Junior Komic Club

Hundreds of new members were admitted to the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Saturday in the Warner neighborhood theaters.

The 17 chapters are so carefully located that children in almost every section of the city find chapter headquarters within walking distance of their homes.

Membership is increasing by leaps and bounds. Boys and girls have come to know that they can always be sure of having a good time, with games, contests, stage shows, pictures, prizes and special features every Saturday morning.

To join the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, go to the chapter headquarters nearest your home on Saturday at the hour appointed for the Junior Komic Club meeting. The schedule of meetings is published in this column every Friday. The manager of the theater will take your application, enroll you and give you your membership card and button. You may also join the club by writing to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, giving your name, address, date of birth, parent's name, and the name of the school which you attend. A membership card and button will be mailed to you and when you go to your meeting on Saturday you will be eligible to compete for prizes and participate in all the benefits of the club.

VEST POCKET LITERATURE
"The Waif of Wall Street," Translated from the Russian

The old woman sat in the dim room and nodded. With a gesture of impatience she kicked aside several rats that played at her feet. "If I'd known there weren't any floors in this house I never would have bought it," she murmured. A thin frightened child crept into the room. "Is that you, Olga?" asked the old woman. "Auntie, you know very well it was Olga who took poison last week, because her free sample of breakfast food didn't come," replied the child, nervously wringing vodka out of her apron. "All right, all right," snapped Aunt Babushka. "I just asked to be polite." "You're smoking again," said the child. "You promised not to," and she folded her arms, kicking out her legs in a few steps of the dance. "And why shouldn't I smoke?" cried the old woman. "Ain't I been carrying the torch ever since your Uncle Ivan et the caviar he found in little Petrol's beebee gun?"

A Cut in Water Rates

Reduction Announced by Philadelphia Suburban Company Calls Attention to Complaints Here.

The Philadelphia Suburban Water Company placed a new tariff schedule in effect yesterday. Following the economic trend of the times, it has reduced its rates. It was a logical thing to do, for the prices of most of the other necessities of life have come down.

No information is forthcoming as to whether or not the water companies supplying the suburban areas around Pittsburgh intend to reduce their rates. It is to be hoped they will.

One of the concessions offered by the Philadelphia concern to its customers calls attention to a complaint frequently made about local water companies. The Philadelphia company has abolished the service charge formerly levied in connection with the metered service. The service charge is a bitter pill to water consumers in the Pittsburgh area.

In investigating public utility rates Council and the County Commissioners should not overlook the water companies.

The Audit Must Go On

House Cleaning of the County's Affairs Is Necessary, Even Though Costly.

County Controller Robert G. Woodside is reported as objecting to the cost and the method of procedure in the audit now being made of the county's financial affairs.

There should be no useless expenditure, of course, but the audit must continue even though it be costly.

County Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr were elected on a platform calling for an audit, and there is not the slightest question that the citizens want the house-cleaning of the county's affairs to be thorough.

Already the investigation has disclosed dishonesty and inefficiency. It has shown how improvement can be effected, and the money and welfare of the taxpayers better safeguarded.

Having put their hand to the plow the County Commissioners should complete the furrow.

Preventers of Sickness

Allegheny County Physicians Are Showing Fresh Vigor In a Commendable Undertaking.

Free dental treatment is being furnished children recommended by social service agencies and school authorities at a clinic which has just been opened in the Jenkins Arcade by the General Health Council and the Odontological Society.

The dentists and those co-operating with them in this generous service are entitled to the thanks of the public.

Another philanthropy of kindred character must be noted to the credit of the physicians of Allegheny County. Several hundred of them have promised to participate in a campaign this year for physical examinations of pre-school children, in accordance with a plan evolved by the Public Relations Committee of the Allegheny County Medical Society.

It is a pleasure to note the fresh vigor with which the doctors are addressing themselves to the prevention of sickness.

"The Only Antidote to Whisky."

A recently discovered letter of Thomas Jefferson reads:

"I rejoice as a moralist at the prospect of a reduction in the duties on wine by our national Legislature.

"It is an error to view a tax on that liquor as merely a tax on the rich.

"It is a prohibition of its use to the middling class of our citizens and a condemnation of them to the poison of whisky which is desolating their houses.

"No nation is drunken where wine is cheap, and none sober where the dearness of wine substitutes ardent spirits as the common beverage. It is, in truth, the only antidote to the bane of whisky.

"Fix but the duty at the rate of other merchandise, and we can drink wine here as cheap as we do grog, and who will not prefer it!

"Its extended use will carry health and comfort to a much enlarged circle.

"Everyone . . . will prefer it to the poison to which they are now driven by their government."

That was written in 1818. It is still worth pasting in your hat in 1932.

Congress Should Balance The Postal Budget

In its efforts to balance the budget by 1933 Congress should not overlook the effect which the shrinkage in the general volume of business has had upon the operators of the postal service.

There was 7 per cent less mail handled throughout the country last year than during the year before. In some of the great business centers the shrinkage exceeded 10 per cent over that of the previous year. As a result of this reduction in the amount of mail handled there was a loss in postal operations of $98,000,000—one-sixth of the entire federal deficit for 1931. And the loss in postal operations for the current year will approximate $150,000,000.

To wipe out that part of the deficit due to loss in postal operations Congress should not reduce the salaries of our faithful postal employes. They are already underpaid. It would be unjust to them to pay them less than they are getting and it would be injurious to postal efficiency.

What Congress should do and that promptly, is to increase the rate on non-local lettermail from 2 cents to 3 cents.

This recommendation has been made by both the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster General. Congress should adopt it without any more dilly-dallying.

A 3-cent rate on non-local lettermail will wipe out the loss in postal operations. It will not impair the morale of our postal employes. It will be cheerfully paid by the public until good times return.

Here is a simple, sensible, workable proposal which the public indorses and Congress should be quick to adopt.

Just because this is a presidential year when politicians will burden the mails with "campaign advertising," is all the more reason why patriotic Senators and Representatives in Congress should act now to balance the postal budget by fixing a 3-cent rate on non-local lettermail.

Wives—Assets or Liabilities?

These are times when a man discovers whether he has a wife or just a "headache" on his hands—an asset or a liability.

"Depression Wives" come in many varieties—and many a man has waked up to the fact that the little contract he signed at the rectory was the most important one he ever signed in his life.

There are thousands of wives who have put away their embroidery needles, turned off their radios and gone out to hustle for jobs, to help keep the wolf from squeezing through the keyhole.

There are thousands more, who have kicked off their silver dancing slippers, put away their bridge tables, hung their tulle evening gowns in the back of the closet, donned bungalow aprons and gone into the kitchen to wrestle with baking pans and dish-mops, and get acquainted with a sink.

There are wives who have become their husbands' secretaries, chauffeurs, pants-pressers, valets and chambermaids—and are getting a lot of fun out of it.

* * *

But, there are other kinds of wives, too. The "headaches!" The liabilities! The afflictions!

The spoiled, petted, coddled baby-wives, who "just can't understand." Wives to whom their husbands dare not tell their business worries and troubles.

Dainty, delicate, bric-a-brac wives, who must be catered to, and amused and kept in the dark. Until, some day, the distracted husband faces disaster—and leaps out of the fifteenth story window, ALONE.

And there are stupid, ambitious, climbing wives, who insist on "keeping up a front," at any cost. Running bills, living in a swanky apartment they can't afford, putting on "dog" at the smart country club.

Last, but not least, there are the whining, nagging, importunate wives! The REAL "headaches," who weep and complain and taunt their harassed husbands. Because they can't go to Paris or to Florida or the Riviera, this winter. Or because they can't have a new fur coat or a seat at the opera.

Oh yes, these are days, when a man finds out whether he drew a prize or a blank in the matrimonial lottery—an asset or a liability—a pal or a "headache!"

* * *

These are days, when a wife can pull her husband out of a hole, or push him out of the window!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Came by messenger from Charles G. Norris the original of a painting, by the now famous Jean Joubert, of Norris, Gilbert White and I, done in Paris years ago, and which the novelist brought to America recently. And never has a gift so mightily delighted me.

So finished my stint and to the Chatham to a reception to James Branch Cabell and on to Charlie McAdam's and played with his baby daughter and V. V. McNitt, McClelland Barclay and Hal Phyfe came and also Charles Driscoll, Ken Kling and Ham Fisher. Home, working feverishly.

To a play, talking to John Golden's secretary, Jean Dalrymple, as pretty as her name, too. Afterward driving Rupert and Pat Hughes to the Elysee and stopped at the Messmore Kendalls who were giving a dinner to George Fitzmaurice. On to the Casino to a big party for the deservedly popular actor, William Gaxton.

Somehow, lately, I warm to the fluttery self-effacements of those stage comics, Ed Wynne and Victor Moore, in contrast to a flood of cocksure Eddie Cantors and George Jessels. Or maybe it is just the strain of waiting for my Peru bond to perk again.

Leslie Howard is an accomplished diner-out. The other night he dropped into a place off the beaten path where he was not known. A maitre de hotel bowed low and trotted off in the direction of his local version of the Black Hole of Calcutta. Reaching it, he turned to see Howard and his party occupying the best ringside table. Storming back like a threatening cloud, he inquired: "Just what does M'soo think a head-waiter is for?" Howard replied calmly: "I've never been able to figure it out."

I am told of another aloof New Yorker utterly incapable of shaking off austerity. He makes quick, cold bows even to old acquaintances. His secretary, with him 30 years, invariably tip-toes into his private office. Yet I know a secret about him that pulsates into an enormously human gesture. He keeps an old-fashioned cookie jar in the kitchen and sneaks out to it now and then.

* * *

Arthur Caesar, Hollywood gagster, was invited to dine at the Spanish castle of a director whom he never met. Before entering the dining room, the director inquired: "Would you mind walking with me awhile in the garden. I want to get used to your face."

* * *

Over at Madison Square Garden the other Friday night, two big palookas were milling about amiably without blows coming within several feet of the mark. For several rounds this went on and then one began to back round and round the ring. Finally a falsetto floated from the gallery: "That's right, Harold, ignore him."

Prize fights produce the most convulsing offside hilarities. There was the night the Bermuda Gunboat met the Norfolk Kid. The large colored section of the audience became two hostile camps—the West Indian and Barbadoes crowd against the southern darkies. After some toe-to-toe slugging, the Norfolk Kid delivered a swing from the ankle into the Gunboat's midriff—his arm disappeared as though he had reached into a big, black trunk. A voice tremoloed: "I'll take the message." A few seconds later the Gunboat's eyes fluttered and, completely groggy, he tried to arise, and whango! Kid Norfolk let him have another flush to the jaw. The same voice continued: "No trouble at all. I go right by his house."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Washington's Birthday. I am writing this beside his tomb. Pictures come—

The picture of a young nation slowly breaking its way through a wilderness, facing terrific hardship and danger, battling constantly with the heavier handicap of its own youth and ignorance; yet growing hard and fit on that struggle.

Not an extraordinarily brilliant man. Not, perhaps, a perfect man, judged by priggish standards; but in all those qualities that really count—a MAN!

A man who was willing to be hungry and cold, lonely, despised and hunted, that other men might be forevermore free.

WASHINGTON!

And then the third picture—the picture of that first small flag, so crudely made, yet carrying in its simple folds such mighty import. For that was no mere decoration, that first flag. There was a symbol of something actually done; of blood actually shed; of suffering actually borne; of brotherly help actually given. Out of all that they made it—

THE STARS AND STRIPES!

And now today that flag, grown larger, prouder, floats over this vast nation from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the St. Lawrence to the Rio Grande. And we, the heirs of these who made it, bow in reverence to that flag for which they fought.

BUT SHOULD WE BOW?
AND WHY DO WE BOW?
WHAT DOES THAT FLAG MEAN, NOW?

HOW SACRED ARE THE STARS AND STRIPES TODAY?

Are they sacred if rich men wallow while poor men starve; if powerful men default and poor men pay the bills?

Are they sacred if the leaders of the nation play politics on Capitol Hill while 15 million desperate, idle citizens and their dependents stand in breadlines, or kill themselves and their children rather than witness further their hopeless agony?

Are they sacred if, year after year, the youth of the country sinks deeper into debauchery; if crime multiplies until law and order have become a travesty?

Are they sacred if little children under 10 work in fields and factories, mines and mills?

If more mothers die in childbirth than in any other civilized country?—

If illiteracy spreads without check?—

If immorality has become a joke and lewdness passes for sophistication?

HOW SACRED ARE THE STARS AND STRIPES TODAY?

They were sacred in Washington's time, because Washington made them sacred. They were sacred in Lincoln's time, because Lincoln made them sacred.

This American flag—any nation's flag—is sacred when, AND ONLY WHEN, men make it sacred. It is sacred to the exact extent and endurance of their honor, their courage and their generosity and not for one moment longer; for not one whit of that honor or courage or generosity may be handed on.

A generation may inherit a flag, but it cannot inherit the sanctity of that flag. IT MUST CREATE THAT SANCTITY FOR ITSELF.

Answer that for yourself. Bow if you wish. I shall not bow to the stars and stripes today. I shall weep instead. I shall weep with shame and pity and bitter anger; for those stripes that sheltered decency when I was a child no longer shelter decency.

THOSE ONCE NOBLE FOLDS, CONSECRATED BY THE BLOOD AND TEARS OF OUR HEROIC DEAD, ARE WRAPPED TODAY, AS CAMOUFLAGE, ABOUT ENTRENCHED GREEDINESS AND SELFISHNESS, VICIOUSNESS AND VILENESS, COWARDICE AND CRUELTY.

We do not honor Washington today when we unfurl the flag he handed on.

WE SHAME HIM WITH THE SYMBOL OF A BROKEN FAITH.

'Of the People, By the People, for the People'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Senate is preparing vigorously to push the bank bill for the relief of business. It has definitely determined that, as far as Congress is concerned, there shall be no direct relief for the millions who are starving. So that is that.

There were objectionable features to the La Follette-Costigan bill—which would have created another federal agency or bureaucracy; albeit there appears to be no objection to the creation of another federal agency to distribute $2,000,000,000 in loans, which may and may not be paid back, to banks and railroads and corporations—in secret. To meet the objection of a bureaucracy in the relief measure, Senators Walsh, of Montana; Buckley, of Ohio, and Black, of Alabama, introduced an amended bill, but this, too, was defeated.

The municipalities have reached the end of their resources; private charity is a dismal flop; states are not acting or are unable to act; and so the devil take the hindmost. The President's promise that no one in America shall be permitted to starve was given in the Pickwickian sense; the other day three old men fell dead from hunger and exposure in New York City.

Women and children are starving and will starve—but we must maintain "the principle." The "American way," it seems, is to blunder along with stupid economic policies and special class legislation for the benefit of the powerful until a crash comes, and then turn our backs on the innocent victims of the tragedy.

This may be "statesmanship;" it may be "sound economics"—since it can be figured on paper that it is cheaper to bury them than to feed them—but it is not humanity. Perhaps we belong to the vulgar few who believe that humanity has a place in government—when government has its proper place in the scheme of things.

Persons of 'No Importance'

By the same token, nothing will be done by the national government to furnish work through a prosperity loan; for all the billions we can rake together must go to the banks, the railroads, the corporations.

So anyone who has had the idea that the people's national government is going to concern itself in the slightest degree with the 3,000,000 men denied the right to work and the 25,000,000 men, women and children who are starving, contracting rickets and tuberculosis and other diseases from undernourishment and insufficient clothing, may dismiss that definitely from their minds.

Not until we have another war. Then they will become people of prime importance—as long as the shooting lasts.

Senator Norris Is to Be Congratulated

After some years of fighting and agitation, the Norris bill to end the scandal of lame duck Congresses with legislation by men who have been repudiated by their people has passed the House overwhelmingly. It should have passed years ago. It required some horrible example of how the present system works to make it positively indecent to permit it to continue.

When Representative Reeves, of Tennessee, defeated for re-election because of his support of the Administration's power policy, returned to Washington after his defeat to lead the fight for that policy in a lame duck session, it was too much.

Senator Norris is to be congratulated on his deserved victory. For a long time his was a voice crying in the wilderness, and with no answer but a cry. But, the American people, interested enough in their government to think on the subject, have been behind him all the time.

The states should vote a ratification of the proposed Constitutional amendment at the first opportunity.

Our governmental system is less responsive to the will of the people than that of any other country claimed to have democratic institutions. This amendment will help make it a bit more responsive.

For generations it was our boast that in America we had established a government "of the people, by the people and for the people"—and we turned up our noses at England. Today the government of England is far more responsive to the will of the people.

Jeffersonians Were Mere 'Demagogues'

The ugly truth is that the mass of the people, even in our country, usually have to wait until a campaign is on to hear pleasant things said about them. We have been glancing over the debates of the First and Second Congresses, and even then "statesmen" were impatient with pleas for the mass of the people. Some Jeffersonian rose to protest against a policy which was robbing the soldiers who had fought the War for Independence, and Wadsworth, of Connecticut, sprang to his feet, thoroughly outraged, to say that he was "sick and tired hearing about the private soldier."

That was especially sweet of Mr. Wadsworth, for this reason: these private soldiers had been paid in scrip—promises to pay. Years elapsed, and they had the paper, but no money. Then Hamilton planned the funding of the debt—which meant the redemption of the scrip at a hundred cents on the dollar.

The private soldiers, scattered over the wilderness and knowing nothing of the plans at the capital, still thought their scrip worthless. Some business men and statesmen knew better. These, including Wadsworth, chartered fast-sailing vessels and trucks, loaded them down with money and sent agents scouring the woods and hamlets to buy up this scrip at 10 cents on the dollar. The "heroes" of the Revolution thought they were lucky; but the "high placed" and "well born" knew they were robbing the heroes of 90 cents on the dollar. That crime was the foundation of some American fortunes.

The Jeffersonians did not like that business, and said so; but it was quite generally agreed in the best circles that they were mere "demagogues."

The Real Servants Of Mankind

I have just been reading the "Life of Lord Rosebery" by the Earl of Crewe. The brilliant but inexplicable English orator and statesman was one of the gods of my idolatry when a boy. It is both an inspiring and a pathetic tale—this story of his life. It was astonishing to find that this supreme aristocrat, a favorite of the court and an intellectual, thought one of the primary functions of government is to better the condition of the masses of the people.

He made a speech at 22 warning the "upper crust" that it was neglecting its duty toward the masses and might ultimately pay the penalty, and his aristocratic mother was so shocked she wrote that no one thought much of people who did not stand by their class; but the youth thought it his duty to stand by humanity, and he stood pat. Later he made innumerable speeches for better housing.

As far back as 1871 he was complaining that the House of Lords had too much power to set aside the will of the people and proposed a reform. After one speech on the rights of the masses, good, dear Victoria wrote her secretary that she was "dreadfully disappointed and shocked at Lord Rosebery's speech, which is radical to a degree to be almost communistic." So it has always been.

But the men who have fought to force the humanities into government have been the real servants of mankind—and the real protectors of society and civilization.
